This-a-Way, That-a-Way Tangle Slashes Douglas St. Motel Trade

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

When the hotels are this-a-way and the tourists are going that-a-way, something has gone wrong.

That's the crisis on Douglas Street, one of the major accommodation areas of the city, but now bypassed by tourist traffic which flows downtown along Blanshard.

"This is really hurting us. Our traffic is down 40 per cent," says Red Lion Inn hotel manager Barry Funnell.

"Something has to be done fast or a lot of accommodation people are going to be hurt."

Travelodge Tally-Ho manager Gary Kelly agrees.

"We didn't say anything about this before because we were told there would be large signs on Blanshard, directing people to us. But this promise has not been kept."

Kelly said the hotel is already losing money because of the traffic change and the losses will increase by spring.

The solution, hotel people say, is to erect a large sign near the Town and Country shopping centre pointing out that Blanshard is for through traffic while Douglas is the tourist route.

This unfortunately would create another problem. Vehicles would have to turn right at Saanich Road, which has already become a bottleneck because of the new traffic patterns.

There are four traffic lights in about six blocks on Saanich Road between Vernon and Douglas and traffic travels at half-speed.

Adding to the problem are motorists who cut across the road between McDonald's and the shopping centre. Town and Country merchants have asked Saanich traffic engineers to see how they can untangle that mess.

It would be possible to avoid Saanich Road by having tourist traffic go farther in and have it turn right at Cloverdale but this is not endorsed by Red Lion officials because they would be bypassed.

"When tourists begin arriving in numbers from Swartz Bay, there is going to be a big traffic jam downtown. There isn't enough accommodation for everyone there," says Funnell.

"The tourists will drive around and around, adding to the downtown congestion, until they find out that there are hotels and motels back out on Douglas.

"The whole thing is not well planned at all."

The Red Lion has tried to battle back by moving its official greeter, Earl Levy, over to Blanshard to re-direct some of the flow. At other times he is sent to the shopping centres.

"We are trying everything we can," Funnell said.

The hotel has several proposals.

It is prepared to make some of its land available to widen the intersection near Douglas and Saanich Road to help reduce the bottleneck.

And it will make Levy available as a driver for a shuttle bus service from the shopping centres and the hotel to the downtown core.

But first on the agenda is the question of better signs on Blanshard.

'Straight Into the Jaws of Idi Amin'

DAR ES SALAAM (UPI) — Ugandan President Idi Amin's government is bragging that his forces have repulsed a counterattack by Tanzanian troops and pushed them into the Kagera River where many were devoured by crocodiles.

"The Tanzanian attack was suicide," Amin aide Bob Astles said. "The Tanzanians were thrown back, their boats destroyed and many of them were eaten by crocodiles in the Kagera River.

"I'm told the screams were horrendous as the Tanzanians died. They went straight into the jaws of Idi Amin, no matter about the crocs, when they attacked."

Tanzania announced Saturday that its troops had launched a major counter-offensive in an attempt to recapture a 710-square-mile chunk of northwestern Tanzania seized by Amin's forces two weeks ago.

Amin's troops were dug in on the north bank of the Kagera River, a tropical river swollen to a width of 150 feet, and the Tanzanian troops attempted to storm across the river in boats.

A high-level official in Kampala told UPI as many as 3,000 of the estimated 6,000 Tanzanian troops in the battle zone took part in the attack against 3,000 Ugandans.

Tanzanian officials said the battle was still raging Sunday — 24 hours after the counter-offensive started — but Uganda radio said its soldiers had blunted the offensive and hurled the Tanzanians back with heavy losses.

Radio Uganda said the Tanzanians launched the offensive late Saturday with a heavy artillery and rocket barrage that could be heard 50 miles away and then tried to cross the Kagera by boats, including an old ferry from nearby Lake Victoria.

"None of the Tanzanian troops managed to swim the river and were watched by Ugandan troops as they were swept away by the water, and were eaten," the radio said.

Mideast Talks Frozen Despite Carter

Times News Services

WASHINGTON (AP) — Middle East peace talks remained deadlocked over the Palestinian issue today despite a concerted U.S. effort to keep a partially completed treaty between Egypt and Israel from unravelling.

President Carter's personal intervention with President Anwar Sadat and Prime Minister Menachem Begin and a compromise U.S. proposal on the Palestinians Sunday failed to bring a quick end to the impasse.

Sadat conferred with his top advisers today, and Prime Minister Mustapha Khalil said Cairo's delegation will continue to negotiate despite the dispute over the Palestinian issue.

Begin arrived back in Israel from the United States, meanwhile, and said his government will consider compromise proposals put forward by the U.S. and Egypt on the question that has blocked final agreement.

The issue basically is whether and how to link an Egyptian-Israeli treaty with a commitment to step-by-step resolution of the future of the Palestinian-populated West Bank of the Jordan River and Gaza Strip.

Begin gave no details of the proposals outlined in what he called a long and serious meeting Sunday with U.S. State Secretary Cyrus Vance.

Earlier, Begin said Israel could not accept Egyptian demands for a timetable to settle the Palestinian problem on the West Bank and in the Gaza Strip.

In a day of fast-paced diplomatic developments, including a telephone call between Sadat and President Carter, the initial Egyptian inclination was to call the negotiators home, sources close to Sadat said.

Sadat met with Khalil and Vice-President Hosny Mubarak to study a message from Carter and after three hours delivered his reply to U.S. Ambassador Hermann Eilts. Cairo newspapers reported the message dealt with the stalled negotiations in Washington, but neither the contents of the message nor details of Sadat's reply were divulged.

Khalil was asked afterward whether the Egyptian delegation was being called home from Cairo.

"No such instructions have been issued to the Egyptian delegation. It never occured to us," he replied.

Sadat had told reporters Friday he would not be surprised if the talks were broken off for a while, but that was before the Vance-Begin meeting Sunday.

Calgary Stampeders, who breezed by Winnipeg Blue Bombers 38-4 in Sunday's Western Football Conference semi-final, are expecting things to be much tougher when they invade Edmonton Saturday for the West final. It will be first time there has been an all-Alberta final. In the East, Montreal Alouettes had a similarly easy time in disposing of Hamilton Tiger-Cats 35-20 in their semi-final. However, the Alouettes may have suffered some costly injuries. They meet Ottawa Rough Riders in the Eastern final next Sunday. Page 16.

Easy Victory For Drapeau

MONTREAL (CP) — Jean Drapeau won a landslide victory in Sunday's municipal election which was all the sweeter because it was one of his toughest campaigns ever.

Recent charges of conflict-of-interest against his right-hand man at city hall and disclosures of lax control over 1976 Olympic Games spending did not appear to hurt Drapeau in the least, as he rode to an unprecedented seventh term as mayor with a 35 per cent majority.

The rotund 62-year-old Drapeau, mayor of Montreal for 21 of the last 24 years, walloped his personal opponents while his party captured 52 of 54 council seats.

In 1970, Drapeau's Civic Party won every seat on council; but in 1974 Montrealers elected a mixed 55-seat council with 36 Civic Party members, 18 Montreal Citizens' Movement members and one independent councillor.

With most of the city's 3,214 polls reporting, Drapeau had 204,462 votes, or 60.9 per cent of the mayoralty vote, and his Civic Party had taken 55.5 per cent of the popular vote.

Liberal MP Serge Joyal, mayoral candidate of the newly-formed Municipal Action Group had 85,457 votes, or 25.5 per cent of the vote for mayor, while his party won 25.9 per cent of the popular vote.

Guy Duquette of the Montreal Citizens' Movement had 41,941 votes, or 12.5 per cent of the mayoralty vote, while his party garnered 18.1 per cent of the popular vote. Both opposition parties won just one council seat.

At last count, 335,775 voters, or 50 per cent of the city's 665,276 eligible voters, had cast ballots. It was one of the highest-ever turnouts at a Montreal election, 10 per cent higher than in the last election in 1974.

In his victory speech before an overflow crowd at city hall, Drapeau promised not to "abuse the strength, the power we have received today."

Even veteran city hall watchers expressed surprise

Iran Oil Industry Still Crippled; General Strike Call Headed Off

TEHRAN (AP) — Most of Iran's 37,000 oil workers defied the military government's order to end their strike, but workers in Tehran did not heed a call for a one-day general strike to demonstrate opposition to Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi.

Seventeen persons were reported killed in weekend demonstrations against the shah.

Despite threats of dismissal and arrest, only a handful of workers complied with an order from the National Iranian Oil Co., the government monopoly, to return to work by Sunday morning and end a strike that began two weeks ago.

Iranian oil officials believe the strikers will go back to work in a day or two. But some foreign personnel were doubtful.

The oil workers went on strike Oct. 31 for higher pay and in support of opposition to the shah's regime by conservative Moslem religious leaders demanding reversal of the ruler's reform program and leftists demanding democratic reforms to replace his authoritarian rule.

The shah authorized a 22.5-per-cent pay increase last week, but the workers demanded release of all political prisoners, an end to martial law and the expulsion of foreigners from the oil industry.

About 2,000 foreign employees and 400 army and navy technicians are at work in the industry, preventing a total shutdown. Officials said production is 1.98 million barrels a day, about 40 per cent of the normal output. But most of this was being used domestically, and the government was losing more than $60 million a day in export revenue.

Iran is the world's second largest exporters of crude oil and a major supplier of Western Europe, South Africa and Israel. Its customers have turned to reserves stockpiled in expectation of a price increase at the end of the year.

The new military government of Gen. Gholam-Reza Azhari, named by the shah last week after bloody rioting against his rule, was strengthened by the failure of exiled Moslem leader Ayatollah Khomaini's call for a one-day general strike in Tehran to support his campaign for the overthrow of the shah.

Most shops and businesses were open, and government agenices and public utilities operated normally.

Pars, the Iranian news agency, reported nine persons killed Saturday in clashes between troops and anti-shah demonstrators in Khorramshahr, about 650 kilometres southwest of Tehran, and the opposition National Front claimed eight others were killed.

I QUIT! Week 6:

Time IS Longer If It's Not Going Up in Smoke

By DAVID COTTER

You're well into your second month now. It's time to talk about time.

One morning George announced with his usual total confidence that he had just smoked his final cigarette. He's never tried to quit before. He'd never need to try again. This was It. He KNEW.

For the next two hours I watched him crumble: the sloping of the shoulders, the drumming of the fingers, the snapping at the telephone.

At 11 a.m. he asked me for a Bantron, knowing I kept a spare box in case of a surprise attack by my lungs. His jaw was half-way to his knees. At 11:30, he moaned, "How long do these things take?" At noon he was smoking again.

If only he could have given it a little more time and had a list to add these to:

- Studies indicate that nicotine releases large amounts of cholesterol into the bloodstream.
- Your skin temperature can drop as much as 4 degrees from just one cigarette.
- Carbon monoxide in a cigarette is concentrated at 400 times the safe level of industrial exposure.
- Cigarette smokers are 6 to 15 times more likely to die from chronic bronchitis.

Time has its own bag of tricks. The days are never long enough.

Suddenly, when you first quit, they never seem to end. Life, the poets tell us, is short. Suddenly, it consists of an agonizing stretch of miniature eternities.

Smokers frequently feel compelled to sleep withdrawal away when they quit. Occasionally, they drink more too. For a week or two this may do.

One endures. But, eventually one must face the facts or start growing bedsores.

Fact: time does seem longer, just as it seems longer when your pants fall down on stage.

Fact: there is more time. Less time is spent on the petty distractions of fumbling for your pack, fiddling for a cigarette, hunting for a match, lighting up, disposing of the match, inhaling, exhaling, tapping the ash, etc. all day long.

You also have more energy, so you don't need as much sleep.

And finally, you're aware of time in a different way.

Time is no longer punctuated by the dozens of little gestures that are part of smoking. Time seems more fluid.

Subconsciously time will no longer be measured by a length of cigarette. (The next bus will no longer be due in two cigarettes.)

Still, you'd think that having more time would be a blessing. And it would be, except for our unhappy habit of wanting our pills to work right away. Accomplishment is too often something we expect to happen to us, rather than something we earn.

If you find it hard to imagine not ever smoking again, readjust your focus. If it's too broad or too far in the future it isn't useful to you now.

Gone With The Wind would have been an overwhelming project had Margaret Mitchell's sights been locked on the clock or the number of blank pages. Instead, she dealt with each detail and each day as it came.

Hollywood Sign Back On Its Hillside Home

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — This town of bright lights and movie stars celebrated its 75th anniversary with a spectacular coming-out party for a rejuvenated old friend.

The "HOLLYWOOD" sign was welcomed back to its hillside home Saturday night—replacing the original that had adorned Mount Lee for 55 years, until time and the elements left it in such bad shape that demolition crews had to tear down what was left in August.

The nine new 15-metre-tall letters are built of sheet metal, steel girders and concrete and are designed to last at least a century.

Singer Andy Williams, comedian Chevy Chase and game-show host Monty Hall—the honorary mayor of Hollywood—provided entertainment for more than 1,000 special guests who gathered in the rain beneath a leaky canopy on the lawn of Griffith Park Observatory to watch the unveiling.

Blustery winds and rain halted just long enough to allow a proper debut for the new sign, as searchlights and laser beams illuminated the hillside.

Response to the project was disappointing until last summer, when rock star Alice Cooper pledged $27,000 to pay for one of the letters in the new sign. His pledge led to matching contributions from a newspaper and a movie technical company.

But the big victory, said chamber member Shel Davado, was a $100-a-head party thrown by Playboy magazine publisher Hugh Hefner. The party raised $55,000, of which Hefner donated $27,000.

Actress Yvonne DeCarlo, accompanied by a 36-piece orchestra, sang I'm Still Here as the sign was lighted up—providing the finale to a two-hour CBS broadcast salute to Hollywood. Douglas Fairbanks served as host.

The triumphant "welcome back" was marred early Sunday when a 30-year-old Newberry Park man fell from the top of the last O. Bruce William Thill apparently climbed the letter and slipped as he scrambled down, falling head-first about 30 metres down the hillside, police said. A police helicopter flew Thill to hospital, where, police said, he was in fair condition.

The original sign had been erected in 1923 to lure customers to a subdivision named Hollywoodland. The sign was designed to hold up for only 18 months, and the last four letters disintegrated quickly. The remaining nine, spelling HOLLYWOOD, evolved into a landmark.

X-RAY ROCKET ALOFT

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) — A satellite equipped to map the X-ray patterns of the universe which are beamed from the mysterious pulsars, quasars and black holes rode into orbit this morning atop an Atlas-Centaur booster rocket.

The launch came right on schedule at 12:24 a.m. EST.

The High Energy Astronomical Observatory will be orbiting from 280 to 335 miles above Earth, pointing its powerful telescope at the radiation sources and transmitting back pictures that may explain the astronomical wonders.

For the first time researchers will be able to "look at objects, see exactly where the action is taking place and from that better understand the whole astrophysical system that is working out there to produce these X-rays," program scientist Albert Opp said.

"You'll be able to see in X-rays the motions of gases and the presence of the matter that's creating the X-rays. Since you can't see these in visible light, you can only speculate as to what's creating the X-rays," Opp said.

Dr. Herbert Friedman said findings indicate possible black holes near the constellations Scorpius, Cygnus X-1, Circinus X-1 and Hercules X-1. These may be remnants of extremely large stars that imploded — collapsed upon themselves — when their nuclear fuel was exhausted.

This results in a small mass, greatly compressed, which has so much gravity that even light is prevented from escaping. Astronomers speculate they can detect the existence of a black hole by studying X-rays from its surroundings.

The HEAO 2 satellite's observation pattern has been charted during the past 15 months by the HEAO 1 orbiter, which has located an estjmated 1,500 objects that emit X-rays — more than five times the number of X-ray producers known before.

The X-rays to be examined by HEAO 2 cannot be studied from Earth because the atmosphere screens out the radiation.

Information on the neutron stars has also been gained from the HEAO 1. Now HEAO 2 will try to pinpoint the exact source of the clock-like bursts of radiation called pulsars.

Scientists say they're puzzled by the variability of the X-ray emissions from a great band of objects, including quasars — which produce enormous quantities of light or powerful radio signals.

Kaunda Warns White Farmers

LUSAKA, Zambia (UPI) — Zambian President Kenneth Kaunda assured angry white farmers today that they were needed in Zambia but warned them not to take the law into their own hands to defend themselves against attacks by Rhodesian black nationalist guerrillas.

The farmers, who produce about a third of Zambia's maize crop — the nation's staple diet — threatened to stop planting and burn their farms unless the government curbed the guerrillas' activities.

In his first public statement on the anti-white violence that exploded last week, Kaunda urged Zambians not to attack whites suspected of being Rhodesian spies, but to hand them over to police.

The violence broke out in the wake of last month's Rhodesian bombing raids on Joshua Nkomo's Zimbabwe African Peoples Union camps that left more than 1,000 dead and hundreds wounded.

Guerrilla sources said they suspected Zambian whites of acting as a fifth column for the Rhodesian strikes.

Referring to mob violence directed against whites in downtown Lusaka last week, when at least six whites were badly beaten, Kaunda ordered Zambians to "be vigilant and militant and look out for the enemy."

"But don't beat him. Hand him over to the police," he said.

FLIGHTS HALTED

ROME (Reuter) — All flights of Italy's national airline, Alitalia, have been halted until Tuesday by a 24-hour strike by flight crews.

Pilots, navigators and cabin crew members are taking part in the stoppage, called because of the failure of negotiators to reach agreement on a new contract.

CLEANUPjob on a suit of German armor from the mid-1500s is performed in Toronto by John Karavos, who says the suit weighs about 18 kilograms and is worth about $5,000.

PRIME RATE HIKED IN U.S.

CHICAGO (Reuter) — Three of the largest banks in the United States today raised their prime interest rates by one-quarter percentage point to 11 per cent, highest in four years and one per cent below the highest rate ever.

The rates charged banks' most credit-worthy customers were increased by First National Bank of Chicago, the First Pennsylvania Bank and the Harris Trust and Savings Bank in Chicago. Other major banks were expected to follow suit soon.

It was the second time this month that major banks had raised the prime rate following two increases in October. The last time the prime rate reached 11 per cent was on Nov. 4, 1974.

Today's rate hikes come nearly two weeks after President Carter introduced a series of credit-tightening measures to halt the decline of the U.S. dollar on foreign exchange markets.

The Federal Reserve Board at that time raised its discount rate, the interest rate its charges member commercial banks, to 9.5 per cent.

Sanctions Threatened

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The Security Council threatened today to impose sanctions on South Africa unless it cancels the pre-independence election it has scheduled in Namibia for Dec. 4-8.

The council adopted an Asian-African resolution to that effect by a vote of 10-0.

Its five Western members abstained from the vote instead of following their customary practice of voting against any suggestion of sanctions except in extraordinary circumstances.

The five—the United States, Canada, Britain, France and West Germany—in Pretoria last month got South Africa to commit itself to work for a UN-supervised election in Namibia, or South-West Africa, after its own unsupervised December election.

Weather map unavailable today

A storm is currently organizing in the Pacific to the west of the weather ship. This system is expected to spread cloud and milder air to the north coast of the province by Tuesday morning and to the rest of British Columbia later Tuesday and early Wednesday. This will end the spell of sunny but cold weather most of B.C. has been enjoying.

Temperatures are expected to warm well ahead of the disturbance and the precipitation is expected to be rain in coastal areas, although in some mainland valleys it will likely begin as snow.

MAN CHARGED AT TRACK

A man who figured he had a sure thing was arrested by Sidney RCMP Saturday at Sandown race track and faces theft charges.

Police say the Victoria man was caught trying to cash stolen tickets at Sandown race track.

Police said the value of the tickets, stolen from a cashier's wicket, was about $400 to $500.

Cuban Troops To Aid Angola

HAVANA (Reuter) — Cuba is ready to give maximum help to Angola in repulsing any South African attack, the Cuban foreign minister said today.

Foreign Minister Isidoro Malmierca's comment was the first Cuban reaction since Angola's statement last week that South Africa was preparing to invade Angolan territory.

"Our military co-operation with Angola has the purpose of defending its territorial integrity and of supporting the Angola armed forces in the defence of its frontiers," Malmierca said in an interview with the Cuban news agency Prensa Latina.

Cuba has not said how many soldiers it has in Angola, but U.S. estimates put the figure at up to 20,000.

Press Disputants Resuming Talks

VANCOUVER (CP) — Representatives from both sides in the Pacific Press dispute agreed Sunday to meet with mediator Peter Dowding Tuesday morning to try to negotiate a return to the bargaining table.

The agreement came after Don Munroe, chairman of the British Columbia Labor Relations Board chairman, met separately with Pacific Press management and representatives of the Vancouver Printing Pressmen's Union and the Vancouver-New Westminster Newspaper Guild during the weekend.

Munroe had called the meeting with union heads after Pacific Press, which prints The Vancouver Sun and The Province daily newspapers, filed a complaint following suspension of operations Nov. 1. A company source said the complaint was that the pressmen's union failed to bargain in good faith.

Munroe said both sides agreed in weekend talks to sit down and discuss disputed areas of the contract with a view to further negotiating sessions.

About 1,400 workers are involved in the strike-lockout over negotiations for a new contract to replace one that expired Oct. 31.

The two unions served strike notice on the company and walked off the job, while four other unions were locked out. The unions are represented in bargaining by a joint council.

Primary issues are manning clauses for pressmen and company proposals for exclusions of staff from the guild.

HOSPITAL STAFF OUT

EDMONTON (CP) — About 40 hospital support staff followed through on a strike notice issued Friday and walked off the job at three city hospitals early today.

The workers are members of Local 24 of the Canadian Union of Public Employees (CUPE), which is involved in province-wide contract talks with the Alberta Hospitals Association (AHA). Employees at three Red Deer institutions walked out last week.

The AHA has offered a six-per-cent wage increase in the first year of a two-year contract and said Friday it is willing to negotiate a figure for the second year.

Picket lines were established at the Dr. Angus McGugan Nursing Home and Norwood and Lynnwood Extended Care Centres at about 7 a.m..

Sunday, David McBean, administrator for hospitals in the Edmonton area appealed for volunteers to help care for chronically ill patients, prompting charges of strike breaking from union.

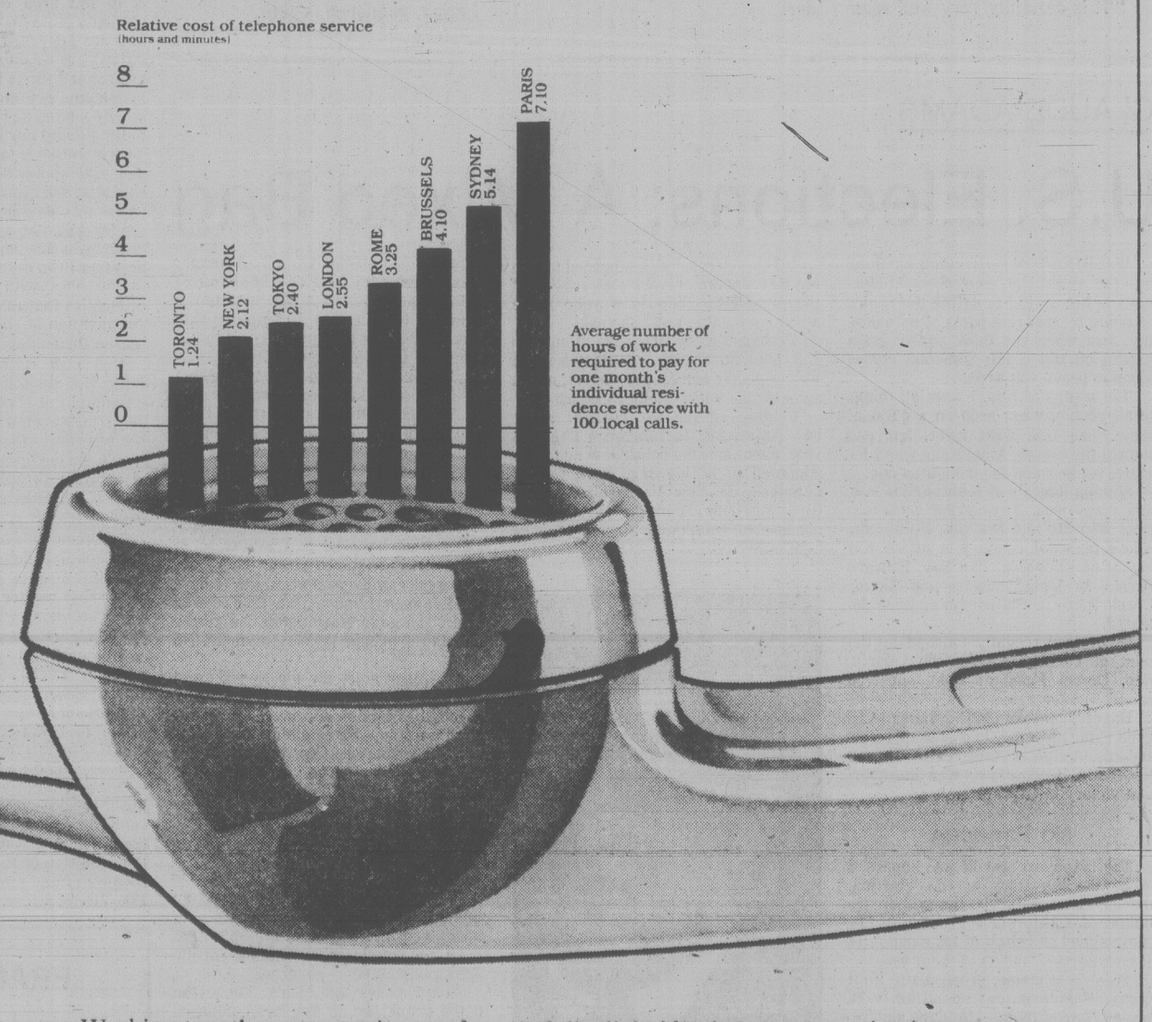
When it comes to telecommunications, nobody does it like Canada. And nobody gets more for their money.



Telephone service is something almost every Canadian takes for granted. Which is exactly as it should be. But what most Canadians don't realize is that this country's telecommunications network is not only one of the most reliable and up-to-date in the world, it is also one of the most economical in the world.

A glance at the chart, which shows the largest city in each country, illustrates the point. In Toronto, an average person works one hour and 24 minutes to pay for one month's basic telephone service. In New York, it's two hours and 12 minutes; in Brussels four hours and 10 minutes. In Paris, it's seven hours and 10 minutes – nearly six times what it costs an average Torontonian.

Canada's cost efficiency is pretty remarkable when you consider that our network covers a territory second in size only to the U.S.S.R. – supported by a population only one-tenth that of the U.S.

Obviously, this efficiency is no happy accident. It's the result of a unique working relationship. By far, the great majority of the equipment in the Canadian network has been manufactured by a single corporation – Northern Telecom Canada. In concert with our research and development subsidiary, Bell-Northern Research, we consult with all Canadian telephone companies almost on a daily basis.

Working together, we monitor performance data continuously with an eye to future improvements. This enables us to anticipate the needs of the Canadian market and to direct our R&D towards the development of products that will solve real telephone company problems.

The result? Such products as the Northern Telecom SL*-1, the world's first fully digital business communications system. The Contempra* telephone. The electret microphone. The SP-1 and now the DMS* – Digital Multiplex System – central office switching systems designed by and for Canadians, that have gone on to win extremely high acceptance in competitive U.S. and overseas markets.

Each new product, each new improvement, that we develop in response to the needs of Canada's telephone companies means that Canadians will continue to get more for their money. And that's something that should never be taken for granted.

Let Justice Be Seen

It is easy to understand why many members of Victoria city council want to hold a closed meeting to discuss the truly amazing letter they received last week from Gordon Newhouse, the consultant hired this summer to study the city's personnel department.

The letter consists of a long string of serious charges against the city administration in general and against unnamed members of it in particular. Despite the lack of names, it is apparent that the allegations extend far up the city's hierarchical ladder.

Newhouse states that while studying the personnel department, "we uncovered a number of 'administrative irregularities' bordering on the illegal having significant adverse legal implications to the city of Victoria. The more important matters in question related to serious violation of human rights, long-term disregard of the rights of the city's unionized employees and mismanagement of governing labor agreements."

He says also that his firm has evidence "that Executive Administration had been aware of certain of the matters for a period in excess of two years and had not taken appropriate corrective action," and emphasizes that "our firm will not be party to or condone the covering up of any issues or actions either by council or by executive administration." Another line refers to "inexcusable administrative practices detrimental to labor's negotiated rights."

Short of making accusations of actual criminal behavior or conflicts of interest, it is hard to think of any more damning things that the consultant might have said.

But the difficulty with all these charges is that in the letter Newhouse offers not one word of proof for any of them. Apparently he did not offer the details either in the formal report he prepared for council members. Whether he did so in the oral briefing he gave to Mayor Mike Young — the briefing that led to the firing of city personnel director Terry FitzPatrick — has not been made clear.

As a result council has been put in quite an untenable position. Not knowing precisely what Newhouse is talking about, aldermen can obviously not make rational decisions about how the matter should be handled. They are quite rightly nervous that city staff could be unfairly embarrassed by public discussion of the issue since they don't know what post-Hallowe'en skeletons might emerge during that discussion. Hence their desire to move into a closed meeting.

But, perhaps unfortunately, it is too late for that now. The charges have been made in public by Newhouse and they will have to be dealt with in public.

The thinly-veiled hints of cover-up, in particular, make it quite impossible for council to meet in private, look at the issues, then come out and tell the public that all is well and the charges are unsubstantiated. Even the attempts by some aldermen and Young at last week's council meeting to stop questions being asked about the charges in public could have looked a shade suspicious to the cynical.

It is to be hoped that council will work diligently to avoid any unfair embarrassment of city staff during a public explanation. But in any case the first embarrassment for them already exists in the Newhouse letter. Perhaps little that could be said would be worse than the cloud that has been left hanging over them in the allegations the consultant makes.

Maybe for them as well as for the citizens and taxpayers of Victoria, clearing up the matter in public is the best thing.

It is the old saw that justice must not only be done, but be seen to be done. And justice will not be seen to be done if a case in which the word cover-up has been mentioned is dealt with in private.

Really Astonishing

Some good news today on the post office, a glowing testimonial, in fact.

"'The post office is a wonderful establishment,' said she. 'The regularity and despatch of it! If one thinks of all that it has to do, and all that it does so well, it is really astonishing!'

"'It is certainly very well regulated. So seldom that any negligence or blunder appears! So seldom that a letter, among the thousands that are constantly carried about the kingdom, is even carried wrong — and not one a million, I suppose, actually lost! And when one considers the variety of hands, and of bad hands too, that are to be deciphered, it increases the wonder!'

"'The clerks grow expert from habit. They must begin with some quickness of sight and hand, and exercise improves them. If you want any further explanation,' continued he, smiling, 'they are paid for it. That is the key to a great deal of capacity. The public pays and must be served well'."

The author was Jane Austen, in Emma, published in 1815.

U.S. Elections: A Mixed Bag

WASHINGTON — Reading anything into the recent U.S. congressional elections is like trying to define the fabled elephant by studying parts of its anatomy. Just when you think you've got a handle on the beast, someone comes along to prove you wrong.

The results of Nov. 7 were all things to all people, when seen on a national scale. The U.S. went right, left and toward the centre. Americans voted for more, for less and for the status quo.

Shining liberals of both parties lost, and many won. Tax-cutting conservatives won big and lost big. Politicians whose personal conduct in office was highly questionable, like Sen. Edward Brooke in Massachusetts and Mayor Frank Rizzo in Philadelphia, were defeated.

Other men recently touched by the taint of corruption, like the colorful Rep. Daniel Flood of Ohio, survived easily.

Hopeful gamblers in Florida and Virginia came up empty in gambling referendums. A sign of conservative times? Not really. Homosexuals won an important victory in California.

No Panacea

The taxpayers' revolt was supposed to be the big story of this election. Indeed, Howard Jarvis, the millionaire father of California's Proposition 13, campaigned on behalf of 106 candidates of both parties, and 80 of them won.

True, in 11 states, proposals to limit taxes or government spending were passed. Two of them — in Idaho and Nevada — were similar to Proposition 13.

But similar measures lost in Arkansas, Colorado, Florida, Nebraska and Oregon. Tax cuts, the voters said, are by no means a panacea.

The White House has quietly put out the word that it is happy with the election results. With some good reason. The Democrats lost only 12 seats in the 435-seat House of Representatives. The average losses of a party with a ma... in the White House in the middle of his term is 36 seats.

But does President Jimmy Carter really have cause for joy? Only 12 of the 28 candidates he personally campaigned for were winners. His impact on the election can truly be described as negligible.

A post-election cartoon in a Washington newspaper underlines this fact. Rosalynn Carter is sitting at a breakfast table with a glum president, and she is perusing the results.

"If this election was supposed to be a big referendum on your stewardship of the presidency, how is it your name never even came up?" she asks.

Perhaps for the first time in modern U.S. political history, candidates fared well or poorly neither because of, nor in spite of, the nation's chief executive.

Fouling all the pat theories about how Americans in 1978 were likely to vote, about how the political winds were supposed to be blowing, were results like those in New Hampshire, where Gov. Meldrim Thomson got the axe because of something as mundane as high utility bills.

WALTER MONDALE
... Minnesota went GOP

Minnesota was another "paradox" if you were a pre-election subscriber to the Washington view of things. Minnesota, the home state of liberal Democratic lions like Walter Mondale and the late Hubert Humphrey, went solidly Republican. The experts are still shaking their heads in disbelief.

However, despite all this seeming confusion, it may be nice to know that there are still some absolutes in the crazy quilt of the American political system.

For one thing, a lot of money can still buy an election. Republican John Warner, winner of a senate seat in Virginia, is a prime example. A former Navy secretary and the husband of Elizabeth Taylor, Warner invested a personal fortune into a campaign that was notable for its stumbles, equivocations and bad judgment.

But his high (and dearly-bought) visibility squeaked him through.

Another enduring constant is that, outside of an occasional presidential election, most Americans don't care. The turnout in last week's election was something like 36 per cent. In 1974 it was 38 per cent.

Most of the electorate are indifferent about what happens in Washington, if not actively hostile. Indeed, one of the cleverest campaign lines came from a candidate in Illinois, Dan Crane, who said: "If I go to Washington, I won't be like those people in Washington." He won.

Of lesser note, the election showed that Americans can still be won over by cornball campaign gimmicks. Bob Graham, a millionaire candidate for governor of Florida, went out to work at 100 different jobs — from garbageman to bellhop — to get a "feel," as he said, for the common people.

The People Spoke

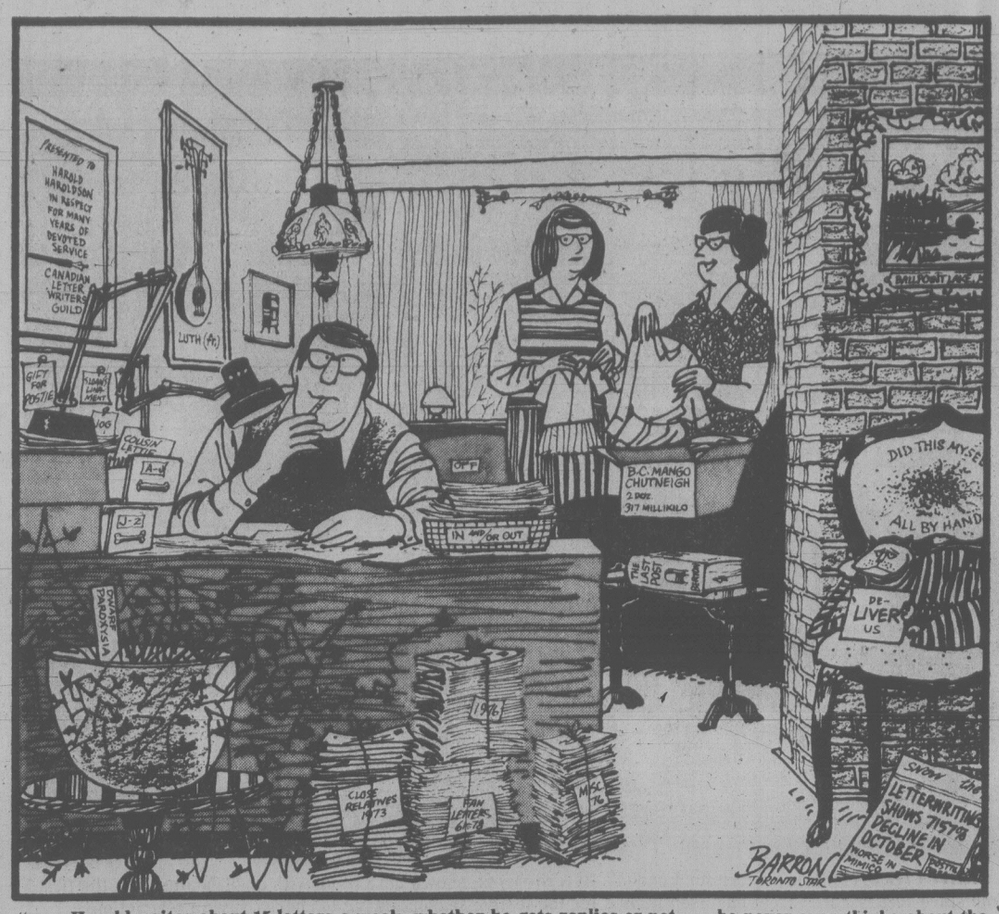
The only job he turned down was an invitation to drive a truck loaded with nitroglycerin. The voters ate up all the hoke, and voted Graham into the one job he really wanted — governor.

Some years ago, Dick Tuck, the noted prankster of American political campaigns who has made a life's work out of bedevilling candidates like Richard Nixon, decided to run for a minor office in California.

It was Tuck's only foray into elective office and when he lost, he made this concession speech: "The people have spoken — the bastards!"

With varying degrees of bitterness, a lot of election losers are saying the same thing of themselves — the liberal Democrats who underestimated public cynicism toward big government, the conservative Republicans who overplayed their tax-cutting hand, the political pundits who were all wrong about the so-called national mood, and the manipulators like Rizzo in Philadelphia.

If nothing else, the election has put U.S. politicians on notice that there's a great deal they don't know about the American electorate, and how it responds.



"... Harold writes about 15 letters a week, whether he gets replies or not ... he never even thinks about the post office being open or closed ... he just likes doing it ..."

Economic Cancer

With reference to your article, second front page of Oct. 19, entitled "Blow those $$ Blues" misplaced anxiety, UVic Prof.:

I wish to make some constructive comments as follows:

In the first part of the article you say "People are left with the impression that because the dollar is falling, there's something wrong with us," and then you go on to say that it isn't the dollar we should be focusing our attention on, but rather the causes of its decline. This is, in my opinion like trying to say in indirect speech that we or our economy is neither weak nor rotten, and that we are good i.e. presumably in a good financial state so that there is no reason to worry about anything.

Result: A contradiction to the latter part of that same article which says that the balance on trade in money is bad news, that the deficit on tourism has risen dramatically, that the big problem is in the area of services, that the economy is stagnant, that foreign investors are apprehensive, that the capital inflows are weakening, that we can only keep ahead for so long, etc., etc., which statements are more in line with what other economists have to say from time to time about our economy. But even if your intention is to imply that instead of worrying about the declining dollar we should be worrying about the things that cause this decline, y going around in circles and not using the proper synthesis you are bound to give the impression to many readers, particularly to the ones with little knowledge in economics that in spite of the problems you mention in your article there is no reason for anxiety.

You also state, "That the falling dollar (i.e. the Canadian dollar) is only a symptom, it is not the problem", and that it may even work to our advantage. My answer is that to the majority of people the declining Canadian dollar is, in addition to spiralling inflation, an indication that there is something wrong with our economy.

Whether we wish to call the drop of the Canadian dollar a symptom of an economic disease, or part of the disease, or for that matter a symptom of some other problem, what does that really matter?

Futhermore to say "that it is not the problem" because the problem is somewhere else, could be interpreted by some readers as a game of words in an effort to bring some comfort to our minds. For instance in a parallel situation we can also call cancer a symptom — a symptom of a celluar malfunctioning of the body if we so wish — and then conclude by saying that cancer is not the problem, but that would not change the condition of the patient or the seriousness of the situation. — E. Wilson, 1351 Vining Street.

Reforestation on mountain slope. Does it encourage wasteful logging?

Reforestation

Reforestation through tree planting is all wrong. It is an increasingly expensive method of restoring logged over lands, and the acceptance of a large tree planting program by the government is encouraging wasteful and destructive logging methods.

This statement will shock the average person who has been told for years, that good forestry consists of planting a new seedling for every tree we cut. And people readily believe — this because it does not seem possible for trees to grow again on the devastated logging areas unless we replant.

But nowhere else in the world is this cycle of clear-cut and plant used to the extent we are attempting. And the reason is simply that it is "logging economics" forest management and is harmful on many counts from a forestry point of view. Reforestation is being vaunted because of its emotional appeal and helps draw attention away from, or reduces the impact of the logging scars on our hillsides.

We are treated to large ads in our newspapers proclaiming that "moose love the logging industry" because logging creates a renewal of their fodder supply, and another ad states that "the forests we're planting will be big enough for both good jobs and recreation." Both statements are right, but only to the extent that no one challenges that through better logging and better forest management we could achieve those results and much much more.

The whole subject cannot be debated here, but if we take note of what Pearse wrote in his 1976 forest report, we will have some idea of how superficial is the basis of the reforestation argument. He wrote "Current reforestation policy is seriously deficient with respect to the attention given to the costs and benefits of alternative [forestry] practices."

We are clear-cutting and making planting the only solution for regeneration, on slopes and forest sites where these treatments may not be warranted. We are reforesting by rote and not on the basis of sound forestry. And the process is not only costly but has created a sort of free-wheeling forest management process that has resulted in the creaming of our best timber to the extent of threatening future supplies.

We do not need more funds for more reforestation. We need, as Pearse says, "to reasses our priorities." — D. M. Trew, Forester, 37-1240 Newport Avenue.

Firearms Laws

The editorial in your paper of Oct. 31 (Happiness Is No Gun) is very interesting, and gives great cause for speculation on the intelligence of its author. To say that guns kill people and people themselves only punch each other on the nose is like asking your readers to believe that automobiles run themselves over people, and people only stand in their way.

In my entire life I have never seen, and neither have you, any firearm of any description get up of its own accord, load itself, point itself at some person, and pull its own trigger. These operations have to be performed by some person.

If the law wants to do something useful for society, let it severely punish those people who abuse their right to own firearms, particularly those who use them for downright criminal purposes, like armed robbery and wilful, premeditated murder. If the law can think of nothing better than a so-called amnesty to confiscate supposedly illegal weapons, then the law is definitely the "ass" which it has been called many times before, and the credibility of persons who advocate such laws is seriously questioned.

Unfortunately, when bad and unpopular laws appear on the statute books, the whole question of law and order is brought into disrepute along, also, with those members of our society who have the misfortune to be charged with the task of upholding it.

I would suggest, Mr. Editor, you will make but few friends with your remarks. — Denis Gough, 3044 Glen Lake Road.

U.K. Gov't Winning With Wage Controls

ANTHONY LEWIS
New York Times

One of the great political success stories in the Western world is being written these days in Britain. The Labor Prime Minister, James Callaghan, has taken what looked to be a troubled government sliding toward a tough election and pushed Labor into a surprising lead over the Conservatives.

The secret of Callaghan's success, everyone agrees, is his wages policy. To fight inflation he wants to hold wage increases to 5 per cent a year. That is just a guidline, but Callaghan is defending it as if he were Winston Chruchill fighting on the beaches. And there are some signs that he is winning.

Amazing

Workers at two General Motors plants recently rejected their leaders' call for strikes. At huge meetings — 13,000 at one, 3,000 at another —union members stood up and said it would be better for everyone, including the union, if Callaghan's guidelines held.

The signals are by no means all set fair. Ford workers have been on strike for five weeks, demanding increases way over 5 per cent. Other unions say they will never settle for that. Callaghan can expect the annual winter struggle with the coal miners.

But there is strong evidence that his plea for self-restraint to stop inflation is persuading the rank and file. A Gallup Poll last month showed 66 per cent of those surveyed in favor of the wages guideline. Among union members polled, 69 per cent favored the limit.

That apparent acceptance of wage restraint is amazing in a country where class suspicions run high and there is a traditiaon of worker solidarity. Just last month, moreover, the union's umbrella organization, the Trades Union Congress, voted at its annual meeting to turn down the wages policy. The Labor Party, at its annual conference, did the same thing.

Callaghan met that opposition head-on. He said he would not give way, to the left-wing faction in his own party or to the union leadership, but would talk past them to the people. The bulldog stance worked. Even Tory papers praised the prime minister, and the public approved. Or so the first returns indicate.

Last month Labor won a surprising victory in a by-election on the Scottish border. The seat had gone to Labor by only 2,740 votes in 1974, and everyone expected a loss this time. Instead the Labor edge rose to 3,112. And a national poll at the same time gave the government a lead over the Conservatives of 47.5 per cent to 42. Both results were linked by observers to support for the Callaghan pay policy.

Britons very likely remember what happened when Callaghan's pliant predecessor, Harold Wilson, let wages rip. Four years ago inflation reached a level of 30 per cent. People were frightened, union members among them. They do not want that to happen again. Nor do they want what most believe is the only alternative to wage restraint: a recession that will increase unemployment.

In Britain, in fact, opposition to the pay policy has shrunk mostly to small islands of ideologists at either end of the political spectrum. The Labor left sees guidelines as a capitalist plot. The Conservative leader, Mrs. Margaret Thatcher, opposes it as an interference with the free market. Her rigid ideological stance has her party worrying as it sees the hope of victory slipping away.

The dramatic British story of anti-inflation policy raises interesting questions for the United States. Can the British pattern work here? Or are we immune to the dangers that have driven ordinary people in Britain to accept wage restraint as better than the alternatives?

No, America is not immune to the economic storms that ravaged other countries. If we think we are, we have learned nothing from the last few years. And the alternatives to wage restraint are the same here as in Britain: zooming inflation or a disastrous recession.

Hide-bound

The United States tried recession as a cure just a few years ago. That was the Nixon-Ford economic policy in 1974 and 1975, and the result was our worst economic slump in nearly 40 years: unemployment up to 8.5 per cent, réal gross national product down. The inflation rate did drop, from 11 per cent to 5.8. But that episode and others have shown us that rigidities in the economy now keep inflation going even during a recession.

Jimmy Carter, as he tries to make guidelines for wages and prices work in the U.S., faces the same opponents that Callaghan does in Britain: hide-bound union leadership and right-wing idealogues. I think the U.S. public, like the British, is wary of those forces and ready to respond to political leadership that fights hard for restraint. Guidelines are like democracy in Churchill's aphorism: the worst system there is, except all the others.

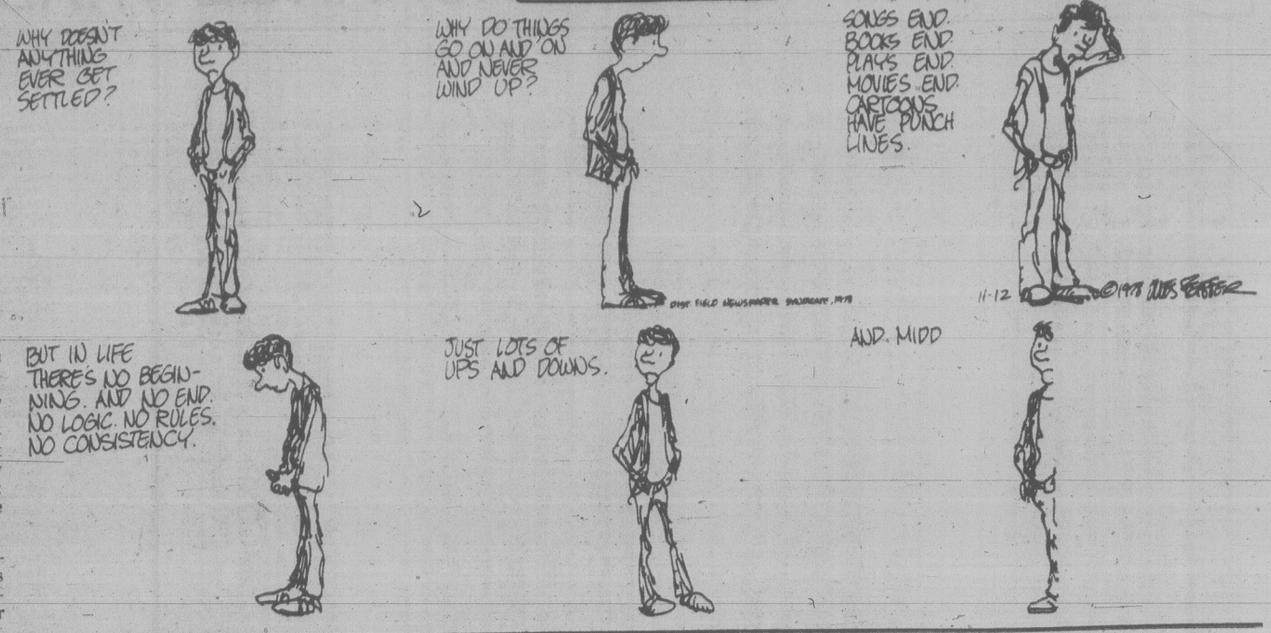
FEIFFER



'Shift of BNA Powers' is a Myth

By WILLIAM JOHNSON

Premier Rene Levesque retold a fine bit of Quebec folklore at the First Ministers' Conference when he spun the tale of the double misunderstanding. At the time of Confederation, he said, "for the Quebecers of the last century the setting up of a federal regime was the guarantee of their political autonomy." Ah, but the English Canadians wanted a centralized regime and, over time, their views prevailed. The centralizing monster in Ottawa was born, and grew and grew and grew.

He was only taking over a familiar theme from Claude Morin, who speaks of the history of the Canadian federation as one that began with a provincial autonomy progressively submerged under the centralizing tendencies of the central government. Morin wrote a book on the subject, Le Combat Quebecois, three years before he became Quebec's Minister of Intergovernmental Affairs. His thesis is that the shift of power from the provinces to Ottawa has been inexorable, with only the pace changing.

The only trouble with the Morin-Levesque thesis is that it assumes the French Canadians of 1867 were illiterates or morons. The British North America Act, far from establishing provincial autonomy, enacted numerous provisions to ensure the predominance of the central government.

Think of it. The central govenment appoints and pays the provincial lieutenant-governor, who can withhold assent from bills passed by the provincial legislature (in which case they are null), or can "reserve" the bill "for the signification of the Queen's pleasure," in which case the bill is in limbo until the central government approves it. Or the central government can "disallow" the bill any time within two years after it is passed — and the bill is null from then on.

By the tally of Senator Eugene Forsey, lieutenant-governors have withheld assent 28 times (the last time in 1945), 70 bills have been reserved (the last time in 1961) and 112 acts passed by provincial legislatures have been disallowed by the federal government, the last time in 1943. Is that autonomy?

Parliament, by the BNA Act, can establish its jurisdiction over any "local works and undertakings" simply by declaring by a bill that they are "for the advantage of two or more of the provinces."

Even in an area like agriculture, surely a matter of provincial jurisdiction, and immigration, also under provincial jurisdiction, the BNA Act gives the federal Parliament the right to pass laws.

PARIZEAU
. . . had it right

The examples of centralization in the BNA Act could be multiplied. They go far beyond what could be found in the operation of Canadian federalism today.

Quebec and other provinces complain of federal intrusion in areas of provincial jurisdiction; they raise loud cries, voice their shock at Ottawa's disrespect for the constitution. But why don't they take the federal government to court, if it is acting beyond its powers?

The answer is clear in a study of the Supreme Court of Canada published last month by Quebec's Ministry of Inter-governmental Affairs. The author, Gilbert L'Ecuyer, a jurist who works for the ministry, concluded that the Supreme Court of Canada has simply interpreted the BNA Act fairly. Why, then, do the decisions seem to favor federal power? Because, the author concluded, the constitution favors federal power.

Would that politicians were as honest.

In 1868, the provinces received 54 per cent of their revenues in direct transfers from the federal government. Is that the original autonomy from which we have fallen into centralization?

There is an honest man in the Quebec government and his name is Jacques Parizeau, the current finance minister, who has never repudiated the words he spoke in 1967 when he said that Canada has become so decentralized that the federal government is inefficient.

"We have now reached the point of wanting to translate into the constitution the movement towards decentralization of our economic and social policies that, in my view, we have already pushed much too far," he told a conference in Banff.

"If we were to freeze in the constitution the present situation, I strongly doubt that we would ever be able to proceed in Canada to a rational planning. No country should be authorized to fragment its decision-making power as we have done and, worse still, as so many constitution-makers propose to do more and more."

Mr. Parizeau, meet Mr. Levesque and Mr. Morin.

Cleared for Crime

(A reprint of a previous column)

russell baker

One of the last great bargains in the age of 35-cent candy bars and 65-cent gasoline is crime.

The bargain-conscious gentlemen who pointed this out to me is an executive in a large corporation, a man professionally quick at the science of holding down budgets while increasing profit. In today's market, he believes crime is such a bargain that big companies ought to be setting up legitimate crime divisions to fulfil their obligation to stockholders to maximize profits.

His point is that while the cost of everything else from meat to men's socks has been rising like corn in Iowa, the cost of committing the most profitable crimes has not gone up in 20, 30, in some cases 40 years.

In recent years, for example, several big companies and their executives were caught in the highly profitable business of making illegal campaign contributions, and were convicted. Although the contributions ranged from $25,000 to $100,000, the maximum fine for each guilty company was only $5,000; for each executive only $1,000.

At these prices, the companies and their bosses would have been failing their stockholders if they had not chosen chosen crime over law and order. Crime was a great buy and the capital risks were negligible.

For a criminal $100,000 given a presidential candidate, as all these gifts were, donors were buying the future good opinion of big men in government, men who, because of the interlocking relationship of business and government these days, were in a position to return the campaign favor in ways highly profitable to the donor.

Such relationdhips (see the case of the milk producers' campaign contribution to President Nixon) may pay off in millions for the donor. And what does it cost if he's caught? Peanuts: $5,000 for a corporation, $1,000 for an executive.

Even this trifle is easily recouped. The executie finds an extra thousand added to his annual bonus, and the company may get the full $6,000 back out of its customers with a slight price increase. "Rising costs" is the going justification, and the public pays the fine.

The costs of breaking the anti-trust laws can be higher, but they rarely are. More often, when you are caught raking in the boodle from an antitrust caper, the government is content to tell you to cease, and desist and divest.

In view of the immense profit to be made from crime, my bargain-conscious executive argues, good management policy would justify many corporations in establishaing crime divisions, on an equal footing with sales, promotion, distribution, engineering and so forth.

The corporate vice-president in charge of crime would be a raffish personality not given to squeamishness about standing around in courtrooms pleading guilty. Under most corporate organizations at present, the dirty work has to be done by a college-educated man with strong drives to look respectable in his upper-middle-class suburb. The threat of showing up in court leaves him terrified, and his reluctance to do the job with gusto makes for great inefficiency.

Greater efficiency all around would also be achieved with a properly organized crime division capable of tight scheduling and planned programing.

Under present helter-skelter practices, companies must go through the elaborate and costly minuet of trying to conceal the crime, being caught, cranking up lawyers, entering pleas and so on ad infinitum in the squirrel cage of American justice.

Once it is agreed openly that crime is good business, most of this folderol can be eliminated. Ample notice can be given the police that the illegal gift, say, will be made at a specified time and place. The donor, upon handing over, say, $100,000, could be arrested immediately.

The court, having received ample advance notice from the company, sits immediately, the donor pleads guilty, pays the $5,000 penalty and telephones the company a prearranged signal to raise prices immediately to recoup the costs. The entire process can be completed within 30 minutes, with all the demands of the law satisfied.

"The weed of crime bears bitter fruit," the Shadow used to say, and we believed him. He really did have the power to cloud men's minds.

Judge Admits Prostitute Pickup; Drink Problem Aired

Judge Erik Bendrodt made the statement in a written submission to a B.C. Judicial Council hearing Friday, which was also told he could die of alcohol poisoning within several months if he continues to drink.

The other judge, Chief Justice John Farris of the B.C. Court of Appeal, submitted his resignation to federal Justice Minister Otto Lang. Farris' name was found in a notebook picked up by the Vancouver police vice squad during a bawdy-house investigation.

The Canadian Judicial Council, established to deal with allegations of misconduct by judges, had begun an investigation into the Farris situation but discontinued it when the resignation was submitted.

Lang said Friday that Farris has been given an immediate leave of absence to Dec. 31.

In submitting his resignation, Farris wrote to Lang that the allegations against him, regardless of their substance, make it impossible for him to continue.

Both judges have refused comment. Provincial Attorney General Garde Gardom said preliminary investigations absolved both men of any criminal wrongdoing.

The seven-member judicial council opened its hearing Friday into whether Bendrodt, a judge since 1972, should continue to serve on the bench. The judge was silent throughout the hearing, which continues Tuesday.

The council will make recommendations to the provincial government. The result could include removal from the bench, suspension or reprimand.

A statement signed by Bendrodt's lawyer said that late on Oct. 18 the judge approached two known prostitutes outside a downtown hotel.

After a short conversation, Bendrodt and a 19-year-old black woman left in a taxi. The admission contained no other details and it was not questioned.

The hearing also heard unexpected evidence of the judge's alcohol problem.

The hearing was called by Lawrence Goulet, chief provincial court judge, after George Peden, a hotel security manager, said he saw Bendrodt with a prostitute.

Police Constable Terry Shaw testified he saw the judge a short time before the incident and Bendrodt was intoxicated.

Dr. Richard Anderson said the judge was recently placed in hospital for liver damage caused by alcohol. He said that if Bendrodt continued to drink, he would live for "a year or two or maybe months."

The judge has since attended several meetings of Alcoholics Anonymous.

Police Constable Terry Shaw testified he saw the judge a short time before the incident and Bendrodt was highly intoxicated.

"I believe Judge Bendrodt is an alcoholic," said Len Doust, a Vancouver lawyer who said that he is a reformed alcoholic. "He indicated to me that he felt he was an alcoholic."

Doust said the judge showed a strong will to survive, and was optimistic he could return to a normal life if he quits drinking.

Dr. Richard Anderson said the judge was recently placed in hospital for liver damage caused by alcohol. He said that if Bendrodt continued to drink, he would live for "a year or two or maybe months."

Thomas Dohm, a former B.C. Supreme Court judge, said Bendrodt had a very clear mind.

Another of the many judges and lawyers called as character witnesses said the incident was "blown out of all proportion by a sensation-seeking media."

RED CROSS SEEKS 2,000 DONORS

The Victoria Red Cross Society has scheduled four clinics to help meet its goal of 15,000 blood donors this year.

The society is about 2,000 donors short of the target and hopes to avoid a crisis similar to the blood shortage last summer when the bank was 500 pints low.

Clinics are scheduled at:

Red Cross House, 1046 Fort, Tuesday, 2:30-8 p.m.; Spectrum Community School, 957 West Burnside, Wednesday, 1-7 p.m.; Camosun College, Lansdowne Campus, Thursday, 9:30 a.m. -3:30 p.m.; Victoria General Hospital nurses' residence auditorium, Friday, 9:30 a.m. -3:30 p.m.

Labor Unrest Increase Forecast

VANCOUVER (CP) — Labor Minister Allan Williams says the number of days lost through labor disputes in British Columbia likely will increase in 1979 because federal anti-inflation board regulations have been lifted.

Williams told the annual general meeting of Construction Labor Relations Association that about 400,000 man-days will be lost next year, compared with only 138,000 man-days in 1977.

The 1979 estimate is vastly lower than in 1976, he said, when Canada had the second worst strike record in the western world and B.C. contributed strongly to that total.

Williams said the government in 1976 had to intervene on 10 to 12 occasions, while this has been necessary only once this year.

He said joint initiatives between unions, management and government must take place in all areas involving labor.

"People working in isolation has resulted partly in the problems we are having today," he said, citing the example of millions being spent to train people who are then forced to move away because of a sluggish economy.

Williams said his ministry is taking steps to remedy such problems in the construction industry with the appointment of Claude Haywood as construction industry co-ordinator.

Williams also said he is considering reactivating the construction industry advisory council, which has been dormant since 1975. Its areas of concern would include manpower requirements, safety, and training.

Fiery Reply to Rape Gets Probation

An Esquimalt man has been given a suspended sentence and two years probation for throwing a molotov cocktail.

William Albert Friers, 36, pleaded guilty before Judge E.J.C. Stewart to wilfully setting fire to a substance Sept. 19 which was likely to cause fire to a structure, a carport at 765 Hillside, where the Bounty Hunters motorcycle club has its headquarters.

Defence counsel Derek Brindle said Friers' common-law wife was raped by three members of the Bounty Hunters while Friers was working out of town. She was threatened by the assailants and told not to go to the police.

When Friers returned to Victoria and found out what had happened, he drank non-stop for almost two days. He didn't intend to cause property damage or hurt anyone but to start a blaze on a concrete area.

Sgt. Douglas Richardson of Victoria police said Friers told him he was extremely upset at what had happened to his common-law wife and it was his intention to give club members a scare. He believed Friers was being truthful.

The common-law wife testified she was grabbed by a motorcyclist downtown Sept. 9 and forced onto the bike and taken to the Bounty Hunters club in the early morning. After the attack, she was thrown out. She said Friers wanted to throw the molotov cocktail onto a sidewalk to scare club members.

Brindle asked Stewart to consider, in sentencing, that no damage or harm was intended, that it was an isolated and unique event, that Friers believed the rape account as did Rape Relief and her doctor, and that this was his motivation.

Crown counsel Peter Birkett, however, said Friers took the law into his own hands and much more serious damage might have occurred had the fire not been extinguished by a man living at the former auto court. He said some consideration should be given to a short term in jail.

(Friers has spent seven weeks in custody awaiting disposition of the charge).

Stewart said he didn't think the public is in too much danger because of the uniqueness of the offence.

"Certainly the creation and use of a molotov cocktail strikes terror in the hearts of ordinary law-abiding citizens," he said.

"But the explanation of the introduction of that weapon into this incident, I think, puts it in a category where one cannot take the usual serious view of such a weapon."

He noted Friers lengthy criminal record, mostly for theft, and commented that they were all offences unrelated to this charge. He also observed that Friers hadn't been given probation for 20 years.

"So this is your opportunity," he told Friers, reminding him that breach of probation is itself an offence and if he commits any offence while on probation, he can be brought back to county court for sentencing on the fire charge.

Before The Judge

An 18-year-old escaper from the Law Courts building holding cells Oct. 12 has been given an eight-month jail term by Judge Fred Green in Victoria provincial court.

Richard Layne Monnette, who was recaptured by Esquimalt police Nov. 4, pleaded guilty to escaping lawful custody.

Crown counsel Robert Mulligan told the court Monette was discovered missing by deputy sheriffs from a holding cell in which 10 other inmates at Wilkinson Road awaiting appearances in court or transportation back to the jail were also placed.

Mulligan said Monette kicked his way out of the cell and escaped through an unbarred window.

Defence counsel Brian MacKenzie said Monette had been in custody for two months awaiting disposition of other charges and was frustrated when he was denied bail in Victoria County Court.

Monette had a history of convictions which included breaking and entering on Dec. 10, 1967, in Regina for which he received a three-month sentence; assaulting a peace officer on Jan. 25, 1977, in Regina for which he received a 60-day jail term; breaking and entering on Feb. 21, 1977, in Regina for which he got another three-month sentence; mischief causing wilful damage and escaping lawful custody on May 4, 1977, in Regina for which he got three and six-month sentences and possession of stolen property on May 19, 1977, in Prince Albert for which he received six months in prison.

A 27-year-old man who breached his recognizance two days after posting a $500 peace bond was fined $300 and placed on six months probation.

Robin Bruce Horne, 2214 Sooke Road, pleaded guilty to breach of a recognizance order made Nov. 7 by Judge Harold Alder.

Mulligan said Horne was to keep the peace and be of good behavior, particularly in reference to Carla Joanne Horne, his former wife.

The court ewas told on Nov. 9 Horne and his former wife were at the Westwind International Motor Inn, sitting at separate tables.

Horne went over to the woman's table, called her a slut and hit her twice in the face as well as ripping her blouse and pushing her off a chair.

Green also ordered Horne not to have any contact with his former wife unless consent was given in writing.

Fined for drinking-driving were: John Douglas MacConnachie, 35, of 502 Craigflower, $375; David John Cooper, 18, of 3436 Plymouth, $350; William Evan Edwards, 20, of 1612 Haultain, $350 and Basil Vincent Rouault, 23, of 1003 Wurtele Place, $300.

Former Mountie Guilty of Indecent Assault

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — Joseph Latraverse, 24, a former RCMP constable in Burnaby, was found guilty in county court of indecent assault.

Latraverse was charged after a woman said he entered her house early one morning in April, 1977, and tried to kiss her.

The woman did not immediately call police, but mentioned the incident two months later to an RCMP officer who reported it to his superiors. Latraverse resigned from the force before the charges were laid.

Defence counsel G. Jack Harris said during his summation that Latraverse was at the house, but was guilty only of misjudging the situation not of assault.

Judge Bill Davies said he accepted the testimony of the woman as the more accurate version of what happened in the bedroom and that it was clear Latraverse intended to make advances.

Saanich Man Driving Too Fast, Jury Told

A 21-year-old Saanich man was driving beyond the speed limit when his car collided with another March 16 at the intersection of Quadra and Union, a Supreme Court jury was told Friday.

Stephen Anthony Turnbull is accused of criminal negligence causing the death of Kenneth Donald Joseph. He pleaded guilty Thursday to driving while his blood alcohol content was over .08 per cent.

Ian McIntosh, 20, testified he was driving north on Quadra and was following a red Datsun. Turnbull's white Plymouth Fury was coming south at about 45 to 50 miles an hour.

He said the Turnbull vehicle made a half turn and then veered to the left, jutting out and colliding with Joseph's car. He stopped his car and went to the scene and described Turnbull as stunned and woozy.

The corner, he said, is a bad one and motorists have to know what they are doing even at 30 miles an hour.

His passenger, Dean Caviness, 18, said their car was going about 30 miles an hour and he saw a white car approaching and unable to make the corner, coming across the street in front of them.

"He was going too fast to take the corner because he was on the wrong side of the road," he said, estimating the speed at roughly 50 miles an hour.

In cross-examination, he said the first time he saw the Turnbull car it was partly in its correct lane and partly in the wrong lane. He agreed the car could have been travelling at 45 or 55 miles an hour.

He heard no squealing of tires and agreed it is a sharp curve.

After the accident, Turnbull was taken to Saanich police station where breathalyzer readings of .19 were obtained.

In a statement to police, Turnbull said he left home about 6.30 to 7 p.m., picked up some car parts at two locations and stopped at a friend's. He had four or five drinks of rye and ginger ale.

"The next thing I remember is a loud crash and I was talking to a police officer and I vaguely remember being brought to the police station."

His friend, Douglas Petch, 18, said Turnbull came to his house around 7 p.m. and left around 9 p.m. He said they drank about the same amount from a 26-ounce bottle of whisky and there were about three or four ounces left in the bottle when Turnbull left, saying he was going home.

'Interim Loan:' Fraud Teller

EDMONTON (CP) — A city bank teller who told provincial court she was desperate when she took $1,700 from her employer has been placed on probation for 2½ years.

Lila Anne Orchin, 41, a mother of three, said she took the money between April 15 and Oct. 14 last year "as an interim loan" because she wanted to catch up on overdue bills for school supplies, clothing and other household expenses.

The money was returned to the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce when the accused learned auditors were coming.

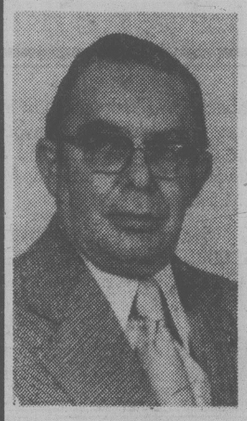
Mrs. Orchin pleaded guilty to charges of fraud.

Defence lawyer Robbie Davidson told Judge E. D. Stack the woman had been seeing a psychiatrist for four years and was under "tremendous pressure" when she transferred the money out of the bank's commission account to her own.

Although reluctant to send her to jail because of the "irreparable damage it might do to her emotional and mental health," the judge said that as bank supervisor the woman was in a position of "extraordinary trust."

After suspending the woman's sentence, Judge Stack ordered her to continue psychiatric treatment during the probation term.

SR/WA'S AWARDED



Frederick W. Everson, SR/WA — Douglas H. Harbicht, C.E.T., SR/WA

No Bail For Man

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — Bradley Archibald Reese, 48, charged with theft of about $8,000 from the Prince George Babe Ruth baseball league, was denied bail when he appeared in provincial court.

Reese, a former secretary of the league, was charged after an audit of the league's books showed cheques totalling about $8,000 collected by the league for fund raising, had not been deposited in the league's account.

Reese is also charged with theft of property valued at more than $200.

Keeping Cooler Up to Scratch

STRATFORD, Ont. (CP) — Running your auto's air conditioner for a few moments weekly during the winter months is a good idea because the procedure allows fluids to circulate, lubricating seals and fittings. And this can help avoid a leaky system next summer.

Deputy Executive Director
Royal Columbian Hospital

A challenging opportunity exists for an individual with strong management skills to assume the position of Deputy Executive Director of the Royal Columbian Hospital in New Westminster, B.C.

The hospital, which consists of approximately 475 beds, is a fully accredited acute care teaching hospital functioning as a Regional Referral Centre. It is currently undergoing a major expansion of hospital services and development as a Health Care Centre.

The person selected will have a record of successful recent experience as a senior manager with a broad background in a large-hospital setting. Applicants must have a diploma or degree in Hospital Administration, the ability to function on occasion as the Senior Executive of the Hospital, and the capacity to operate line departments and to share in the decision-making as part of the hospital's senior management team.

The salary, with an attractive fringe benefits program, will be commensurate with the senior responsibilities of the position.

N-Power Necessary?

B.C. Hydro chairman Robert Bonner says he would feel more comfortable without nuclear power but it may be necessary to meet the province's future energy needs.

Bonner said in a telephone interview from Vancouver there is a considerable problem in disposing of radioactive waste but nuclear power must be considered because coal and hydroelectricity may prove unsatisfactory.

"Many public utilities feel foreclosed from taking advantage of natural attributes of the country, namely coal and water," he said. "Groups that oppose coal burning or hydroelectric dams are driving people to consideration of nuclear (energy).

"In the face of that, we believe that the only power requirement left to us is nuclear," Bonner added.

"To be quite frank, I personally prefer not to think about it. By that I mean, personally I would feel much more comfortable without going to nuclear for an alternative because the waste problem is a considerable one.

"I'm not insensitve nor do I lack knowledge about the problems. But at some point you have to face the issue — what are the alternatives and what do I do about them?

"From the standpoint of a public utility, whether the public is in favor of nuclear power is not the question."

The Sierra Club's Western Canada chapter said last week that Bonner should be removed as chairman for what it called "essentially advocating the demise of democracy in B.C."

Bonner said such environmental groups are part of the energy problem, not the solution.

"The Sierra Club, SPEC (Canadian Scientific, Pollution and Environmental Controls Society), that whole rainbow of exotic hues doesn't surprise me. Their attitude is part of the problem not the solution of the power questions of the future."

Pet Geese Turn Pilots From Runway

PENTICTON (CP) — The Canada geese which area residents seem to have taken on as pets, are a hazard to air navigation, according to Bill Simpson, Penticton airport fire chief.

Simpson said two Boeing 737 jets have had to abort landings recently because of geese on or near the runway.

The jets had to pull sharply out of their landing approach, climb back up and make another approach when the pilots decided the geese presented a hazard to the planes, he said.

Park Land to Resort

The provincial cabinet has authorized removal of 780 hectares from Garibaldi Provincial Park, 80 kilometres north of Vancouver, for development of a comprehensive ski resort, Conservation Minister Sam Bawlf has announced.

Bawlf said the land will be added to the municipality of Whistler which will be responsible for the area's administration.

The minister said removal of the land from the park will have little impact on the recreational and conservation qualities of the park.

"In fact, it will extend the recreational utility of the land removed through the development of downhill ski facilities as part of the Blackcomb Mountain Development," he said.

Earlier the government said it had agreed to a 40-year lease with Fortress Mountain Resorts Ltd. for development of the mountain as a year-round ski resort.

The firm's $8.2 million initial project calls for a 15-lift system to serve more than 12,000 skiers a day.

Total costs have been estimated at between $25 million and $30 million.

B.C. in Cold On Gas: NDP

VANCOUVER (CP) — Ottawa has taken control of British Columbia's natural gas industry while the provincial government was asleep, Alex Macdonald, the NDP opposition's energy critic, said Sunday.

As a result, Yukon and Mackenzie Delta gas production will be favored over B.C.'s in seeking markets, the Vancouver East MLA said in a news release.

He was responding to an announcement Friday that Petro-Canada, the federal government's oil company, had acquired 48 per cent of Pacific Petroleums Ltd. for $671 million.

Macdonald said the deal meant the federal government has "got the say in 50 per cent of B.C.'s natural gas production and effective control of the pipeline carrier, Westcoast Transmission.

"Premier (Bill) Bennett should have discussed this at the federal-provincial conference instead of cockeyed plans for a new Senate.

"But the worst part is that B.C. is left out in the cold. In the future Yukon and (Mackenzie) Delta gas will be favored over B.C.'s production in finding markets.

"B.C. should have insisted on the right to consultation and participation in any deal involving our No. 2 industry, natural gas."

Macdonald also said the federal government paid $200 million too much for the shares, owned by Phillips Petroleum Co.

Deported Lebanese Suspect in Slaying

BEIRUT (UPI) — A 24-year-old Lebanese man was in police custody today on suspicion of involvement in the 1976 murder of the U.S. Ambassador to Lebanon.

Ambassador Francis E. Meloy, U.S. economic counsellor Robert Waring and their Lebanese chauffeur were kidnapped and murdered June 16, 1976, while attempting to cross from Moslem to Christian quarters of Beirut during the Lebanese civil war.

Their bodies were dumped by the side of a road in west Beirut.

A Canadian embassy spokesman in Beirut said today that the suspect, Bassam Mohammed Ferkh, had been deported from Edmonton, Alberta, and now was in Lebanese police custody.

"He was in Canada with a student visa and then it was discovered that he was not attending classes, but looking for a job," the Canadian embassy spokesman said. He said investigators then found Ferkh "allegedly had been involved in other activities, including (the case of) the U.S. ambassador."

The spokesman said Canadian police released Ferkh into the custody of Lebanese police at Beirut airport.

A Lebanese leftist organization with close ties to the radical Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine has frequently been mentioned in the Beirut press as being responsible for the killings.

The Palestine Liberation Organization strongly condemned the murders and subsequently announced it had apprehended three Lebanese who took part in them. Nothing more was heard of the fate of the three.

Beirut newspapers said Ferkh was being held pending completion of an inquiry.

They said he had been considered undesirable by the Ottawa authorities and had been suspected of maintaining relations with a radical Palestinian organization.

Needles Not Insured

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Health Insurance Plan has rejected a study group recommendation that acupuncture be an insured service under the plan, says the deputy minister of health.

Alan Backley said the ministry has accepted three other recommendations made by the government-appointed body as policy, but "at the present time we don't want to expand OHIP benefits."

The study group also recommended that research involving acupuncture be reviewed by a doctor or dentist experienced in the science, that such a person be added to the provincial grants review committee when any aspect of acupuncture is being considered, and that basic information on acupuncture be introduced to medical and dental undergraduate curricula.

The nine-member study group also proposed five guidelines for the practice of acupuncture.

Nanaimo Gun Theft Charges

VANCOUVER (CP) — Three men and a woman were charged with possession of stolen firearms Sunday following a police raid on a city home in which more than 20 rifles and shotguns were seized.

Police said the firearms recovered in Friday's raid were stolen last November from two sporting goods stores in Nanaimo.

All four were being held in custody until a court appearance scheduled for Tuesday.

Charged were Lorraine Wadsworth, 22, of Vancouver, Douglas Lynds of Nanaimo, John Michael Yates of New Westminster and Ernie Lord of Richmond.

City Couple Turns Up Safe And Sound

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — Four hunters reported missing have been found alive and safe.

Dennis and Allan Brin of Prince George, walked out of the bush just hours after a search for them was started by RCMP in the Summit Valley area, north of here.

And a Victoria couple reported overdue since Sunday on a hunting trip in the Blackwater Road area, was located in Vanderhoof, 95 kilometres west of here.

Norman Ross and his wife Janet apparently failed to inform anyone that they had extended their stay in the bush.

Punching Teacher Draws Year's Suspension

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — A Grade 10 student in this central British Columbia city has been barred from attending any school in the district for the remainder of the school year after punching a teacher three weeks ago.

"We want to make it very clear that this (physical assault) will not be tolerated," Carl Daneliuk, school district superintendent, said.

INFANT GROUPS TO GET FUNDS

The provincial government will fund an additional three community groups to sponsor infant development programs late this fall, Human Resources Minister Bill Vander Zalm has announced.

He said the three groups which will receive aid are the Comox Valley Cerebral Palsy and Neurological Association, the North Okanagan Neurological Association and the Prince George Association for the Mentally Retarded.

The program is designed to assist developmentally-delayed children under three years of age.

The ministry currently funds 13 other such programs.

CUPW Backing Would Put All Labor In Jeopardy: CLC

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Labor Congress would have endangered the entire union movement if it had backed the recent illegal strike by the Canadian Union of Postal Workers (CUPW), congress president Dennis McDermott says in a letter to affiliated unions.

In the letter, designed to clear confusion about the CLC's position, McDermott said CUPW chose to disobey a back-to-work law and court injunctions "without consultation with the CLC." He wrote:

"They have rebuked all efforts on the part of the CLC to change their suicidal direction.

"They therefore cannot reasonably expect the CLC to lend their support or that of their affiliates, to a course of action which takes us down the road of anarchy and which will, at best, leave the labor movement in total disrepute and, at worst, create nationwide havoc and the possible destruction of the movement we have all struggled so long to build."

McDermott said he sent the letter, dated Nov. 3, and the policy statement adopted by the executive council to all affiliated unions because "the speculation of the media . . . leaves the impression that the CLC had been uncaring about the plight of the postal workers and indecisive in its position regarding the dispute."

McDermott said he and other congress executives spoke often to postal union leaders and warned them "against what we considered to be absolutely suicidal confrontation with a government which had obviously set the trap."

McDermott said the position of the congress and the New Democratic Party, labor's traditional political ally, was that "when you know a trap has been set you studiously avoid walking into it with your eyes wide open."

Shortly after the postal workers ended their strike Oct. 25 under the treat of mass firings, McDermott publicly criticized the union at a news conference in Montreal.

The union has blasted both the congress and the NDP for not giving full support to the postal workers in their battle with the government.

McDermott said the refusal by the CLC to endorse CUPW's defiance of the law "does not constitute the abandonment of an affiliate."

"The CLC will continue to assist in every material way possible to bring about a successful resolve to this extremely complex situation."

The mail sorters and postal clerks, without a contract since June 30, 1977, walked off their jobs in a legal national strike Oct. 16, Parliament quickly passed a back-to-work law that took effect Oct. 19, but most postal workers stayed off work until Oct. 25.

McDermott said the congress made its views known to the postal union privately, but did not make public statements because it did not want to jeopardize CUPW's position "and did not want to provide the government with an opportunity to use the CLC's position against them."

Postmaster-General Gilles Lamontagne often quotes McDermott's public criticisms of the postal union when he is fielding questions in the Commons.

McDermott said that because of increasing pressure on the CLC to take a public stand, he scheduled a news conference for Oct. 25 but decided against announcing the CLC's opposition to the illegal strike because it was evident at that time the workers were returning to their jobs.

The policy position, which McDermott sent to affiliates along with the Nov. 3 letter, states:

"The CLC will not support CUPW in their current course of action. We will endeavor to make every effort to assist in resolving the situation wherever and whenever possible, but we will not place our resources at the disposal of CUPW, neither will we counsel our affiliates to provide substantive support."

The key question considered by the congress executives was whether the postal union, alone or with the backing of the rest of the labor movement, "can survive a massive confrontation with the government of the land under circumstances such as prevail in this instance."

"The CLC and its top leadership did not make the decision lightly. As devoted trade unionists, they were naturally reluctant to withhold support from an affiliate, but an affiliate embarking on this kind of venture has a clear-cut obligation to consult with the CLC and obtain agreement from the affiliates before expecting total unreserved support."

Nation's Finances To Front Burner

OTTAWA (CP) — MPs will spend most of this week considering economic legislation before turning their attention to Finance Minister Jean Chretien's budget Thursday evening.

The traditional fall statement of government economic plans and forecasts will be the second for Chretien.

There has been little pre-budget speculation as relations between Chretien and his provincial counterparts have cooled in recent months. The strain reached a new height early this month when the federal government announced it planned to reduce transfer payments to the provinces by $200 million.

Provincial ministers resisted this idea so vigorously that Chretien has been forced to reassess the plan.

The budget presentation will be followed by a six-day debate, beginning Friday, during which opposition spokesmen will discuss its contents.

Today was set aside for debate on a subject to be chosen by the New Democratic Party — a motion condemning the government for failing to provide an adequate grain-handling system.

Opposition MPs have been after the government for weeks about tie-ups in moving grain to export positions.

Debate also is expected to continue this week on legislation that would reduce monthly family allowance payments to $20 a child while providing an annual $200 tax credit for families with incomes of less than $18,000 annually.

The legislation is expected to receive approval in principle this week and be sent to all-party committee for detailed consideration.

Progressive Conservative and NDP MPs have indicated they will have a large number of amendments to propose to the legislation during the commitee study.

Aga Khan To Visit Vancouver

OTTAWA (CP) — The spiritual head of 15 million Ismaili Moslems was scheduled to fly to Vancouver today, following private discussions in Ottawa Sunday with Prime Minister Trudeau and leading government officials.

The Aga Khan, a 41-year-old multi-millionaire who lives in Paris, was also to visit Calgary, Edmonton, Montreal and Toronto visiting the small Canadian Ismaili Moslem community. Most of these Ismaili Moslems were expelled from Uganda by President Idi Amin in 1972.

Trudeau spent some time with the Aga Khan in the Mediterranean two years ago on the Moslem leader's yacht.

RECYCLING PROMOTED

WINNIPEG (CP) — J. Keith Russell, chairman of the Packaging Association of Canada, says his industry compares poorly with those of other countries in recycling paper. Only about 20 per cent of Canada's paper packaging material is recovered for recycling compared with 36 per cent in Switzerland and 48 per cent in the Netherlands.

Unemployment Insurance is now more responsive to conditions in British Columbia.

To make your Unemployment Insurance Program more responsive to the special needs of different areas of Canada, there are now 48 economic regions for UI. (Up to now, there were 16 regions.)

With this change, UI benefits will more accurately reflect your local employment conditions.

Each of these new 48 regions will have its own unemployment rate. This will set the length of time a claimant must have worked to become eligible for Unemployment Insurance benefits. And it will govern the length of benefits as well.

There's nothing new about the system itself–it's just being measured more finely in 48 regions, rather than 16.

The length of time a claimant must work to get UI remains the same. It varies from 10 to 14 weeks, depending on the unemployment rate where the claimant lives. And regionally-based benefits have the same maximum.

The change will only affect those whose UI claims start after November 12.

This map and the information with it will show you the new economic boundaries in your area.

Clip the map and save it for reference, if you like.

Note: Further changes to the Unemployment Insurance Program have been proposed by the Government. They will come into effect only when they have been enacted by Parliament.

Ottawa to Assist Restraint Victims

OTTAWA (CP) — The government will implement two new policies to assist public servants who lose their jobs as a result of federal spending restraint.

Treasury Board President Robert Andras said individual government departments will lose some of their staffing authority. They will be instructed to fill all openings with surplus employees from a general pool of laid-off workers wherever possible.

The only circumstance under which a department will be able to look elsewhere for staff will be when it has received special clearance from the Public Service Commission. Andras said he implemented this measure with full support of management and the government employee unions involved.

Andras also announced the government now will reimburse any employee forced to move in order to remain within the public serice. Previously only those public servants who moved at the request of management were reimbursed their moving expenses.

For Residents of SAANICH...

Information Concerning The

INDUSTRIAL PARKS REFERENDUM

The Saanich Municipal Council is submitting a referendum at the Municipal Election on Saturday, November 18th, 1978 to obtain the opinion of the Electors' on the following question:

★ NOTE: An elector may vote on any or all questions

1. Do you approve of building an industrial park in Saanich? YES ☐ NO ☐
2. Do you approve of an industrial park in the Interurban area? YES ☐ NO ☐
3. Do you approve of an industrial park in the Royal Oak area? YES ☐ NO ☐

● The Location of the Proposed Site Showing The Relative Areas Involved.

● An Artist's conception of a Modern Industrial Park

The following information is provided to assist the elector in making a decision:

1. Question: Exactly where are the two proposed sites?
2. Question: How big are the two sites expected to be?
   Answer: The Interurban Park would occupy 158 acres in total: 88 acres would be used for commercial purposes, 19 acres for roads and 51 acres for park and other green space area. The Royal Oak Park would occupy 129 acres in total: 110 acres would be used for service — commercial purposes, 10 acres for roads and 9 acres for the greenbelt perimeter.
3. Question: What is an Industrial Park?
   Answer: In the case of both proposals made here, an industrial park is an area set aside for the containment of a number of light industrial activities, set within a "green area". Often such areas are designed so that each of the separate firms have their own landscaping. There may as well be individual park or garden areas within the compound; or serving as a border. One of the major objectives in the design of an industrial park is to blend it with the surrounding area, particularly with the liberal use of landscaping. The illustration to the left is an example of a typical industrial park concept.
4. Question: What is "light industry?"
   Answer: "Light Industry" generally excludes commercial activities that might significantly upset the atmosphere of the surrounding area. As proposed, both projects would exclude heavy manufacturing or processing activities that would contribute smoke, odors or excessive noise to the environment, or that might require large and/or unattractive production facilities. The use or storage of hazardous materials would be prohibited. Typical examples of "light industry" are branch and local offices, wholesale distributors, warehouse units and small manufacturers requiring limited space and machinery. The Interurban proposal also includes provision for the outside storage of heavy equipment.
5. Question: Would other kinds of businesses be permitted to develop around the edges of these industrial parks?
   Answer: Aside from the fact that the area adjacent to both proposed sites already contains some non-residential development, the answer to the question is "no." There is no intent to rezone either area to permit unorganized commercial growth around perimeters. The parks would remain self-contained.
6. Question: What assurance is there that unacceptable types of industry won't be allowed in these parks in the future?
   Answer: Strictly controlled zoning regulations restrict the use of the land. The area would have to be rezoned to permit expanded land use.
7. Question: Is it planned to fence dangerous areas to protect children in the vicinity?
   Answer: Yes. All potentially dangerous areas would require fencing. Normally many individual businesses fence their own areas.
8. Question: Is it planned to use any of the greenbelt or park areas within the proposed sites as play areas for children?
   Answer: The green areas in both cases are of limited access and designed mainly to maintain a rural atmosphere, however, the central hill section of the Interurban site will be available to the public as a park area.
9. Question: How would these proposals be paid for?
   Answer: The methods of finance and development are different for each proposal.

   Land in the Interurban site would be purchased, serviced and developed by the Municipality on borrowed funds, with the British Columbia Development Corporation (BCDC) providing the financing and acting as development manager and sales agent. Income from the sale of land parcels would be used to retire the investment debt. Profit after payment of the debt would accrue to the Municipality, as the developer. Increased tax revenue would commence as the parcels were sold.

   The cost of the Royal Oak proposal would be carried by private developers. Initially, however, the Municipality would develop and pay for the necessary roads, sewers, park and greenbelt areas through long-term borrowing. A special annual tax levy would be applied to the property to retire this debt over a 10 to 20 year period. There would be no cost to the Municipality in this transaction. The private developers would be responsible for financing the balance of the property development. Profit realized from the eventual sale of the land parcels to individual businesses would go to the developers.

Mercenary Offers Advice

TORONTO (CP) — A mercenary who fought in the Congo, now Zaire, says there is a future in Africa for soldiers-for-hire and Canadians are good at the work.

Mike Hoare, who led the Congo's Commando 5, said that although he is not recruiting mercenaries, he is available to give would-be adventurers advice on staying alive.

But, he said, Rhodesia is dangerous because the next step is civil war between blacks and whites.

"It's bloody heart-breaking," he said. "I've seen it in Zaire and half a dozen other countries in black Africa.

"Abandoned plantations, mines and no law or order and then starvation."

Hoare was in Toronto to promote The Wild Geese, a movie about mercenaries in Africa starring Richard Burton, Richard Harris and Roger Moore.

Hoare's life has been as a soldier. He fought for the British Army in Burma and later attained the rank of colonel in the Congo (now Zaire) army when he fought for the late Moise Tshombe and later Gen. Mobutu Sese Seko in the mid-1960s.

"We pacified the Congo and we came home with honor," Hoare said. "The problems came later."

There is a future in Africa for mercenaries if they are used as an extension of the national army, he said.

"Opportunities are popping up all over the place.

"The Benguela railroad is scheduled to open this week and a professional band to protect the road and keep it open is a perfect situation for the mercenary soldier."

DEPORTATION LEAVES TEXTILE FIRM REELING

STRATFORD, Ont. (CP) — To Ken Kraven, owner of a local textile mill, mechanic Sewa Singh Chhinna is a vital and seemingly irreplaceable employee.

But Chhinna has returned to India — ordered to leave Canada by the federal immigration department — and Kraven says that without him the company will fold on Dec. 22, putting the 50 employees of Kraven Knitting Co. out of work.

Canada Manpower conducted a nationwide search and Kraven spent $8,000 on advertising to find a qualified Canadian knitting-machine mechanic to fill Chhinna's $15,000 to $25,000-a-year job, but neither could find an applicant.

Earlier this year, Chhinna, 26, was ordered to leave Canada or be deported after immigration officials ruled his marriage to a Canadian woman was a marriage of convenience.

A municipal delegation from Stratford went to Ottawa last week to ask Bud Cullen, minister of manpower and immigration, to overturn the decision barring Chhinna from returning to Canada.

Cullen has called the case complex but promised a decision by Wednesday.

Kraven said the lack of skilled Canadian tradesmen will lead to serious problems for the already troubled textile industry and other secondary manufacturers.

This is just the tip of the iceberg," he said. "People must be prepared to learn skills and trades or there's no future for secondary manufacturing in this country.

"Kids today are told they are going to be a doctor, a lawyer — skilled tradesmen aren't pushed in the school system."

Kraven's firm recently sent brochures to the United States and he said the response was unbelievable. He got orders for 1,200 sweaters but cannot fill them.

He said his firm could operate around the clock and employ three times more people if he had a skilled mechanic.

It would take five years to train someone for Chhinna's job, he said.

Mandatory Sex Crime Treatment

OTTAWA (CP) — Judges should have the power to sentence sexual offenders, particularly child molesters, to compulsory psychiatric treatment, according to Liberal MP Ursula Appolloni (York South).

Men with uncontrollable sexual impulses cause enormous "injury, pain and other evil," to children, she told the Commons.

But judges hesitate to sentence sexual offenders to jail because such prisoners may be beaten or even killed by others in jail, she said.

Time expired before Mrs. Appolloni's bill giving judges the right to send convicted sex offenders to psychiatric hospitals could come to a vote.

Horner Locks Horns

TORONTO (CP) — Industry Minister Jack Horner is deceiving Canadians into thinking Canada has a healthy trade picture by deliberately misreading our trade figures, two Science Council of Canada financial officials say.

John Orr, an economic consultant with the council, described as a "snow job" a 175-page study of Canada's trade performance since 1960, prepared by Horner's department of industry, trade and tourism.

Horner told the Canadian Exporters' Association last month that the study showed that Canada's exports of finished products has increased.

But Orr and John Shepherd, the science council's vice-chairman, said the real weakness of Canadian industry is in the area of fully-manufactured goods.

Last year, Canada imported $26-billion worth of fully-manufactured goods, but exported only $15.7 billion, Orr said.

Orr said that since 1965 the deficit has ballooned to $10 billion from $3 billion.

Horner, however, said the science council experts are talking balderdash.

"What do they know about running a business or the real business world?" Horner added.

Onassis Firm Sues Northern Telecom

MONTREAL (CP) — A $13.5-million civil suit, brought by a Panamanian firm controlled by Nicholas Onassis against the Canadian telecommunications giant Northern Telecom Ltd., begins here today in Quebec Superior Court.

The suit, filed by Albatros Naviera S.A., alleges that Northern Electric Co. Ltd. — the predecessor of Northern Telecom — "torpedoed" a contract bid to supply telephone equipment to Peru, deliberately leaving the market open to International Telephone and Telegraph Ltd. (ITT) of New York.

A brief filed by the plaintiffs with the court says the bid, worth an estimated $117 million, involved the nationalization and expansion of the telephone system in Peru, and Onassis acted as an intermediary in the negotiations.

Onassis, a first cousin of the late Greek shipping magnate Aristotle Onassis, says he was hired in 1967 by Northern Electric — which changed its name to Northern Telecom in 1976 — to open South American markets to that company.

The suit says the Peruvian military government had expressed an interest in nationalizing the ITT subsidiary, Cia. Peruana de Telefonos Ltda., and installing an additional 150,000 telephone lines in the Peruvian capital of Lima.

Onassis, an Argentinian citizen who resides here, claims in the suit that he was commissioned by Northern Electric to feel out the situation and eventually led the company to bid on tenders called in 1969.

Albatros contends that Northern Electric met the tender specifications but "intentionally and unjustifiably" demanded interest of nine per cent on any unpaid balance on the cost of financing the equipment, instead of a figure below seven per cent as stipulated in the tender.

Albatros claims it lost $4.7 million — its commission at seven per cent if the bid had been successful. The remainder of the $13.5-million damage claim includes finder's fees and damages to Albatros' reputation.

Albatros says in its complaint that an ITT hotel, built as part of the final agreement between the Peruvian government and ITT's Belgian telephone company, was furnished with a Northern Electric phone system.

'TURKEY' AN APT TERM

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — People who use the word "turkey" to describe the depths of stupidity may know what they're talking about. The bird's intelligence is among the foulest of the fowl, according to Dr. Norman Magruder, a poultry nutritionist.

"To my knowledge, the turkey is the only bird dumber than Henny Penny," Magruder says. "If Henny Penny approached a turkey and told it the sky was falling, the most likely question from the turkey would be, 'up or down?' "

Magruder, nutritionist for Cargill, a farm products company, cites the difference between the feeding instincts of a newborn chick and a newborn turkey poult.

A one- or two-day-old chick can be placed on the ground and will venture out to find something to eat or drink, he says.

Not so with turkeys.

Magruder says you virtually have to put turkey poults right on top of the feed so they'll know where and what it is.

Even that practice isn't always successful. But turkeys haven't completely lost their marbles, Magruder says.

Farmers sometimes teach young turkeys where to eat by placing bright objects in the feed bins to attract their attention. Marbles are commonly used to do the trick — but even when the birds find the feed bins they often eat the marbles instead of the feed, he adds.

Drapeau Breezes

at the thoroughness of Drapeau's victory. Most predicted the mayor's strength would be reduced.

Joyal and Duquette, newcomers to municipal politics, appeared crushed by the losses, but both pledged to remain with their respective parties. Under new municipal electoral rules both men had alternates running for council seats and could have been elected to council even if they lost the mayoralty.

But both alternates also lost.

Joyal, who represents a Montreal riding in the Commons, but who has said he will not run in the next federal election, told reporters: "It's clear that we have a responsibility to organize a new opposition and we must remain deeply committed to ensuring that Montrealers who don't support Drapeau have a voice at city hall."

U.S. Aims To Bolster N-Shield

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter, worried about the Soviet Union's growing civil defence capability, has approved plans to upgrade U.S. efforts, aiming to save as many as 140 million people in the event of nuclear war.

U.S. civil defence officials estimate that only 90 million of the country's 220 million citizens now would survive a nuclear attack.

The new plan would hope to save between one-half and two-thirds of all U.S. citizens through evacuation of metropolitan areas if nuclear war were threatened.

"The Soviet Union has had this capability for some time; we are without plans and therefore could suffer catastrophic damage," said Bardyl Tirana, U.S. civil defence director.

Officials estimated the cost of the improved program — which must win congressional approval — at $2 billion during five years. The United States now spends about $90 million annually on civil defence.

Carter gave his approval to the proposal, contained in a secret White House document, on Sept. 29, Tirana confirmed late Sunday.

He said the president and other administration officials gave the go-ahead because of a growing uneasiness over what the Russians were doing in the area of civil defence.

ASHLESS PROJECTS

Groan or grin, every day was a part of the process to which she had committed herself. In time, the book took care of itself.

So far, most of the payoffs for quitting have been immediate: new foods, new clothes, a trip. When it comes to long-term changes, of course, only you can decide.

Consider undertaking a project that will require roughly a year. It can be related to anything you like. But, it should be something you wouldn't or couldn't have done if you hadn't quit due to lack of money, time or energy.

The payoff should be specific, and along the way there should be smaller, but equally specific, payoffs.

If you've taken up the piano, plan on a recital with printed invitations. Each selection you perfect on the way is your temporary payoff.

If you're already a fair amateur pianist, plan a year ahead on sitting in with your favorite group for a couple of numbers.

With a little thought, you can come up with something that occupies your extra time, narrows your focus, ofers a series of payoffs, and fulfils you personally.

Soon, you'll no longer be thinking of the weeks you've gone without smoking. You'll be thinking of the progress you've made toward your upcoming recital. Or you'll be looking forward to your next belt in karate.

It's all in how you see it. See you, then, next Monday.

Times Staff

Next time it blows a gale or the rain floods your drains don't knock Victoria's weather.

According to the experts, Victoria's often blustery and wet weather plays a big part in keeping the city one of the cleanest in Canada in terms of air-pollution.

Bill Thomas, manager of the Pollution Control Branch's coastal region, which covers Vancouver Island, Powell River and Ocean Falls, says prevailing winds from the Strait of Juan de Fuca help keep down levels of particles that remain suspended in the air and heavier particles that return to earth in a short space of time.

"Pollution has a cyclical pattern. As an example, if you have a hot spell and a lot of traffic, the total suspended particles and dust-fall go up," he says.

"One of the best forms of treatment is rain."

Several stations which monitor pollution in our skies are located in various areas around the city, including one on the roof of Thomas' office building at 1106 Cook Street.

He and Bollans agree that Victoria also owes its comparative freedom from air pollution to two other factors: the absence of large heavy industries and massive concentrations of residential housing.

What industry there is in the area is being constantly monitored, Thomas says.

There are eight pulp mills in the branch's coastal region and Thomas says some of them are keeping an eye on what is happening at B.C. Forest Products Ltd.'s Victoria plant where $3½ million is being spent to upgrade its operation.

Three new dry scrubbers have been installed. One has been modified and the other two are in the process of being modified in an attempt to deal with the problem of extracting salt from hog fuel, preventing the salt from becoming an air pollutant.

These are a new type of scrubber, Thomas says, and if they are successful will prove a boon to others trying to comply with pollution control standards.

Bollans says all three scrubbers at B.C. Forest Products should be fully operational by the end of the year and the escape of pollutants reduced.

Modifications have also been made at the Victoria Machinery Depot and Victoria Plywood Ltd. in order to cut down pollution. At the latter plant, for instance, a new veneer dryer has been installed and another will be in place by the end of the month.

Thomas says air pollution from industry is no big problem in Victoria and no more significant than that caused by burning leaves in the fall or oil-powered furnaces.

Bollans says even in the most remote places of the world a certain amount of air pollution is unavoidable.

Regional health officer Dr. Allen Arneil agrees that air pollution is not serious here.

"We're in a very enviable position in comparison with other cities," he says.

Chilled Hikers Found

A hike in East Sooke Park turned into a chilling experience for nine people Sunday when darkness caught them on the trail and forced them to spend most the night huddled around campfires.

Colwood RCMP said today the lost hikers were located about 5:30 this morning after a 3½-hour search by five police officers and a tracking dog.

The nine were found in two groups about a half mile apart at the Beechy Head Lookout, a 35-minute walk from the nearest parking lot.

Police said Lorence and Jeana Slaght, 2098 Falkland, and their daughters Sheila and Sandra, were found together. With them was Mike Leask of Vancouver.

In a group nearby were Duncan Morrison, Janis Riddell, Christopher Stewart and Mandi Saunders, all of Victoria.

"They got lost when darkness set in," said a Colwood RCMP spokesman.

"They got fires going and just sat down to tough her out, which was the smart thing to do."

He said the hikers were cold but in good shape and none needed hospital care.

GVLRA Says CUPE Locals Stalling Talks

By MIKE HUGHES, Times Staff

The Greater Victoria Labor Relations Association has fired the first shot in the build-up to negotiations with the Canadian Union of Public Employees by accusing seven union locals of deliberately stalling.

In a letter to all employees and municipal employers, GVLRA manager Carl Anshelm says he has asked the Labor Relations Board to order the locals to begin negotiations.

Anshelm, the chief negotiator for the employers, says he sent a letter to all the locals Oct. 5 suggesting negotiations begin as soon as possible so that the 12 contracts involved can be renegotiated before the current ones expire Dec. 31.

He said the letter was acknowledged by locals representing city hall inside workers as well as employees of the Capital Regional District and the Library Board.

But no response came from the Joint Negotiating Committee (JNC), which represented six CUPE locals during the last set of negotiations.

Anshelm says he contacted the JNC spokesman Oct. 31 and was told the locals didn't have their proposals drawn up and the next meeting for that purpose would be Nov. 15.

Anshelm says meetings are being arranged with the locals representing city hallinside workers and employees at the Capital Regional District but the Library Board local has said it will not be prepared to meet until some time in December.

"The GVLRA office has every reason to believe that the JNC locals and the Library Board Local 410 are deliberately stalling," Anshelm says.

He says the GVLRA feels the "best interests of the employees, the members of the GVLRA and the communities in which we all reside and work can best be served by getting negotiations under way immediately with the objective of an early and reasonable settlement."

JNC spokesman Jim Walker, president of CUPE local 50, which represents city hall outside workers, was not available for comment.

GVLRA chairman Brian Smith, mayor of Oak Bay, said he will not comment on the letter until after a board of directors meeting Wednesday.

The JNC was set up in 1977 in response to the employers' earlier decision to bargain jointly through the GVLRA.

Originally it represented seven CUPE locals, including Greater Victoria School District inside and outside workers, city hall outside workers, CRD employees and municipal employees in Esquimalt, Oak Bay and Saanich.

However, Capital Region employees later broke away from the group and bargained on their own and Local 388, representing city hall inside workers, never did join the JNC.

Although there is to be a JNC meeting Wednesday, the purpose will be to co-ordinate contract proposals and another meeting will be needed to draw up the terms of reference for the joint bargaining unit.

Construction of apartments has resumed in the Victoria area now that the surplus of new condominiums and rental units has almost disappeared.

There were 81 apartment units started in October, the highest number in nine months. In addition 21 row housing units were started.

The expansion is encouraged by a report released by Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation that there are only 21 recently-constructed condos (built in the last six months) for sale, down from 267 at the same time last year.

Only 92 recently-constructed apartment units are for rent, down from 371 at this time in 1977.

The surplus of new single family homes has also declined.

There are 185 on the market compared with 210 at this time last year.

There were 201 housing starts in the Victoria area in October compared with 228 in October, 1977.

There were 99 single-family homes started, up from 58, but the 81 apartment units was down from 140 and there were no duplex units started in October, down from 26.

For the first 10 months there have been 1,695 housing starts, down from 2,153. The 1978 decline was mainly in apartment units where only 482 were begun, down from 2,153. There has been a boom in construction of single family homes all year, however, with 1,010 started, up from 597.

Kahl Near End Of Line

After four days trudging the railway tracks, Esquimalt MLA Lyle Kahl, nursing a sore knee he twisted on a crosstie Sunday night, hopes to be home Tuesday night, a family member said today.

Kahl, chairman of the committee to save the E&N Railway, reached Chemainus last night and rose this morning at 6:30 to continue his 139-mile hike from Courtenay to Victoria.

The trek is to publicize the committee's work to save the endangered Victoria-Courtenay CP passenger service.

Kahl wants Vancouver Islanders to help his committee by writing the Canadian Transport Commission hearing, care of the Red Lion Inn where the appeal will be heard Wednesday.

The CTC has ruled CP Rail can close down its passenger service to Courtenay Dec. 13.

Highway Lights Way to the Stars

The highways ministry is changing the street lights along the Pat Bay highway because of complaints from scientists at the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory on Little Saanich Mountain.

The scientists say the mercury lights give off rays in the ultra-violet band of light spectrum, the same band in which star light observations are made.

The change from 400-watt mercury vapor lights to 150-watt high pressure sodium fixtures will save energy as well as reduce the glare interfering with star gazing, says Highways Minister Alex Fraser.

Highways engineers say the sodium lights provide equal or better visibility on average nights and superior visibility on misty or foggy nights.

Cost of the conversion will be about $15,000 but the new lights similar to those now used on the highway near Royal Oak burn about half the electricity of the mercury lights.

About 210 lamps will be changed over the next two years between Haliburton Road and the Swartz Bay ferry terminal.

ASK THE TIMES

Q. I'm told that American author Horatio Alger, who wrote many books for boys, was onee a minister. Is that true? G.W.

A. Yes. He graduated from Harvard Divinity School and was a Unitarian Church minister for two years before resigning to go to New York and write.

Q. The Vikings settled in Britain. Did they also settle in France? B.Y.

A. Yes. In northern France, especially Normandy. They gave the place its name.

Q. Are there any vultures in Canada?' L.H.

A. Yes, the turkey buzzard. They are seen on the Gulf Islands and in East Sooke Park.

Genius at Work: The American Highway

LIFE OFFERS WORSE gifts than to be free on a good highway, in a car you trust, with no committments and no fixed time of arrival. When we set out for parts south, we were determined to wander at our own pace. If the journey of a thousand-odd miles consumed a week, so be it.

I will confess that as a chronic worrier-in-advance, I anticipate every peril of highway travel. The night before our start for California, the hazards passed in grim review.

It is in the nature of things that there's going to be at least one near miss. Blown tires. Drunks. Slippery roads. Mountain grades and failed brakes. We were also certain to flub some of our highway exits, and lose ourselves in strange cities.

Having considered these dark possibilities, I got them well out of my system. I should add that none of them came to pass. Thanks to Win, navigating in the right-hand seat with map on knee, we didn't so much as overshoot an exit.

Much of our route followed the freeways. The American freeway is one manifestation of a nation's genius. In theory at least, it offers the safest possible driving.

Superbly engineered, it swoops uphill and down. Its broad blacktop ribbons — always double and sometimes multiple — carry the traveller smoothly across the land. The median strip between opposing sets of lanes protects against collision, and the well-planned entries permit side-roads to feed the freeway without disturbing the traffic flow.

The highway-freeway bisects no towns. In fact, as a further mark of the planning genius I mentioned, it avoids towns like the plague. The towns are reached by exit roads of which the driver is given warning while at least a mile away.

We diverged to look in on a number of towns. Because they weren't overpowered and dominated by a highway passing through, they remained pleasant individual worlds, each with its own personality intact.

At Tumwater below Olympia, we wondered why Olympia Breweries' huge plant seemed to be sparsely populated.

A guide explained. The brewery had been working at full pitch for weeks to meet the emergency demand from strike-bound British Columbia. Much overtime had been rung up. Now the men were enjoying a time-off holiday.

At leafy Tilamook in Oregon, we visited a cheese-making plant which from small beginnings has grown into a major operation. We watched white-clad workmen turning over huge, rubbery, half-cured blocks of bright-yellow curd, and came away with a supply of superlatively good cheddar.

There were other towns in which the busy highway was forgotten. We dropped into them casually, and remained for pleasant hours.

Take Canyonville, deep in the Oregon mountains. Over lunch there — another excellent meal bought at a price refreshingly low after the stiff Canadian tariff — we learned how the town came to be.

"A couple of wagon-loads of pioneers made it this far from Grants Pass," an old-timer told us. "They were pretty tired by then. So they just stayed."

Or Dunsmuir, a brisk railway centre with a B.C. connection. The great Robert Dunsmuir, travelling by private car over newly-laid steel, was so captivated by the quality of the drinking water that he offered to build a fountain alongside the future station if the builders would name the place after him.

The fountain, now removed to Dunsmuir Park, still ornaments the town named for a B.C. coal baron.

But trips must end and we are back to bouncing along the villainous old Island Highway, which has neither medians nor planned entries and exits, and which straggles through rural congestion and dives into most of the towns strung along its route.

It's high time the provincial government wrote the Island Highway off as a so-so secondary road . . . left it to wander along the Island coast and turned the main task of transport over to a new, inland highway. One with median-divided lanes, I trust. And planned entries and exits.

And, of course, no houses, businesses or other contributors to rural sprawl crowding in upon it to defeat its purpose.

Such a highway is badly needed here; in fact, it can't materialize too soon.

Stamps Expecting Tougher Eskimos

CALGARY (CP) — Calgary Stampeders tangle with Edmonton Eskimos in the Alberta capital Saturday—the first time the two teams have met in the Western Football Conference final.

It will likely be a physical game, several Stampeders said Sunday, moments after defeating Winnipeg Blue Bombers 38-4 in the semi-final.

"Saturday's game will be a knock-out, drag-out affair, believe me," said Calgary offensive guard Harold Holton.

Tom Forzani, who scored two of Calgary's touchdowns Sunday, agreed, adding he felt Calgary should have won the two games the team tied with Edmonton earlier this year. The Stampeders finished the regular season one point behind the Eskimos.

The Stampeders swept to their lopsided win with touchdowns from Forzani, Willie Burden with two, and James Sykes. Cyril McFall kicked a 40-yard field goal and converted all five Calgary touchdowns.

Bernie Ruoff accounted for all of Winnipeg's scoring with a 52-yard field goal and a 39-yard single.

Burden's touchdowns came on one-yard runs while Sykes scampered 67 yards for his six-pointer. Forzani caught an 11-yard pass from starter John Hufnagel and a 26-yard pass from rookie Craig Juntunen for his touchdowns.

Hufnagel returned to action last week after stretching ligaments in his right thumb.

"I can only move my hand so far and it's showing in the accuracy of my passes," he said. "I'm getting some zip but not much accuracy."

Forzani caught a Hufnagel pass deep in the Winnipeg zone but fumbled when hit by Vince Phason. Sykes scooped it up and carried it to the one, setting up Burden's touchdown.

Sykes's touchdown was set up after Calgary conceded the single. He broke loose with help from offensive tackle Tom Humphrey and receiver Kelvin Kirk, who opened a small hole on the right side of the Winnipeg defence.

Bomber quarterback Harry Knight was good on 13 of 31 attempts for 96 yards. He also had three passes picked off.

Hufnagel was good on eight of 18 passes for 87 yards and had one intercepted. Jim Washington led the Winnipeg rushing with 16 carries for 81 yards while Joe Poplawski led the Winnipeg receivers with three completions for 25 yards.

Sykes led Calgary rushers with 140 yards on 18 carries while Forzani led receivers on four completions for 64 yards.

Holton had a bruised ankle, centre Larry Tittley a bruised shin, receiver Bob Viccars a pulled calf muscle, defensive tackle Andy Jonassen a bruised shoulder and Willie Armstead a charley horse. All will return for Saturday's game.

Jack Gotta, Stampeder head coach and general manager, said the lack of Ralph Brock, out with an injury suffered the previous week, hurt the Bombers' offensive game.

Winnipeg coach Ray Jauch was disappointed and Knight admitted he was unable to read the Calgary defences as well as he should have.

Green Leads Als To Eastern Final

MONTREAL (CP) — David Green ran for three touchdowns and a total of 144 yards Saturday, leading Montreal Alouettes past Hamilton Tiger-Cats 35-20 and into the Canadian Football League's Eastern Conference final next Sunday against Ottawa Rough Riders.

How much the decisive and expected semi-final victory will cost the defending Grey Cup champions in Ottawa remains to be seen, however. Montreal lost defensive back and punt returner Dickie Harris with a broken arm, and special team member Jerry Friesen, a backup linebacker, is doubtful with a sore leg.

"We were tired—it was a really hard game," said Alouettes head coach Joe Scannella of a late Ticats surge that made an utter rout look somewhat more respectable. "I had to worry whether we could get up for the game. I always have that fear as to whether we'll be able to get the guys up."

But the Alouettes came out playing tough defence, turning an interception and a blocked punt into two first-quarter touchdowns for an early 14-0 lead before 37,017, smallest football crowd ever at Olympic Stadium.

Apart from Green's three majors on runs of 34, eight and two yards, starting quarterback Joe Barnes rambled on a 19-yard TD run and hit wide receiver Bob Gaddis on a 17-yard pass-and-run play for a touchdown. Don Sweet kicked five converts.

The Tiger-Cats, who trailed 28-0 midway through the third quarter, got a 102-yard TD run with a fumble recovery by linebacker Ben Zambiasi, a rookie-of-the-year candidate, and a pair of touchdown passes by second-string quarterback Roy Henry to David Quehl and Leif Pettersen. Neil Lumsden kicked two converts, and a two-point conversion pass by Henry went incomplete.

Canucks Handed a Lesson In Puck Control by Flyers

Times News Services

Philadelphia Flyers showed Vancouver Canucks on Sunday night how hard it is to win National Hockey League games without puck control.

The Flyers, still smarting from a 5-2 loss to the Canucks two weeks ago at the Spectrum, shouldered aside the Canucks' attempt at their methodical checking and positional play and took the puck and the game away from the Canucks at Vancouver's Pacific Coliseum.

Digging by the Flyers was so effective that Philadelphia goalie Bernie Parent had to make only 14 saves in the 4-0 victory that extended the Canucks' winless streak at home to four games.

Vancouver coach Harry Neale said his club, playing its seventh game in 12 nights, was frustrated every second by the typical Flyers checking game.

"We didn't have the poise or the game plan or team fight. The harder we worked the worse it got until we couldn't even make 10-foot passes. We played a team that outmanned us physically."

Neale said the Flyers took 75 per cent of the loose pucks and when that happens, you don't have a team effort.

The Flyers limited the Canucks to four shots on Parent in the first period while Don Saleski gave them a 1-0 lead by scoring one of three goals that resulted from Philadelphia winning a face-off in the Vancouver end.

Drew Callander scored the only goal of the second period as the Philadelphia checking limited the Canucks to one shot on goal during the 54 seconds Vancouver had a two-man advantage.

Bill Barber and Paul Evans, who set up Saleski's goal, scored in a 42-second span in the third period as the Flyers finished the game with 36 shots on Vancouver goalie Gary Bromley.

In other games New York Islanders downed New York Rangers 5-3, Los Angeles Kings defeated Chicago Black Hawks 4-1 and Boston Bruins tied Buffalo Sabres 4-4.

On Saturday, Rangers edged Pittsburgh Penguins 2-1, the Islanders defeated Atlanta Flames 4-2, Buffalo shut out Washington Capitals 2-0, Los Angeles whipped Minnesota North Stars 8-1, Detroit Red Wings upset Boston 7-1, Montreal Canadiens shaded Toronto Maple Leafs 3-2 and St. Louis Blues outscored Colorado Rockies 5-3.

New York Rangers promised their fans plenty of entertaining Swedish-style hockey when they signed Ulf Nilsson and Anders Hedberg in a multi-million-dollar deal last summer. But the two celebrated Swedes were upstaged by one of their countrymen at Madison Square Garden.

Stefan Persson, a defenceman who was the Islanders' 13th choice in the 1974 amateur draft and didn't make his National Hockey League debut until last season, scored a goal and set up two others as the Islanders downed the Rangers for their fourth consecutive victory.

Persson's 30-foot blast on a power play was matched by Ranger defenceman Ron Greschner in the first period at New York but the Rangers, who had bombarded Islander goaltender Billy Smith in the opening frame, sagged after Persson's shot from the blue line was tipped in by Clark Gillies and the Swedish defender set up Bob Bourne to give his team a 4-2 lead.

WATSON'S CAREER APPEARS FINISHED

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Joe Watson, the popular former Philadelphia Flyers defencemen, underwent surgery Sunday morning to repair severe damage to his right knee and his National Hockey League career apparently is finished.

Watson, 35, playing this season with Colorado Rockies, slammed into the boards in a game at St. Louis on Saturday night and the impact shattered the knee. A second operation is planned Tuesday.

It is believed Watson will remain in the hospital, his leg in traction, for the next three months.

Nebraska Pulls Major Upset

By The Associated Press

Nebraska ended six years of frustration against top-ranked Oklahoma, while No. 2 Penn State and No. 3 Alabama kept rolling in Saturday's U.S. college football games.

The fourth-ranked Cornhuskers upset the No. 1 U.S. college team 17-14 on short touchdown runs by Rick Berns and I. M. Hipp, and Billy Todd's tie-breaking, 24-yard field goal with 11:51 to play.

Nebraska's victory marked the first time the Cornhuskers had beaten their Big Eight arch-rivals since 1971.

Penn State, meanwhile, moved into the driver's seat for No. 1 ranking with a 19-10 decision over North Carolina State behind Matt Bahr's four field goals. It was the Nittany Lions' 18th consecutive victory.

Alabama blasted No. 10 LSU 31-10 for its 16th consecutive Southeastern Conference victory behind two touchdown runs by Major Oglivie and a TD pass from Jeff Rutledge.

No. 8 Houston defeated No. 6 Texas 10-7 behind the quarterbacking of Danny Davis and a field goal by Kenny Hatfield.

No. 9 UCLA was shocked by Oregon State 15-13 as the Beavers' Kieron Walford kicked a 36-yard field goal with 3:08 left in the game.

Proceviat Fires Four

Saanich Braves defeated Esquimalt Legion Blues 9-7 at the Sports Centre.

Proceviat scored four times for Blues, boosting his total to 30 in 13 games. Kelly Bryant, Ron Brooks and Terry Parsons also scored for Esquimalt while Ed Beauchemin (3), Wane Himmelman, Scott Connors, Dave Prince, Tracy Patterson, Murray McLaren and Bob Carey connected for the winners.

All-Blacks Down Wales

CARDIFF — New Zealand's touring All Blacks staged a remarkable second-half recovery Saturday to defeat Wales 13-12 in a bruising Rugby Union battle.

Trailing 12-0 after four penalty goals by Wales in the opening half, the New Zealanders tightened their defences and pulled out the exciting triumph on a try and three penalty goals, the last one producing the winning points, by Brian McKechnie, who came on in a substitute's role.

Cowboys Are Back In Rout of Pack

By The Associated Press

Dallas Cowboys have returned to Super Bowl form—but whether they've done it in time to return to the Super Bowl is another matter.

"It was the best we've played all year, but we've got to keep playing like this or we won't make the playoffs," Coach Tom Landry said Sunday after Tony Dorsett, Robert Newhouse, Roger Staubach and Billy Joe DuPree teamed up to mangle Green Bay Packers 42-14.

Dorsett, in the doghouse in recent weeks, rushed for 149 yards and two touchdowns, Newhouse ran for 101 yards and two more touchdowns and Staubach passed to DuPree for another two scores.

In the rest of the National Football League, it was Los Angeles 10 Pittsburgh 7, Houston 26 New England 23, San Diego 29 Kansas City 23 in overtime, Miami 25 Buffalo 24, Minnesota 17 Chicago 14, Atlanta 20 New Orleans 17, Baltimore 17 Seattle 14, Philadelphia 17 New York Jets 9, Detroit 34 Tampa Bay 23, St. Louis 16 San Francisco 10, Denver 19 Cleveland 7 and Washington 16 New York Giants 13 in overtime.

Dallas, 7-4, still trails Washington by one game in the National Conference East. The Packers, also 7-4, are tied with Minnesota for first in the NFC Central.

The Cowboys had lost to Minnesota and Miami the last two games, looking lacklustre and sometimes downright incompetent. But they put everything together against Green Bay.

Pat Haden of the Rams, harassed most of the night by Pittsburgh's defence and aware that his wife, Cindy, was in the hospital about to give birth to their first child, beat the pressure with less than 5½ minutes to play, whipping a game-winning 10-yard scoring pass to Willie Miller.

When just about everyone had given up—maybe even a couple of Oilers—Houston quarterback Dan Pastorini still had fire in his eye. New England's early 23-0 lead meant nothing to him as the Oilers came from behind for a 26-23 victory.

Bert Jones heaved a 12-yard TD pass to Glenn Doughty in the first quarter and Ron Lee scored on a 14-yard run in the final quarter in the Colts' victory over Seattle Seahawks. Lee's run capped a short drive directed by Mike Kirkland with 8:20 to play after Bert Jones reinjured his shoulder.

Delvin Williams of Miami rushed for 144 yards, including TD jaunts of 25 and 26 yards, en route to surpassing the 1,000-yard mark and remaining the league's leading ground-gainer.

The victory was the Dolphins' 18th in a row over Buffalo, smashing a 32-year-old NFL record set by Green Bay over the 1937-46 Chicago Cardinals.

Chuck Foreman scored twice on one-yard dives and Fred McNeill blocked Bob Thomas' 39-yard field goal attempt in the fourth quarter to hand Chicago Bears their eighth straight loss. NFC rushing leader Walter Payton gained 127 yards, 111 in the second half, to go over the 1,000-yard mark.

Jim Turner kicked seven points for Denver to raise his career total to 1,350, moving him past former Cleveland kicking star Lou Groza into fourth place in all-time NFL scoring.

Mark Moseley's third field goal, a 35-yarder with 8:32 gone in overtime, carried the Redskins past the Giants. Moseley, who also kicked field goals of 47 and 33 yards, missed a 35-yard attempt about 3½ minutes before hitting the winner.

United Humbled By League Trailer

LONDON (Reuter) — Manchester United, a soccer club with a rich and illustrious tradition, slumped to one of the most humiliating defeats of its history when United lost 5-1 away to last place Birmingham City in English Division I action Saturday.

A single goal defeat might have been forgivable. Birmingham had gone 13 games without a win and was due for a change of luck, but United had little excuse for losing so badly.

"We are all sick about the result," said manager Dave Sexton, who took charge of United last year following the controversial firing of Tommy Docherty.

Birmingham manager Jim Smith was delighted with the result. Eyebrows were raised when he signed Argentine World Cup defender Alberto Tarantini, and questions were asked last week when he paid a large fee for Division III striker Alan Buckley from Walsall.

Buckley scored twice against United on his home debut, while the fluid skills of Tarantini delighted the crowd and bemused United.

Meanwhile, the leading five teams all won. Liverpool was back to its impressive best against Londoners Queen's Park Rangers.

Liverpool's lead is still two points, with everton, West Bromwich Albion, Nottingham Forest and Arsenal in hot pursuit.

Forest stretched its unbeaten run of League games to 40 with a 3-1 win over Tottenham Hotspur in London.

Vikes Can't Crack Bison Defence

Times News Services

MONTREAL — University of Victoria Vikings did everthing but break an air-tight Manitoba Bison defence in the second half Sunday and ended up losing 2-0 in the final of the Canadian Intercollegiate Athletic Union soccer championships.

Vikings, winners of the Canada West University Athletic Association title this year, didn't allow a shot on goalkeeper Ted Van Waes over the final 45 minutes but were unable to catch up.

Vikings had some consolation, however, as their coach, Brian Hughes, was named CIAU coach of the year and has accepted an offer to guide the Canadian soccer team in the World Student Games next Spring in Mexico City. As such, he'll be in charge of selecting and training a team in Cuba during a two-week period over the Christmas break.

UVic also had two players selected to the CIAU national all-stars, Van Waes in goal and defender Danny Lomas, who was also named the tournament's outstanding player.

Bisons, well-rested after playing only once to reach the final (they drew a bye earlier in the tournament) got goals Sunday from Doug Leeies in the 23rd minute of the first half and Dave Dulko in the 36th minute. Dulko scored by intercepting a pass from defender Barry Jones back to Van Waes.

Vikings, meanwhile, survived a roughly-played semi-final Saturday against Laurentian Voyageurs of Sudbury, winning 2-0 on goals by Lomas, who headed home a corner kick 16 minutes into the second half, and Stu Holroyd, who connected on a sharp-angled shot two minutes later.

UVic reached the semi-final with a 1-0 opening-round win against Mount Allison Mounties of Sackville, N.B., on a goal by Dave Secco that came on a spectacular passing play involving Les Malbon, Steve Kisic, Jim Palmer and Mark Yawney.

Vikings were without two regulars in the tournament. High-scoring John Leier remained in hospital in Victoria with a kidney injury suffered in a Vancouver Island League game last weekend while Peter Zachary took ill during the trip to Montreal.

In Sunday's consolation final, Laurentian downed McGill Redmen of Montreal 2-0. McGill, a 2-1 first-round loser to Concordia, beat Mount Allison 1-0 in consolation play Saturday.

Named with Van Waes and Lomas to the first-ever all-star team selected by the CIAU Soccer Coaches' Association were Graham Fishburne of Alberta Golden Bears of Edmonton, Leeies and Chris Alaka of Manitoba, Oscar Albuquerque of Laurentian, Mike Burke of York Yeomen of Toronto, Walmir Dasilva and Guarica Nunes of McGill and Ross Webb and Mario Niguerio of St. Mary's Huskies of Halifax.

It marked the third time in four years the Vikings, coached for the past five years by Hughes and assistant George Smith, reached the national college final. They won the title in 1975 as the host school — UVic's only CIAU team championship — but lost the following year at Waterloo, Ont.

COUGARS IMPRESSIVE IN 3-1 WIN OVER BRUINS

Complete Team Effort

By ERNIE FEDORUK
Times Staff

Statistics don't always tell the truth but Saturday's territorial indicator was right on because Victoria Cougars' 3-1 victory over New Westminster Bruins has to rank as one of the most complete team efforts recorded in the Western Hockey League this season.

Yes, New Westminster scored a goal. That, however, was the Bruins' only accomplishment as the Cougars, going from the opening whistle to the final one, came up with an overpowering skating and back-checking performance to protect their hold on first place in the Western Division.

Despite the New Westminster goal, Victoria's play was much more superior than, for example, in the Cougars' 9-0 victory over Medicine Hat Tigers at Memorial Arena earlier in the week.

Cougars out-shot the defending league champions 53-13 over the route, and that included a 20-1 edge in the final period. And while shots-on-goal can sometimes be questioned, Saturday's firing statistic pretty well told the story.

"I've never seen a more complete team effort," said Victoria goaltender Steve Amiss. The redhead, despite an apparent lack of work, still came up with two or three difficult saves, including a leg-kick effort in the first period that he considers "was the toughest save I've made all season."

Todd Morton, Scott Lang and Tony Feltrin anchored a steady Victoria defence but it was the forwards who controlled the game with their skating and back-checking.

"It makes it easy," admitted Victoria coach Jack Shupe, "when you get that good back-checking. The Bruins weren't able to carry the puck into our zone. They had to drive it in, and it makes a difference when you carry the puck or dump it in."

Morton, who suffered a skate cut to his mouth and cheek in the second period but returned to play after a stitching job, had one of his best games as a Cougar.

George Fritz, Gary Lupul and Brad Palmer scored Victoria's goals after Dave Orleski opened the scoring on New Westminster's first shot at 10:43 of the opening period. It was all Victoria thereafter and only Richard Martens' smart netminding kept the Cougars from making it a rout.

If there was any flaw in the Victoria game, it was the lack of finish and some erratic shooting.

The 3,079 fans found extra enjoyment in the speed of the game. With referee Bob Hall calling only 11 minors, six against the Bruins, the game took only two hours and five minutes to play. It opened up in whirlwind fashion with only one whistle stopping play in the first 7½ minutes.

The pressing Hawks, who have eight games in hand, remained two points behind Victoria by trouncing Medicine Hat Tigers 12-2 in another Saturday game.

Perry Turnbull continued his hot sniping for the Hawks, who unleashed a total of 70 shots at Medicine Hat goaltender Kelly Hrudey. Turnbull scored three times and now has counted 11 goals in his last three games.

FERGUSON TAKES OVER

EDMONTON (CP) — Norm Ferguson has become the new coach of Edmonton Oil Kings of the Western Hockey League.

Ferguson, who played professional hockey with Oakland Seals of the National League and with New York Raiders and San Diego Mariners of the World Hockey Association, takes over from Wayne Tennant, who requested the team find a replacement.

Tennant, who becomes chief scout, had made it clear when he accepted the coaching position that the appointment was conditional. He wanted to see whether he could be a coach on a part-time basis and afford the time away from his business and family. He decided he could not.

Edmonton general manager Bill Hunter said Tennant will be given the opportunity to coach the team next season, if he chooses to do so on a full-time basis.

Champ Leads Way to Finals

Four Victoria rinks, two from up-Island and two from Vancouver, including the defending champion, were matched in the final round of the ninth annual $9,400 cash bonspiel at Playland Curling Club today.

The city rinks are skipped by Steve Skillings and Brad Clarke of Victoria Curling Club and Bruce Coulter and Bart Longmore of Playland.

The other Island finalists are Dennis Viklund of Comox and Ivan Carlisle of Port Alberni while the two Vancouver rinks are skipped by Roy Vinthers and defending champion Brent Giles.

Skillings and Giles qualified through "A" event, Skillings defeating Barry Harvey 8-6 in one final Saturday and Giles downing Longmore 9-3 in the other.

Viklund defeated Longmore 5-3 in a "B" event final Sunday with Clarke gaining the other berth from "B" with a 6-5 win over Monte Olson of Abbotsford.

Longmore came back from those two losses to qualify through "C" with a victory over Trev Fisher of New Westminster, 8-5.

The others to qualify out of "C" were Coulter, 5-4 over Olson; Vinthers, 7-5 over Max Gordon of Vancouver; and Carlisle, an 8-4 winner over Gary Leibel of Victoria Club.

Winner of the event will receive $4,000, with $2,000 to the runnerup, $1,000 to the third-place finisher and $800 to the fourth. Other rinks which qualified for the final round will receive $400.

Belmont Sweeps Swimming Honors

A balanced Belmont team swept both the Victoria district and Vancouver Island titles in the combined high school swimming championships in the Crystal Garden Pool on Friday.

Coached by Stan Powell, Belmont dominated both "A" and "B" flights to amass 366 points to beat out St. Michael's University School for the city team championship by 30 points. Mt. Douglas finished third with 234 points.

Belmont's strength in the "A" competition help the school take the Island title with 309 points, a distant 92 ahead of G.P. Vanier of Courtenay.

Mt. Doug again finished third and the top three Island teams qualified for the British Columbia championships to be held in New Westminster Dec. 8-9.

Victoria and district: 1. Belmont 366; 2. St. Michael's 236; 3. Mt. Douglas 234; 4. Oak Bay 226; 5. Claremont 170; 6. Dunsmuir 125; 7. Victoria High 94; 8. Esquimalt 78; 9. Parklands 72; 10. Stelly's 66; 11. St. Margaret's 33; 12. Spectrum 32.

Island's top ten: 1. Belmont 309; 2. G.P. Vanier 217; 3. Mt. Douglas 183; 4. Oak Bay 154; 5. Stelly's 148; 6. Claremont 128; 7. Brentwood 123; 8. Max Cameron (Campbell River) and St. Michael's (tie) 122; 10. Nanaimo 100.

Victorians Sweep Racquetball Berths

Victorians swept all five berths on the zone team that will represent Vancouver Island in racquetball at the inaugural British Columbia Winter Games in Kamloops March 1-4.

Rockies' Boss Doesn't Like Appeal Odds

DENVER (AP) — Colorado Rockies have withdrawn their appeal of the 15-game suspension levied against winger Wilf Paiement by the National Hockey League.

Club president Armand Pohan announced the decision to withdraw the appeal.

Pohan said it was apparent an appeal would be "an act of futility" because "a substantial number of governors are unwilling to overrule a disciplinary decision of the (NHL) president or executive vice president under any circumstances."

In a wire to NHL president John Ziegler, Pohan suggested that Ziegler or the board of governors appoint a special committee to review the league's disciplinary procedures "before the next player and next franchise is sacrificed on the altar of piety after a trial in the media."

Paiement was suspended for striking Detroit's Dennis Polonich with his stick in an Oct. 25 game in Detroit.

Thoroughbred racing came to a close at Sandown Park today on the 16th day of what originally was scheduled to be a 17-day meeting and with the future of the sport here slightly in doubt.

Directors of the Capital City Turf Club, operators of the Sandown meeting for the past four years, although worried about smaller crowds and a lower mutuel handle than in the past, have indicated, with reservations, that they plan to operate again next year.

However, president George Harknett has warned that there is no way the CCTC could operate a meeting such as this again unless it receives more than the 10½ per cent from the mutuels that it now receives.

The CCTC has a brief before the government at the present time requesting a 2 per cent rebate in the government's 8 per cent mutuel take for this meeting. The B.C. Racing Commission, which studied the situation here, has recommended to the government that the rebate request be granted.

If it is allowed then the purse-to-play figures would balance, or nearly so, and the horsemen would have the minimum purse of $1,200 restored to them. Earlier in the meeting, they agreed to drop to an $1,100 minimum because of declining attendance and mutuel play.

And there the financial matter rests for the time being as CCTC directors don't anticipate hearing from the government right away.

Saturday, on the second-to-last day, the downtrend continued from previous years. The Remembrance Day holiday crowd on a beautiful fall afternoon was a disappointing 4,053 and the mutuel handle correspondingly low at $232,057.

Normally in the past a $300,000 play would have been expected.

And there were surprises on the track as well, particularly in the Vancouver Island championship over one mile and 1/16.

Just before the race, the favored and high weighted Saucy Verdict, who had won the Colonist and Times Handicaps earlier, was declared out of the race because of an attack of colic. That left the four-year-old dark brown or bay gelding Kimbob as the prohibitive choice at even money.

But Kimbob, who has had nothing but problems here this year, continued to have misfortune. He got left at the post.

With no Saucy Verdict to set the pace, that task fell to longshot Fleet Avalanza and the lighly-regarded Forty Jewels. And when Fleet Avalanza finally gave way, Forty Jewels took over, opened up by two, was never really threatened thereafter and was a clear two-length winner at the finish over Kimbob.

A four-year old chestnut gelding, Forty Jewels was ridden by Garth Carter, and trained by William Gray for the Bardoma Stable and Bardic Stable. Forty Jewels, who a week ago had won a $4,000 claimer at Sandown, returned $21.30, $7.40 and $3.60.

For Carter it was sort of a milestone as well. A former riding champion here in 1975, Carter had been winless before riding Forty Jewels a week ago. Then he came right back in the Vancouver Island Derby that same day to ride the filly Will She Be Frisky to victory. Saturday, he made it two-for-two in features and today had a chance to make it three-for-three on Will She Be Frisky in the Yellow Ribbon Handicap, one of the closing-day features.

Kimbob made up a lot of ground but he was far out of it early and it cost him dearly in the late run.

Otherwise, jockey Ken Street got his first victory on Foul Play ($13.80) in the first race and jockey Mark Walker scored three victories to take the jockey leadership away from Travis Wilkinson, who was blanked. Walker now leads by two.

Walker was up on Bud N Wendy ($8.40) in the second, Tenelta ($6.70) in the fifth and Big Midget ($4.50) in the eighth.

Buckaroos Clip Blades

DUNCAN — Western Homes Buckaroos tripped Duncan Silver Park Blades 6-3 in a South Island Big Six Intermediate Hockey League game here Sunday.

Bob McInnis set the pace for Bucks with two goals, Stan Alstad scored once and had four assists and Bill Pettinger scored one and helped on three. Other single tallies were contributed by Murray Kennett and Ross Swanton.

Walt's Big Day

VANCOUVER (CP) — Kicker Walter Passaglia scored two touchdowns, booted seven converts, and led all rushers and receivers Saturday night as Simon Fraser University Clansmen scored a 49-19 football victory over Western Montana College Bulldogs.

Title Retained

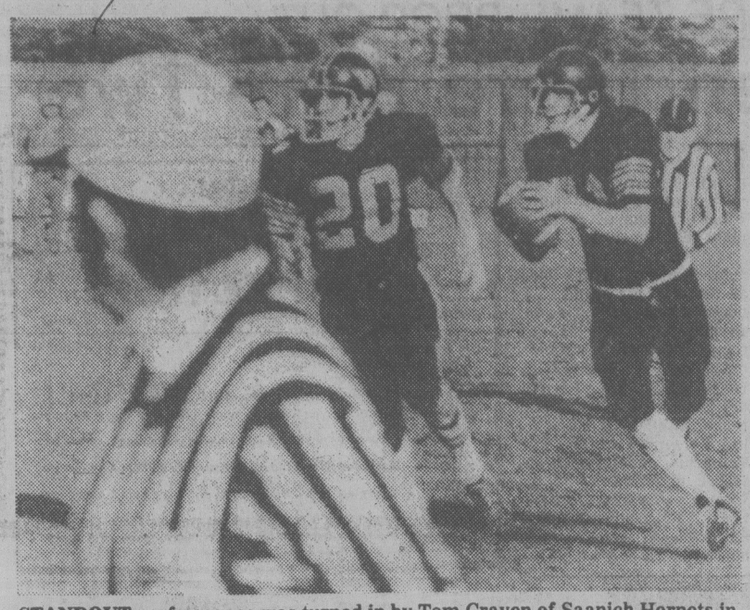
Hornets Win Second Crown



STANDOUT performance was turned in by Tom Craven of Saanich Hornets in Vancouver Island Junior "B" Football League championship final Sunday. Craven (21), shown heading downfield on this play with blocker Tom Graham (20) leading the way, scored two touchdowns as Hornets defeated Cowichan Timbermen 24-20. Hornets meet a Vancouver club for B.C. championship here next Sunday. (Times photo by Irving Strickland).

Saanich Hornets captured the Vancouver Island Juvenile Football League championship Sunday with a 24-20 victory over Cowichan Timbermen at Royal Athletic Park.

It was the second straight playoff championship for Hornets who earlier had captured their second consecutive league title.

Hornets will meet Richmond Raiders, who topped Vancouver Meralomas 32-17 in the Vancouver League final the same day, for the B.C.championship next Sunday at Athletic Park at 1 p.m.

Dean Craven had two touchdowns and Russ Hafer one for the Hornets. Kim Munro kicked a field goal and three converts.

Craven got both his the long way. He scored on a 70-yard option run from quarterback Greg Frame in the first quarter and in the fourth quarter he went 60 yards up the middle on a draw.

Hafer scored on a 60-yard pass interception in the second quarter for Hornets to give them a 14-0 lead but Cowichan stormed back to bring the score to 14-12 at the half. Taylor scored on a pass deflected by safety Russ Hafer of Hornets while Neilson pulled a 15-yard quarterback sneak for Cowichan's second major.

In the fourth quarter Craven exploded for his 60-yard scamper. But still the Timbermen weren't through.

Outstanding players for Hornets were Craven, Rick Morgan and Reid Anderson on offence and Russ Justice and, Russ Hafer and Glen Campbell on defence. For Cowichan, Neilson at quarterback was a standout while defensively the honors went to Bill Kusters and Watt.

Rams Topple Vamps

Rams will face another Mainland team next weekend in Vancouver.

Chris Young set the pace for Rams, who led 14-8 at half time, with three touchdowns. Gordy Henry kicked two converts.

Terry Jones scored a touchdown and added a single for Vampires while Scott Tuttle scored the other TD and Dave Morrison kicked two converts.

Hockey Leaders Roll On

Mariners, Oak Bay and UVic maintained their one-two-three status atop the first division of the Vancouver Island Women's Field Hockey Association with victories over lower-ranked rivals Saturday.

Mariners tripped Spartans 3-1 at Beacon Hill Park, Oak Bay topped Cowichan 4-2 in Duncan and UVic trounced Rebels 11-0 at UVic.

In second division matches, Castaways handed leading Sanderlings their first loss of the season 4-3 at Margaret Jenkins School. Hobbits edged Rebels Gold 1-0 at Parkland High School, Cowichan II topped Rebels Red 4-1 at Lansdowne Junior High School and Sailors slipped past Evergreens 2-1 at Windsor Park.

THREE MORE TEAMS DROP OUT

WTT . . . Then There Were Two

Times News Services

World Team Tennis has lost three more teams and is left with only two of the 10 clubs that finished the season, the New York Times says in a story in Sunday's edition.

WTT commissioner Earl (Butch) Buchholz is quoted in as saying that Seattle, New Orleans and Anaheim are the latest to drop out.

Buchholz, speaking from his home in St. Louis, said that only the Golden State and Phoenix franchises had put up letters of credit for next season.

The WTT commissioner, however, is reported to be optimistic about keeping the league going next year.

"We've accumulated a lot of people with some major or minor interest in getting a new franchise," he said in the interview.

The Fare Facts.

We can always give you a fair fare. Often we can give you a cheap fare. And sometimes, we can give you the cheapest fare. Here are the facts on the most popular ones.

Our regular economy fare.
It's not called economy for nothing. And it gives you the most flexibility. You can purchase your ticket weeks in advance, or minutes before flight time. And, of course, you have our whole schedule of flights to choose from, to anywhere we fly.

Our Charter Class Fare.
Most often, it's the cheapest way to get to any Air Canada destination in Canada or the United States that's over 400 miles away, and to our major European cities. However, you still enjoy the advantages of flying on regularly-scheduled flights. You can plan on saving up to 58% of our regular economy fare. Seats are limited and there are conditions of travel such as advance purchase and length of stay requirements, however at these prices it's well worth it.

If you're visiting the States, you'll enjoy maximum savings if you plan to travel mid-week, as there is a small additional premium for flights departing between noon Friday and midnight Sunday.

Whatever fare you choose, Air Canada offers extras like our car rental and hotel reservation services.

Ask your travel agent to book you on an Air Canada flight. Or call us direct at 382-9242.

Europe
London (from Vancouver)	$399	—
Frankfurt (from Vancouver)	$469	—

Tide Edges Reps in Cup Opener

Crimson Tide, the Vancouver Island Rugby Union representative side, dominated early exchanges Sunday and finished up by nudging Vancouver Reps 14-13 at the University of Victoria in the opening match of the annual McKechnie Cup series.

Peter Kilshaw and Paul Mulholm scored tries and Murray Allen booted a penalty goal to give Tide an 11-3 advantage at half time.

Ron White replied for Vancouver with a penalty goal.

After the break, Vancouver turned on the pressure in an attempt to overcome the deficit, but the Island defenders managed to weather the storm.

Rick Bourne and B. Nicholson were able to break through for Vancouver tries and Whyte kicked a conversion.

Tide attackers were unlucky on several scoring opportunities in the second half. They dropped a pass and just missed scoring another try, hit a post on a penalty-goal attempt and John Norris missed scoring on a drop-kick by a narrow margin.

"I thought it was a pretty good performance," said Burgess.

"It shows the depth and strength of Victoria rugby."

The Crimson Tide faces UBC Thunderbirds in the next match of the round-robin McKechnie Cup series March 4 on the Mainland.

Ian McKenzie set the pace for Vancouver with three tries, John Straton kicked three drop goals and Eric Kettleson booted two penalties and three conversions.

Results of Island Union matches Saturday:

Third Division

OAK BAY (14) — Gilmour Griege try, Barry Rogers try, Bill Smith try, Bruce Gray try; EBB TIDE (0).

Vikings Third in Tournament

VANCOUVER — University of Victoria Vikings came up with a 5-1 record to tie Vancouver Volleyball Club for second place in the five-team, round-robin preliminary portion of the University of B.C. men's volleyball tournament here Saturday but placed third.

Vancouver VC gained the berth in the final on points, but lost to B.C. Olympics.

SIMON FRASER WINS

WINNIPEG (CP) — University of Winnipeg defeated Simon Fraser University 68-59 Saturday to win the University of Manitoba Bisonette women's basketball tourney.

Green Leads Section

VANCOUVER — Andy Green won the title in his age section and three other members of the Victoria Flying "Y" club finished well up in top event at the Canadian masters (over 40) cross-country championship Saturday at Brockton Oval.

Keith Mitchell of Vancouver won the 10,000-metre race in 33 minutes, 41 seconds.

Garth Ball of the Flying "Y" finished fifth in 35:07 and clubmates Rien Raapp and Alex Marshal were 10th and 11th, respectively.

Reds Down Stars

OSAKA, Japan (AP) — Mike Lacoss pitched a four-hitter and Dan Driessen and Champ Summers each knocked in a run, leading Cincinnati Reds to a 3-1 victory over a Japanese All-Star baseball team Sunday.

Vikettes 62 and Counting; Vikings Also Sweep UBC

By JIM CRERAR
Times Staff

UVic Vikings and Vikettes renew a rivalry that has been dormant for nearly five years Tuesday night when they travel to Burnaby to play Simon Fraser University basketball teams.

Simon Fraser, only university in western Canada openly giving athletic scholarships, had been shunned by Canada West University Athletic Association schools, even on an exhibition basis. Although SFU isn't likely to gain admittance to the Canada West conference as long as it allows scholarships, the five-year ban has at least been lifted and the Clansmen and Clanettes will play return encounters in Victoria Jan. 30.

UVic teams head for the mainland with perfect 2-0 won-lost records in league play after a pair of season-opening victories against University of British Columbia Thunderbirds and Thunderettes at McKinnon Gym Friday and Saturday.

Despite a less-than-perfect defensive display, the Vikings beat the T-Birds 86-67 Saturday night before about 700 fans, following an 89-78 triumph Friday night before about 1,500.

As expected, Vikettes had little trouble disposing of the Thunderettes, winning 65-50 Saturday and 81-47 Friday and running their league winning streak to 62.

"UBC played very well," Viking coach Ken Shield acknowledged after Saturday's win, "but our defence let them do a lot of things. The defence just wasn't up to snuff in the first half and they (UBC) moved the ball very well."

Defence is a major concern for Shields this season because he feels it holds the key to UVic's chances of a repeat CWUAA championship.

Greg Kazanowski, Vikings' freshman centre from Nanaimo, had a great night Saturday, leading both teams in scoring with 20 points and sharing the rebound lead with teammates Chris Hebb and Robbie Parris, all of whom picked off eight. Six of Kaz's were off the offensive boards.

Jane Favali, who led Vikettes Friday with 24 points, was tops again Saturday with 19. Luanne Hebb had 16 Saturday and 22 Friday.

In other Canada West men's games, Alberta Golden Bears swept a twin bill from Calgary Dinosaurs, 81-54 Friday and 68-65 Saturday, while Lethbridge Pronghorns whipped Saskatchewan Huskies 98-67 Friday and 74-69 Saturday.

In other women's games, Saskatchewan Huskiettes won twice over Lethbridge, 52-39 Friday and 65-50 Saturday, while Alberta Pandas split with Calgary Dinnies, Alberta winning 62-59 Friday and Calgary winning 63-52 Saturday.

YANKS TRADE LYLE TO TEXAS

NEW YORK (AP) — Sparky Lyle got his wish and New York Yankees got theirs in a 10-player baseball trade completed with Texas Rangers on Friday.

Lyle, the American League Cy Young award winner in 1977, had fallen into disuse when the Yankee bullpen added free agent Rich Gossage last season. The situation angered him and he wanted to be sent somewhere else, where he could be the late-inning stopper again.

The Yankees obliged him by trading him to the Rangers along with catcher Mike Heath, infielder Domingo Ramos and minor league pitchers Larry McCall and Dave Rajsich. In exchange, New York received outfielders Juan Beniquez and Greg Jemison and pitchers Paul Mirabella, Dave Righetti and Mike Griffin..

Yankee president Al Rosen said the key player for New York is Righetti, a left-hander who will not turn 20 until the end of this month.

"We're all in love with Righetti," said Rosen. "We've got great reports on him. He's a left-handed power pitcher and (scout) Jerry Walker thinks we've got ourselves another (Ron) Guidry. I don't think that's possible, but it's nice to think in those terms."

AGREEMENT RENEWED

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) — Charleston Charlies, winners of the International League baseball pennant for the last two years, have renewed their working agreement with Houston Astros of the National League.

Dear John:

Both Vic and Myself have come to recognize the value of Classified Advertising.

As a brand new furniture store (opened May 15/78) we have been able to assess the ads as they appear in your papers. We determined at the beginning that to keep our prices low we would have to watch our expenses and so started running small Classified Ads daily in the Colonist and Times to get our message to the consumer.

The results have been outstanding and as an example we enclose two of our ads that literally has us sold out in days.

Many things are important: good merchandise, friendly dependable service, prices and the ability to get our message to all the people. Through your Classified we will continue to tell our story and plan on serving Victorians for many more years to come.

Yours truly,

UBC, GAELS IN SHOWDOWN

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Thunderbirds advanced to the Canadian intercollegiate College Bowl football final for the first time in the school's history Friday with a 25-16 victory over top-ranked Sir Wilfrid Laurier Golden Hawks in the Western Bowl before 5,000 fans. UBC rallied from a 15-10 half-time deficit, turning two Laurier fumbles into touchdowns.

The 'Birds face Queen's Golden Gaels in the national final Nov. 18 in Toronto. Queen's crushed St. Francis Xavier X Men 32-10 in the Atlantic Bowl on Sunday.

Wire-To-Wire Farewell

NEW YORK (AP) — Seattle Slew turned his farewell appearence into a one-horse parade Saturday by romping to a wire-to-wire victory in the $103,850 Stuyvesant Handicap at Aqueduct.

The Tayhill Stables' four-year-old colt, carrying the highest weight of his career, 134 pounds including Angel Cordero Jr., was clocked in 1:47 2-5 for the 1⅛ miles in scoring by 3¼ lengths over George A. Polk's Jumping Hill. Ruth E. Streit's Wise Philip finished third in the field of five, another 2¾ lengths back.

Seattle Slew, who in 1977 won the Triple Crown undefeated, took charge shortly after the gate opened. He beat off his only challenge down the backstretch when Jumping Hill, ridden by Jean Cruguet—who had ridden Seattle Slew in his first 13 career starts—drew within a length.

But the Bold Reasoning colt put him away early, leading Jumping Hill by 2½ lengths most of the way until the far turn. Cordero then put the whip to Seattle Slew and he coasted to an easy victory.

It was his 14th triumph in 17 career starts and earned him $62,310, bringing his lifetime earnings to $1,208,726.

Sent off as a 1-9 favorite by the crowd of 27,049, the Doug Peterson-trained colt returned $2.20, $2.20 and $2.10.

Seattle Slew, who has been syndicated for $12 million, will be headed to Spendthrift Farms in Lexington, Ky., for stud duty.

For his final jaunt, Slew fell two-fifths of a second short of the track and stakes record set by Riva Ridge, 130, in 1973.

Seattle Slew, a $17,500 yearling purchase, raced only three times as a two-year-old and his impressive victory in his only stakes attempt that year, the Champagne Stakes, earned him the Eclipse Award as the champion two-year-old colt.

In his three-year-old campaign, he scored in the Flamingo and the Wood Memorial before going on to capture U.S. thoroughbred racing's Triple Crown—the Kentucky Derby, the Preakness and the Belmont Stakes. His first loss came on July 3, 1977, in the Swaps Stakes when he finished a disappointing fourth. He was then beset by injuries and illness and nearly died last winter.

He turned in an impressive victory in the Sept. 12 Marlboro Cup, beating 1978 Triple Crown winner Affirmed in the first meeting of Triple Crown winners. On Sept. 30, he beat Exceller in the Woodward Stakes and in his last previous start on Oct. 14 in the Jockey Club Gold Cup, he lost an exciting duel with Exceller.

A's Increase Island Lead; Wests Top 'Cap Reserves

Victoria Athletics gained a little breathing space atop the first division of the Vancouver Island Soccer League by beating Nanaimo United 4-1 Sunday at Heywood Avenue Park.

The win boosted Athletics three points ahead of idle Victoria West, which managed a 4-2 victory over Vancouver Whitecaps Reserves in an exhibition contest Saturday at Blanshard Park.

In other first division play Sunday, Oak Bay edged Cosmopolitan Royals 2-1 at Topaz Park, Duncan Selects and Powell River Villas played to a 2-2 deadlock in Duncan and Gorge and Nanaimo City fought to a 2-2 stalemate at Nanaimo.

Steve Carroll and George Hyne scored at 25 and 41 minutes to give Athletics a 2-0 lead at the half and Dan Hood boosted the margin further by scoring at 48 minutes. Ray Telford connected for Nanaimo United at 53 minutes and Hyne scored again at the 75-minute mark.

Gorge led 1-0 at half time in Nanaimo on a goal by Howie Kirk at 38 minutes. Nanaimo then rebounded to take the lead on goals by Greg Thomas (57) and Paul Butler (68) before Kirk connected for the tying goal on a penalty shot at 78 minutes.

In the Saturday exhibition, Bobby Duncan scored twice at 30 and 33 minutes to give Wests a 2-0 lead going into the second half. Dan Henry scored twice for Wests in the second half (50 and 68 minutes) while Buzz Parsons (65) and Steve Nesim (82) replied for the Reserves.

Lita World Champ

BOGOTA (Reuter) — Lita de la Rosa of the Philippines won the women's World Bowling Cup Thursday night by defeating Pauline Cafollo of Ireland 545-497 over three games.

De la Rosa lost the first game but cashed in on errors by the 35-year-old Dublin housewife in the second and third.

The new champion, who has been bowling tenpins for barely two years, is the second Filipino to win a World Cup title. In 1976, Paeng Nepomuceno won the men's title in Tehran.

Two fancied contenders, Ruth Guerster of Australia and Birgitte Lund of Denmark, were eliminated in the semi-finals, finishing third and fourth respectively behind Cafolo and de la Rosa.

HOLMES BY A 'MUGGING'

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Larry Holmes is ready for any opponent, but his next one is not expected to be Muhammad Ali.

"I'll fight Norton or Young or anyone else the WBC tells me to," said Holmes after beating up Alfredo Evangelista before knocking him out in the seventh round of Holmes' first World Boxing Council heavyweight championship defence Friday night.

Richie Giachetti, Holmes manager, said Jimmy Young might be a logical choice as Holmes' next challenger. Then, if all goes well, Holmes might probably fight the winner of a Ken Norton-Earnie Shavers fight set for Feb. 18, probably in Las Vegas. Norton knocked out Randy Stephens in the third round of a preliminary to the Holmes-Evangelista fight.

As for Ali, recognized as champion by the World Boxing Association, Holmes said he talked to the 36-year-old Ali on Thursday and "he said he would not fight me. I said 'quit.' He said he would when he's ready."

Evangelista, the 23-year-old European champion from Spain, went 15 rounds in a losing title bid with an out-of-shape Ali on May 16, 1976.

Against Holmes it was no contest.

He was mugged.

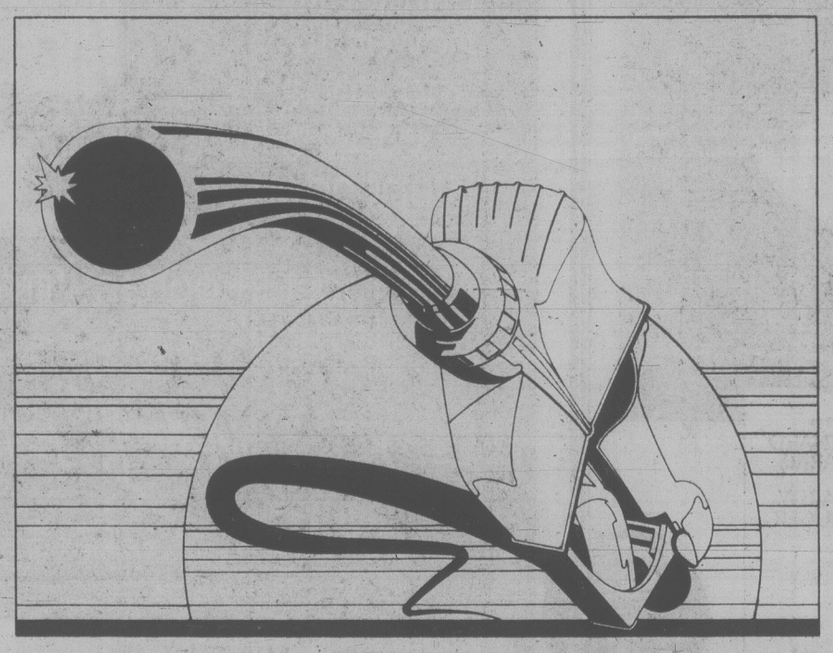
IS YOUR CAR'S TIMING CHEATING YOU OF MILEAGE?



A TANK OF ESSO EXTRA PREMIUM UNLEADED AND A $5.95* TIMING CHECK AND RE-SET WILL TELL YOU.

YOU COULD IMPROVE YOUR MILEAGE BY UP TO 5%.
A lot of cars that run on unleaded gas may also have their timing retarded. In fact, our survey shows that 1 out of 7 have their timing retarded an average of 4.6 degrees. This might get rid of engine knock but it also cuts down on fuel economy. And this could be the story on your car without you even realizing it. For $5.95, your participating Esso dealer can check and reset your engine's timing back to manufacturer's specifications. Then, you can fill up with Esso Extra Premium Unleaded and get the full benefit of this new high octane gasoline.

EXACTLY, WHAT IS TIMING?
Timing controls the exact moment when the spark plug ignites the fuel/air mixture inside the cylinders. If the spark comes too early or too late, you don't get full value from the gasoline you're using and you get less than full performance.

TIMING WILL ALSO AFFECT ENGINE KNOCK AND RUN-ON.
If your timing is off, you notice that premature or delayed ignition as a knock or pinging sound. It's especially noticeable on acceleration or going uphill.
Incomplete combustion which may also be caused by incorrect timing and/or gasoline, results in deposit build-up inside the cylinder and that leads to engine run-on after you shut off the ignition.

ASK YOUR PARTICIPATING ESSO DEALER.
If you are one of the thousands of Canadian motorists who have been having trouble with knock, run-on or poor mileage on your late model car, talk to your participating Esso dealer.
It could well be that your timing is off and that your car really needs a higher octane unleaded gasoline.
It's certainly worth $5.95 for the timing check and re-set to find out.
And a couple of tankfuls of new Esso Extra Premium Unleaded should prove that you're getting improved mileage and smoother performance.
We know that's what you want from your car. And your participating Esso dealer can help you get it.
*Or less. (Most cars until November 30, 1978.)

Thistles Capture High School Title

It was a long time coming, but Mt. Douglas Thistles reached a pinnacle on Friday when they captured the Colonist Cup, emblematic of Victoria High School soccer supremacy.

In near freezing weather, and cheered on by a sometimes boisterous crowd of about 1,000, Mt. Doug and Vic High Tyees put on a spirited display before Thistles eked out a 2-1 triumph at Royal Athletic Park.

In the 43-year history of the Colonist Cup, it had never graced the mantle at Mt. Doug before now.

Mt. Doug scored first at the 30-minute mark when Vic High goalkeeper Robbie Kaye, who had fashioned 11 shutouts and had allowed only three goals in 13 games all season, was beaten by Peter Brix on a play with Rob Wallace.

And that's the way score stood until the 59-minute mark with Kaye holding off Mt. Doug with several spectacular saves, especially one on Wallace at 58 minutes.

Then Kaye misjudged a long, looping shot by Richard Steback which found the net and coach Bryan Cornall's Mt. Doug squad had a two-goal margin.

Vic High fought back at 69 minutes with Mark Wyatt scoring from a goalmouth scramble. But Mt. Doug's strong defence rose to the occasion to preserve the victory.

Both Mt. Doug and Vic High, coached by Jindy Johl, will compete in the provincial championships at Nanaimo next weekend.

Taylor Second In Prague Event

Narrowly trailing Jean Christophe Simond of France after Saturday's short program, Taylor lost any chance when his free program was marred by a faulty triple lutz.

Simond finished the free skating portion with 13 ordinals and 104.58 points to Taylor's 13 ordinals and 104.04 points.

Jill Sawyer of the U.S. won the women's title Sunday. Saturday, American pair Vicky Heasley and Wagenhofer won the pairs event and Wagenhofer placed third in the men's on Sunday.

Individual Titles To City Runners

SURREY — Three runners from Victoria claimed individual titles in the ninth annual Pacific cross-country championship Saturday at Bear Creek Park.

Debbie Campbell of Victoria Mercuries captured the open women's crown with a time of 15 minutes, 22.4 seconds over a 3,800-metre course while clubmate Terry Bateman took high school boys' laurels with a 22:13.4 clocking over 6,850 metres.

Marion Wellmann of the Flying "Y" took the women's joggers title with a time of 16:35.2 over 3,800 metres.

Another second place was recorded by Flying "Y" (Don Ball, Ron Wellmann, Duncan Johnson) in the second-year high school boys' event, which was won by Coquitlam Cheetahs.

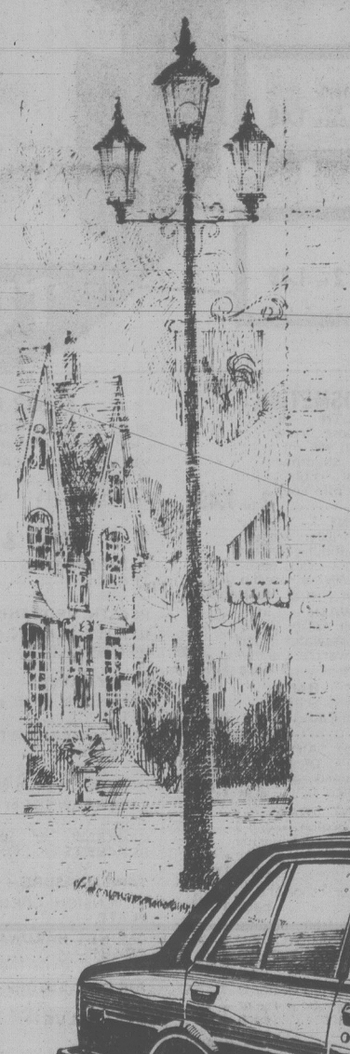
IT'S TAKING OVER WHERE BMW AND MERCEDES LEFT OFF.

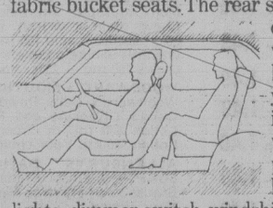


Just because BMW and Mercedes have abandoned the under $10,000 car buyer, there's no reason for that car buyer to feel abandoned.

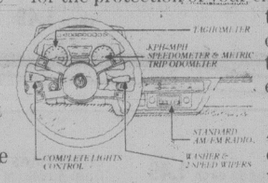
The new Honda Accord 4-door sedan more than makes up for any void that they left. Priced at just over $7,000 it is probably the single most significant new import luxury performance sedan to be affordably introduced, in years.

The philosophy behind the new Accord sedan is the same philosophy that has made the Accord hatchback such a phenomenal success. That is, that driving from point A to B in luxury and comfort shouldn't bore the pants off you. And that the fit, the finish, and the attention to detail should be better than any car anywhere near its price.

Inside the new 4-door Accord, you'll find yourself seated in firm, yet comfortable, fully reclining fabric bucket seats. The rear seat passengers sit in contoured seats with built-in, moulded headrests. With your hands never leaving the steering wheel you have complete control of the headlights, parking lights, dimmer switch, windshield washers and wipers, including the intermittent wiper control for light drizzle. In front of you is a tachometer, a trip odometer and lights that tell you if any of the doors aren't closed or if a tail light is burnt out, or if the oil or oil filter need changing or the tires need rotation.



Other standard features include an AM/FM radio. A remote control for the rear door locks, for the protection of your children. And an interior trunk release which opens up a trunk that holds more than enough luggage for four.



Mechanically, the Accord has a balance of engineering features that bring out its performance capabilities with a minimum of fuss. The transversely mounted, 1600 cc. engine has a transistorized CDI ignition system, for longer plug life and reduced maintenance and operating costs.

Accord's front wheel drive improves traction and gives the driver a more positive and direct feel of road conditions. Rack and pinion steering provides precise, accurate control. And independent MacPherson Strut suspension on all four wheels delivers a comfortable ride while keeping the wheels firmly on the ground, even when you're driving hard over a variety of road surfaces.

And every 1979 Honda, whether it's an Accord or Civic, comes with a 3 year warranty against rust perforation due to corrosion. Ask your Honda dealer for complete details.

The new Honda Accord sedan and the Honda Accord hatchback. Both of them are somewhat of a rarity these days.

Open-Shelf Wall Joy for Hobbyists

By PAULINE GRAVES

Crafts are "in" at the moment. Witness the number of publications devoted to various types of handiwork, from needlepoint to macrame. Knitting and crocheting have held their own during the years, but the enthusiasm with which they have been received by today's young people makes them seem like new discoveries.

These pursuits can be more of a joy when made as easy as possible, and the first step is to centralize all equipment and supplies. Getting things out and putting them away is time-consuming and tedious, especially if they are scattered all over the house.

And that is the reason we show this wall, by interior designer Beverly Trupp. The open shelves display books and decoratives, and the patterned wallpaper behind adds color. But the base cabinets, with doors, store equipment, patterns, fabric and supplies. However, the diamond-shaped openings specifically are for yarns, their bulk and color attractive in the over-all design.

Part of the structure is the table, handy for the portable sewing machine, for laying out patterns, or for working on the intricate knottings of macrame. Although the table is permanently in this position, it could be built to fold into the opening at its end.

Particle board was the material used for shelves, cabinets and table, the shelves 9 inches deep, the cabinet 17 inches deep and the table 31 inches by 32 inches.

Not All Readers Complainers

Leslie Holbrook

"I fell in love with a male; we cannot get married but we live together."

This is a quote from one of numerous chuckle-ly letters I get from readers across the land — which counteract the complaints that come from lots of others.

This jolly writer (Mrs. L. M. G. Meaford, Ont.) explains: "He is a little canary and his name is Pepi; he sings his heart out and brings joy to my soul."

Her whole letter bubbles with humor, but she can be serious too.

"There is not another country in the world which takes care of its senior citizens like Canada," she writes.

"Since my husband's death I have made my way back to Meaford where I lived in a seniors' apartment; I am happy for the comfort that I have. I feel sorry for older folk who grumbled about this or the other, about being confined to a small apartment. We should be grateful. I am."

Mrs. G ends with some good words:

"To awake each morning with a smile brightening my face/To greet the day with reverence for the opportunities it contains/To approach my work with a clear, clean mind/To meet men and women with laughter on my lips and love in my heart/To be gentle, kind and courteous through all hours/To approach the night with weariness that woos sleep/To feel the joy that comes from work well-done/This is how I desire to spend wisely my days."

"Are Senior Citizens Being Robbed?" was how one headlined read on a recent Fourth Quarter column. Many of you were quick to shout, "Yes."

"Of course we are," says W. L. L. "Unless we have benefitted substantially from owning real estate, the only asset which has kept up with inflation, we are slipping behind all the times. 'Harder' monies invested in government bonds, life insurance and certificates of deposit are paid off, both interest and principal, in 'softer' money.

"Rates of interest on savings have not equalled the rate of inflation, especially if income tax has to be paid on the interest. For us, this indirect conscription of savings is not compensated for fully by income increases such as most workers enjoy.

"At the same time, we are faced with increased costs for both necessities and reasonable comforts (newspapers, books, music) — plus rising taxes.

"Income and sales taxes are considerably lower in the U.S. (Florida, for example) and, in some cases, there is no school tax on seniors' homes.

"In Connecticut, real estate taxes are fixed at retirement, protecting seniors from being taxed out of possession. Later increases in taxes are collected from the estate.

"We also suffer from outrageous prices charged for goods and services required to keep us and our homes going. A curb needs to be put on the cowardly and greedy claims of already over-paid workers — who so often give us only a shoddy job."

If you're more interested in warm clothing than in cool cotton, know that cotton wholesale prices are going up, up this fall. Dry weather and insects damaged cotton crops, decreasing the harvest, which means higher prices for anything cotton in stores months from now.

Did you know that: Apples ripen 10 times faster at room temperature than when refrigerated? Over-ripe apples cook quickly into mush? Apples hold shape better if simmered, not boiled? You can use apple juice or cider to sweeten cooking apples when you don't like a sugary-sweet flavor?

No need to warm rolls in the oven. Wrap rolls or muffins in double thick aluminum foil, sealing tightly. Place on a rack or cumpled aluminum foil in an electric frypan or regular pan on a thermostatic top burner. Set at medium heat and warm for 15 to 20 minutes.

dear abby

DEAR ABBY: I read that the voters in California now have another controversial proposition that is causing a heated battle. It's Proposition 5, having to do with smoking. If passed, exactly what will it DO — and NOT do? I do not live in California, but there's been talk of initiating the same kind of legislation in my state. — LIKES TO SMOKE

DEAR LIKES: If passed, (It didn't) Proposition 5 will:

-Recognize both the right to smoke and the right to breathe clean air.

Establish non-smoking and smoking sections in restaurants.

-Guarantee non-smokers smoke-free places of employment while providing smoking areas for employees who smoke.

It will not:

-Prohibit or restrict the sale of tobacco products.

-Regulate smoking outdoors.

-Restrict smoking in designated smoking sections indoors.

-Affect smoking in private places.

-Cost the taxpayers money. Instead, it will save tax dollars.

-Be carved in granite, since the Initiative allows the legislature to amend it with a mere majority vote.

DEAR ABBY: Our son and daughter-in-law have a son (a college senior) who announced that he plans to marry the girl with whom he has gone for a long time.

It seems that our son and his wife feel that this girl is not right for their son, so they suggested that the young couple live together for a year while he is in graduate school, hoping the love affair won't survive beyond that time.

This doesn't seem like the right solution to us. What do you think? — PERPLEXED

DEAR PERPLEXED: Although your son and daughter-in-law prefer to have their son live with the girl rather than marry her, the final decision will be made by the young couple, and not by either the parents or the grandparents. (Or me.)

DEAR ABBY: Re: the man who hired the four teen-age boys to mow his lawn and clean his garage — Glad to hear that the boys did such a good job, but I wonder whether this man complied with all the federal and state laws regarding employment.

Did he get the Social Security number of all four boys? Did he pay them with four personal cheques? He must have these records for Social Security reports on withholdings if he pays more than $50 per quarter for domestic help. In fact, he should be able to verify or prove that he did not pay more than $50 per quarter in wages.

Did he pay the four boys all at the same rate of $2.65 per hour to comply with the federal minimum wage law?

Then, too, I wonder whether he was adequately covered for accident liabil)ty with a private insurance policy or by a state-operated insurance plan. If the latter, this would involve more record keeping.

I am all in favor of employing teen-agers. But it is not as simple as it sounds if you comply with all the laws, keep all the necessary records, and are adequately covered by liability insurance. — R. L. S.

DEAR R. L. S.: You sound like a very competent accountant. Or a man who's been educated by one.

SLOWER MEANS LESS WEAR

Dear Mike: My 1977 Granada has a manual transmission with overdrive in fourth gear. At 55 mph. on the highway, the engine ticks over at only about 1650 rpm. I've been told that the average car engine runs most efficiently at 2500-2800 rpm. I also recall that it used to be considered ruinous to operate a car engine at less than 2000 rpm for long periods. Care to comment? — SLOW AND LOW

Dear Slow: As long as you're not lugging the engine, the slower you can run it, the better gas mileage you'll get and the less engine wear you'll notice. If you feel the engine start to lug, though, shift down to a lower gear.

Dear Mike: Please tell me what harm is done if the catalytic converter burns out in my 1975 Valiant. Is there any law against disconnecting it so I can burn higher-octane, leaded gasoline? — CONSIDERING THE ALTERNATIVES

Dear Con: You won't notice a difference in the way your engine runs when your converter burns out. And the only harm will be to the atmosphere. You'll be polluting it.

As for bypassing the converter or installing a larger fuel-fill pipe, that's against the law and could get you or your mechanic fines ranging from $2,500 to $10,000, depending on which state you live in. It can also mean trouble for any filling station that sells you leaded fuel. My suggestion is to get your burned-out catalytic converter serviced or exchanged. It's not all THAT expensive.

t finally fired up but now runs funny. It idles rough, is sluggish, and has an entirely different sound. It's not a healthy motor anymore. I put a timing light on it, and it shows six degrees BTDC. What gives? — OUT OF TIME

Dear Out: Either your cam gear slipped a cog or your distributor drive did. Most likely it's the cam.

Dear Mike: What's the best way to whiten yellow whitewalls? — RETIRING

Dear Retiring: Comet cleanser plus Brillo pads.

How to Make Choppers Easier to Live With

VANCOUVER (CP) — If your dentures have made chewing steaks merely a happy memory, or if you frequently get the urge to toss the choppers out the window, there are ways to make them easier to live with.

The following dos and don'ts were compiled by several city dentists and the dentistry faculty at University of British ccolumbia:

—Visit your dentist twice a year. Your mouth is constantly undergoing change as you grow older, while your dentures are hard and unyielding. These visits should pinpoint problems before they develop. Some people may be able to keep the same dentures for years while others will need frequent adjustments.

—Don't use commercial preparations to reline your dentures. Home-relining may give you a comfortable fit while the material lasts, but it may concentrate bite pressure on to bone and soft tissue which will not withstand pressure.

See your dentist if you have noise or discomfort in your jaw while chewing. Grating and clicking can be indicators of a change in the balance of your jaw hinge, a warning that your bite is off and your dentures need adjusting.

—See your dentist when you develop sore spots from denture rubbing.

—Remove your dentures at night, or at least, four hours out of 24. Your mouth and gum tissue needs a rest from constant covering and chafing. Contrary to public opinion, your appearance will not suffer without the dentures.

—Don't scrub your dentures with a stiff brush. Wash them with gentle soap and water and scrub all surfaces with a special denture brush. Keep them in water when out of your mouth or the denture material may distort.

—Brush the roof of your mouth, gums and tongue every day with a soft brush. Many denture-wearers are not aware their dentures conceal unhealthy tissue conditions.

Some of the suggestions may come too late to help people who already have developed serious problems with receding gums, the inability to chew properly, embarrassment over their appearance or difficulty with speech.

Local denture experts say, however, that even those whose gums have developed a ridge usually can be helped. They describe the following alternatives available to the oral invalids who come to them for help.

If the patient's gum ridges are at all capable of supporting a removable complete denture, a broad prosthesis can be designed to make use of much of the mouth floor instead of merely the narrow but vital bony ridge of the lower mandible.

If the lower ridge is badly affected, a first alternative might be surgery to lower the floor of the mouth by cutting down tissue, thereby increasing the height of the lower gum and permitting a better denture fit.

In more severe cases, skin or bone can be grafted to the lower gum, thereby increasing the area of the gripping surface.

Only as a last resort, say the experts, should a patient undergo implant of a steel or plastic superstructure in the lower mandible on which a lower denture can be fastened.

None of these procedures carry a lifetime guarantee, dentists point out. They are modern methods of restoration and the majority of the patients who need them say they are pleased with the results.

Before deciding between alternatives, patients should seek several opinions and have suitable x-rays, particularly when implantology is being considered.

CHIPPY CHEWY BARS

½ cup butter or margarine
1½ cups graham cracker crumbs
1 cup Reese Peanut Butter Chips
1½ cups Chocolate Chips
1½ cups flaked coconut
1⅓ cups (14 ounce can) sweetened condensed milk
1 teaspoon shortening

Place butter in 13x9x2-inch pan; heat at 350° oven until melted. Remove pan from oven; sprinkle crumbs evenly over butter and press down with fork.

Combine Peanut Butter Chips and one cup Hershey Chocolate Chips, layer half chip mixture over crumbs. Sprinkle coconut over chips, layer remaining chip mixture over coconut; drizzle condensed milk evenly over top, bake 350° for 20 minutes or until lightly browned. Remove from oven. Melt ½ cup Hershey Chocolate Chips with shortening, drizzle evenly over bars. Cool completely before cutting. 48 bars.

Animals: They Can Tell

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — It's difficult to avoid comparing Lynn Ash with the fictional Dr. Dolittle, especially when he's introducing you face-to-face to one of his friends—a cheetah, for example.

Ash, who pets an upset rhinoceros as casually as most people would the family dog, is an animal keeper at Busch Gardens' Dark Continent, an African theme park with 3,000 creatures spanning the spectrum from lion to llama, crocodile to camel.

Obie the orang-utan, for example, was having a hard time adapting to life as a neighbor to other orangs. Park employees found Ash perched in the bushes next to the orang-utan enclosure, quietly watching his troubled ward and passing the time writing.

Suddenly it dawned on him: "Obie had never been with other orang-utans. He'd always been with people, ever since he was a little orphan," says Ash. "I guess he just assumed he was a person."

"He'd never seen another orang-utan and he was horrified. He never realized he looked like that, he thought he looked like us."

Solution? A large mirror so Obie could see himself and learn his true identity. It worked.

"They get along great now," says Ash.

Ash was off momentarily to pay a call on Little Joe, a half-ton baby rhino unhappy because he was unable to see out of his enclosure. He was expressing himself by butting against the cage.

Little Joe greeted Ash with a resounding thwonk, a hard slap on the bars of his cage with his horn.

Lynn responded by gently stroking the beast's snout through the bars. "It's OK, boy. It's OK," he said soothingly.

When a visitor expressed wonderment, Ash smiled. "Maybe you didn't notice, but I made darn sure he couldn't get my hand between him and the bars of the cage.

"It may look casual, but that's not everything. I'm not a person who'll just stick his hand in there. I'm always careful. You have to be both relaxed and alert."

How does one communicate with an animal?

"Through touching," Ash says, "the tone of your voice, just the way you are. They can tell if you're afraid or if you're not afraid. They can tell if you don't like them. They can tell when you do like them, and that's the important thing."

Ash, 35, once one of Florida's most-respected young artists, has worked at the 300-acre park for 10 years.

"I've always been involved with animals," he says. "It just got too hard to be an artist all day and then go home and do more art. So I wanted to find something unrelated to art, and since it was art or animals to begin with, the choice was simple."

Animals are like children, says Ash.

"They do whatever's on their mind, they're totally up front. You have to treat them with the same honesty."

But, he cautions, you have to be careful.

"Something might be bothering them that you don't know about—a toothache, or maybe they're just in a bad mood. Animals have moods too. They don't feel or act the same way all the time."

And, he said, animals have different personalities. A dozen tigers are as different as 12 people.

"They may look alike to casual observers but I know each one by sight; each has its distinct personality and traits."

HOW TO USE YOUR CHART:

BIO-DEX READOUT:

0-5 Negative Cycle — Keep the pace casual. Others with higher levels may try to rush you into hasty decisions. Fend them off.

6-10 Neutral Cycle — A school or college project may cause you difficulty. Postpone further work until your intellectual level improves.

11-15 Positive Cycle — Dress up and step out for a good time. Your sparkling good humor will make you the life of the party.

I'm always happy to receive your letters, and you can send them to me care of this newspaper. I can't promise an individual reply, but I'm always happy to pass on your Bio-dex experiences through this column (anonymously if you wish). Please remember that Bio-dex is an international column and appears in many newspapers. It can take a while for your letters to reach me, so don't expect your question to be answered right away.

ATKINSON'S FASHIONS BIG LEAGUE ALL THE WAY

By JOANNE WINSHIP

NEW YORK (UPI) — Bill Atkinson, winner of this year's Coty fashion award, has proved once and for all that he is truly a superstar with a spring-summer 1979 collection that makes everything seen so far in the current New York showings pale by comparison.

As always, the collection is beautifully edited, and Atkinson makes his statement with a quickly paced show that is never repetitive. Most refreshing is that Atkinson doesn't resort to "high chic," "low chic," "retro," or any of the other cliches that indundated the European fashion scene and have been pounced upon by many American designers.

Suits are not constricted. Jackets may be the box pleated shirt type or jazz jackets, V-necked and cropped. Skirts are slim and easy or diamond pleated. Front wraps or panels back and front are new. Shoulders are padded, waists usually small and belts are wide.

Many of the pants are straight, wider and mushroom pleated, stopping above the ankle. Straight long pants are often cut diagonally in front and closed with steel buttons. There are dhoti pants, like those worn in India, cut low between the legs and slim at the ankle.

Intricate honeycomb pleating is stunning on some coats and jackets. There are combos including an iridescent honeycomb pleated jacket over a hand woven blue confetti colored sweater and sky blue suede pants and an orange confetti sweater with a mustard suede skirt. These sweaters are in several styles, the shoulders often padded, and are conversation pieces.

The jump suit is updated and well cut here, with broader shoulder treatment, wide belts, and high heels. They can go on from office to disco. Shirts often are without buttons, sometimes pleated, tucked or piped. Dresses are simple and understated but, like everything else, beautifully detailed.

Notable are a sleeveless sheath with sides slit, a thin city dress with its own coat, shoulders extended, and belted, and a dream of a slip top dress with flyaway petal panels. Tiny straps on tops or dresses don't just stop because they are straps; they continue as piping, vertically, horizontally or criss-crossed across the top to give a finishing touch.

For the beach there are scooter skirts (very short) worn with strapless bandeaus in glove leather, one strap sometimes over the shoulder. These are softly gathered and give the effect of unpressed pleats, a very feminine look. They also are worn under sheer buttonless shirts with pants or slim skirts.

Iridescent voile shorts rolled up and cuffed, matching slip tops and tightly belted waists, are shown with wonderful big polished straw hats. Dresses and skirts are shorter and slim, but free and easy. They follow body lines without cupping in under the derriere and looking tarty.

Fabrics are incredible — corded silk, silk tweed, wool gauze, crepe de chine, silk seersucker, iridescent cotton, knitted linen as gossamer as gauze and shimmery sheer varnished voile, tissue thin and done in soft plaids, checks and stripes. Some of these also have an iridescent finish. They literally float.

Colors are bright but they never scream: taffy, chrome, silver, upbeat blues, brass, imperial yellow, sand, beach plum, sea grape, ginger, painter's pink, ice green, magenta and black.

There are no misses in the Atkinson collection. It's big league all the way.

NOISY KIDS CLAM UP

OTTAWA (CP) — A bus driver was so fed up with noisy students recently he drove his vehicle to a provincial police detachment and reported the children to the police. When officers boarded the bus, they charged three 14-year-old boys with underage drinking. Three older students had 70 joints of marijuana in their possession.

Employees Asked To Contribute

WINNIPEG (CP) — University of Manitoba employees will be asked to contribute $1 million toward the $8.75 million needed for the university's centennial capital projects. The building programs, chosen to mark the university's 100th anniversary in 1977, include a new winter sports site on campus and expansion of the main library.

Sober Reflections for Charles

CHARLES
. . . 30 on Tuesday

Prince Charles, heir to the throne, is 30 on Tuesday. To celebrate, Queen Elizabeth has asked 350 of his friends to a party the next night at Buckingham Palace. Dancing to a West Indian steel band will continue into the small hours.

Yet it is a milestone which the prince cannot fail to observe without sober reflection.

Groomed to be king — and no future monarch was ever so dutifully groomed — Prince Charles may have to wait up to 30 more years to inherit that role.

His mother is 52, in robust health, much loved by her subjects and has no evident plans to abdicate.

Later he entered the Royal Navy and rose to command his own ship — the minehunter Bronington. He also learned to fly jet planes and to drop into combat by parachute.

He might have looked forward to promotion to captain and command of a frigate or even of a guided-missile destroyer, but a future monarch needs to know more about today's Britain and of the world than command of a fighting ship.

So Commander Charles Philip Arthur George Mountbatten-Windsor in 1976 left the navy, shaved off a treasured nautical beard and took on a gruelling routine of foreign visits, youth charity work and patronage of 170 institutions.

Other "kings-in-waiting" have contrived to fill the long interlude exotically, as did the future King Edward VII — eldest son of Queen Victoria — who made mistresses of society's most beautiful women.

Even his impish sense of humour is never wounding. At its cruellest, it involved giving a journalist, who had reported that the prince was dating a mystery blonde in Kenya, a stuffed bird to which was glued a blonde wig.

Gossip writers relentlessly pursue the prince, linking him with dozens of young women from Princess Marie-Astrid of Luxembourg to Fiona Watson, an English peer's daughter who once posed nude for a girlie magazine.

Given his nature, those who know him say that a stable marriage and the raising of children would give meaning to the coming years for Prince Charles. But here too, the odds could be stacked against him.

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — Neil Armstrong, who went to the moon without mishap, lost a finger last week when his wedding ring caught in a door as he jumped from a truck.

Surgeons say it will be late this week before they know whether Armstrong will be able to use his left ring finger, which was cut and reimplanted.

Surgeons at Louisville's Jewish Hospital said they were able to reimplant the finger and re-establish the blood supply.

LOS ANGELES — British comedian and pianist Dudley Moore has filed a divorce petition to end his marriage to actress Tuesday Weld, his lawyer said Friday.

The petition, filed in Los Angeles Superior Court, said he and Susan Kerr Weld Moore were married on Sept. 20, 1975, and separated last July. They have one child, Patrick, 2, and Moore asked that his wife be awarded custody.

No grounds for divorce were stated in the petition.

Robin Knievel said she and her fiance, Douglas Sparkes, of Chino, Calif., met while her brother was in jail in Los Angeles.

The bride-to-be has an eight-year-old son from a previous marriage, and Sparkes has two sons from an earlier marriage.

Last April, Knievel was released from jail after serving less than five months of a six-month sentence after he pleaded guilty to assaulting television executive Sheldon Saltman.

JABLANICA, Yuglslavia — President Tito, who led his partisan army in a historic battle here 35 years ago, returned to this southwestern Yugoslavia town Sunday to dedicate a memorial.

The 86-year-old president unveiled a monument on Mt. Makljen, overlooking the Neretva River, where in 1943, his 20,000 troops, protecting 4,000 other wounded, were encircled by 90,000 men, mostly German and Italian forces.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Country music singer-songwriter Merle Haggard, best known for his 1969 hit Okie from Muskogee, is back home after a brief hospital visit for minor surgery.

Miss World Line-Up

LONDON (Reuter) — Young beauties from around the world, all hoping to be Miss World 1979, went on parade Sunday in a sea of bright lights, cameras and ogling journalists.

The girls from 68 countries, bright-eyed and beaming for their first formal meeting with the press, are in London to vie for the beauty title which brings a year of world travel and, usually, a lucrative modelling career.

In tight short-shorts and sleeveless white tops, they mingled with reporters and talked about their adventures since arriving.

Miss Australia, a leggy green-eyed brunette, said her greatest thrill came while touring a country zoo.

Denise Coward, 23, from Melbourne, said she was watching dolphins in a tank and told the guide she would love to jump in and swim with them.

He immediately agreed and she plunged in for a 20-minute splash with six dolphins and a sea lion.

Brigitte Hofmann, 18, from Hamilton, Ont., said: "I've never been to a really big city. Stores are open late at night, people are always around."

Asked if there were anything she particularly missed in Canada, she replied simply: "The forests."

Absent this year is Miss South Africa.

Organizer Julia Morley said that after three years of dispute — nine girls quit the contest last year because of their governments' opposition to South African apartheid — a decision had to be taken.

"There is nothing political about this contest but people had to keep bringing it in," she said. "It wasn't fair to Miss South Africa or the other girls."

The reigning Miss World, Mary Stavins of Sweden, will crown the winner at London's Royal Albert Hall Thursday night.

Miss World 1979 will win $10,000 in cash and $30,000 in contract work.

Builders Handbook

The cabinet's Environment and Land Use committee has published a 20-page booklet detailing ways commercial and industrial developers can deal with various levels of government.

Environment Minister Jim Nielsen said the document is a practical guide to gaining the necessary permits and approvals for development.

It was written with the developer of industrial or commercial property in mind and marks the first time that the total picture of the approvals procedure has been set out, involving local, provincial and federal government agencies, Nielsen said.

Copies are available from the environment ministry.

Computer Trail of the Pioneer?

ANCHORAGE (AP) — Alaskans will use computers and airplanes instead of Conestoga wagons to homestead up to 30 million acres of land if an initiative approved in the U.S. general election stands up to expected court challenges.

Unlike America's first homesteaders, Alaskans won't have to build cabins on the land, which covers an area larger than the state of Pennsylvania. They won't even have to see it. All a homesteader has to do is glance at a computer list and file a claim.

Environmentalists and state officials say passage of the Beirne Homestead Initiative will lead to an invasion of Alaska's pristine wilderness by speculators and years of lawsuits aimed at resolving conflicting claims and land titles.

One critic says airplanes will "swarm up all over Alaska," since most of the available land will be accessible only by air.

Proponents say the state owns too much land and the initiative will bring the cost of property within reach of the average Alaskan.

Under the initiative, anyone who has resided in Alaska for three years may claim 40 acres of land 90 days after the election is certified. Five-year residents are entitled to 80 acres and 10-year residents 160.

Robert LeResche, state commissioner of natural resources, said confusion over land titles in the vast, unsurveyed areas of Alaska is likely to keep lawyers busy for years.

Mike Beirne, a 52-year-old Anchorage doctor, state representative and sponsor of the initiative, said that so little land is privately held — 1.1 million of the state's 375 million acres — that the cost of property has become prohibitive for the average Alaskan.

LeResche said he fears certain organizations, perhaps large companies, will try to acquire tracts from homesteaders, and Beirne acknowledged that there is nothing to prevent a corporation from rounding up 50 or 60 residents willing to sell their claims.

Lisbon Marchers Focus on Inflation

LISBON (AP) — Thousands of Communist-led demonstrators paraded through Lisbon on the weekend shouting slogans against Portugal's government and inflation.

Unofficial estimates said that about 100,000 marchers thronged Liberty Avenue in a display of strength aimed at Premier-designate Carlos Mota Pinto who is to replace the caretaker government of Alfredo Nobre da Costa within a few days. A helicopter circled overhead but there were no extra security arrangements and no violence was reported.

The demonstrators condemned what they called "anti-worker policies" and chanted: "The cost of living is going up and the people cannot stand it."

Bank of Portugal officials have acknowledged that wages fell this year to 1973 levels, wiping out increases won after the armed forces overthrew the right-wing dictatorship in 1974. Union leaders have said a 20-per-cent ceiling on annual wage increases does not allow workers to absorb inflation. Unemployment is 15 per cent.

The march was called by Intersindical, the Communist-controlled labor federation that includes more than 80 per cent of the country's unions. Socialist and Social Democratic party critics said the demonstration was an effort by Alvaro Cunhal's pro-Moscow Communists to win places in the new government.

Mota Pinto, a constitutional expert and political independent, was named by President Antonio Ramalho Eanes Oct. 25 to form a government. He will succeed Nobre de Costa, whose rule was reduced to caretaker status after his programs were defeated in parliament earlier this year.

Mario Soares's Socialists, whose two-year rule collapsed in July, have offered to back the new premier.

U.S. Plans Bared For Iran Stability

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — Senior presidential adviser Hamilton Jordan said Sunday that the United States has drawn up contingency plans for action if the military government in Iran failed to restore stability in that country.

In an interview on CBS' Face the Nation, Jordan reaffirmed strong U.S. support of the Shah of Iran's decision to appoint a military government to deal with widespread disturbances.

"... There are a group of people in the White House, in National Security Council, in the state department that have been monitoring the situation in Iran very closely and I think they have contingency plans for different circumstances ..."

St. John's Coffin Seen?

CAIRO (UPI) — An Egyptian reporter said today he has seen the coffin containing the body of St. John the Baptist — the hermit who heralded the coming of Jesus Christ and was beheaded at the whim of the belly dancer Salome.

The reporter for Cairo's Al Ahram newspaper said he was shown the coffin by monks at an ancient Christian monastery in Egypt's western desert. He said the monks told him they were confident it contained the remains of John, whom Christians venerate as the precursor of Jesus.

The Al Ahram reporter said he was told the body was found in a cave below an old church in the St. Makar monastery, a fortress-like structure built by Egypt's Orthodox Coptic Church in A.D. 360. The monastery is located in the Natroun Valley, about 60 miles northwest of Cairo.

"If someone comes up with a serious piece of evidence, then the evidence can be considered. But the monks' opinion is without scientific value." said Prof. Morton Smith, an expert on ancient history at Columbia University in New York.

Professor Theodore Gaster of Columbia University's Barnard College agreed. "If John was beheaded, it would have been in what is now the West Bank. Any story about what happened to him afterwards is legend," Gaster said.

The Coptic Orthodox Church teaches that the body of John the Baptist was removed from Palestine to Alexandria, Egypt, in the fifth century A.D. because of persecution of Christians at the time.

Historians place John the Baptist's birth before 4 B.C. and his execution at A.D. 28-30.

Controllers Likely Boozers

NEW YORK (AP) — Air traffic controllers are twice as likely to drink heavily after work as other persons and four times as likely to develop high blood pressure, according to a new study.

Researchers at Boston University School of Medicine rated more than half the 416 U.S. controllers who volunteered for the study as heavy drinkers on a scale that weighed both quantity and frequency of alcohol use.

Dr. Robert Rose, who directed the project, said the men drank to cope with job stress. There was no evidence they drank on the job or that the after-hours tippling was allowed to endanger air travellers, Rose said.

The 5½-year study, one of the most intensive investigations of the health dangers of a single job, found that two controllers in every five said they drank the equivalent of more than 15 ounces of grain alcohol a week.

The study also confirmed earlier findings that suggested high blood pressure is an occupational hazard to men who control the airways.

Executive Jet Handles Well

Protesters Greet Gandhi in London

LONDON (Reuter) — Former Indian prime minister Indira Gandhi dodged crowds of chanting Indian demonstrators as she arrived in Britain Sunday on her first foreign trip since she was swept from power early last year.

The visit, apparently aimed at improving her international reputation, follows her victory in a south India special election last week which re-established her as a political force.

She had been ousted by voters in March, 1977 after 21 months of emergency rule.

The ostensible purpose of the trip is to attend celebrations marking the 89th anniversary of the birth of her father, Jawaharlal Nehru, India's first prime minister.

But her week-long visit, during which she will tour the big Indian communities in London and Birmingham and meet with British politicians and journalists, has already provoked controversy.

The Sunday Times urged in an editorial that she should not be welcomed, celebrated, honored or in any way acknowledged by British politicians.

"While prime minister, Mrs. Gandhi systematically destroyed the rule of law, jailed thousands of opponents without trial, reduced government to a personal and arbitrary fiefdom," the newspaper said. "She is a thoroughly corrupt politician. Having won a by-election, she now hopes to recover some international respectability by her visit to Britain."

At an airport news conference, Mrs. Gandhi denied that she was in Britain to embarrass the government of Prime Minister Morarji Desai, saying "They are embarrassing themselves."

Gandhi draws both jeers and cheers

N.Y. SIDEWALK SALE FEATURES TUBE BABIES

NEW YORK (Reuter) — Even in this city where pedestrians are accustomed to seeing everything from shag carpet to raw meat being sold from sidewalk stands, an item introduced last week has New Yorkers staring in disbelief.

Luxemburg says the idea is an attempt to cash in on the publicity surrounding the birth in Britain earlier this year of the world's first test-tube baby.

2,500 Viet 'Refugees' Can't Land in Malaysia

KUALA LUMPUR (AP) — More than 2,500 Vietnamese crammed aboard a mystery freighter anchored off the Malaysian coast will not be allowed to land because the government considers them migrants who paid their way, rather than refugees, police said Sunday.

The Selangor state police chief, P. Alagendra, said an investigation showed the Vietnamese had not forced their away aboard the ship, as its Indonesian captain said.

It is inconceivable for over 2,500 people to gather at one place in the South China Sea and to have succeeded in boarding the ship," Alagendra said.

Refugee officials said Saturday they were investigating reports that a syndicate of Hong Kong businessmen may have been paid $5 million by the refugees, mostly ethnic Chinese residents of Vietnam, to provide the ship, register it for one month in Panama and use it to take the Vietnamese to a new country.

The ship, which has been given food, water and other supplies here, is expected to leave today. Sources said it may be towed out to sea by government vessels if it does not leave on its own power.

HUNGARY NEW CHESS CHAMP

BUENOS AIRES (Reuter) — Hungary became world chess champion on the weekend when it beat Yugoslavia by three games to one in the final round of the 23rd Chess Olympiad.

The Soviet Union, which traditionally dominates the competition with ease, appeared likely to finish second after beating the Netherlands 2½ to 1½ Saturday night.

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

On many deals, after the opening lead is made and the dummy comes into view, declarer is able to formulate a plan of attack which he hopes will materialize successfully. But there are also those deals when no workable plan of action presents itself; and declarer finds himself in the position where he must let the opponents do his work for him. The latter situation was the case in today's deal, which was played in the 1978 National Championships.

South deals.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ◇	Pass	1 ♡	Pass
1 NT	Pass	3 NT	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Two of ♣.

The seven of clubs was played from dummy on the opening lead, East followed with the nine, and South won the trick with his queen. A low diamond was then led towards dummy's jack (with the hope that West possessed the queen), East's queen winning the trick. East returned a club, South and West played low, and dummy's ten captured the trick.

The ace of clubs was cashed next, and then came the ace and king of diamonds with the wishful thinking that the outstanding diamonds were divided 3-3. As it turned out, West did not follow to the third diamond lead, revealing that East had been dealt four diamonds. On this lead West discarded a heart and dummy did likewise.

A fourth diamond lead was made next, West discarding another heart. The three of spades was discarded from dummy. East won the trick with his nine — and found himself in the position of being forced to break either the heart suit or the spade suit.

If he cashed the ace of hearts, he would make a winner out of dummy's king. So, as a lesser of evils, he attacked the spade suit. On East's lead of the spade deuce south played low, West put up the jack and dummy's ace won the trick. A spade was returned, and when East played low, south finessed his ten successfully.

And so declarer fulfilled his contract, making three spade tricks, three diamonds and three clubs.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Astrological Forecast for Tuesday, November 14
By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Accent on finances, investments, locating lost articles and protecting possessions. Yes, the family situation improves. Key is diplomacy, adjustment, remodeling. You will comprehend! You will be recipient of gift. Accept graciously, without kicking toe in sand.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You know what is true, but key is to face facts as they exist. Pisces, Virgo persons figure prominently. Accent on personality, appearance, appeals, self-deception, definition of terms. Full Moon position coincides with dramatic victory for you.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You asked for confidential material. You get it and might not know what to do with it. Capricorn, Cancer persons figure prominently. Accent on hospital, club, special organization, temporary restraint. Your priorities will come into focus.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Full Moon accents fantasies which are closer to actuality than might be immediately anticipated. Finish what you start — you're on right track despite mutterings of some friends and relatives. Aries, Libra persons figure in scenario.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Emphasis on achievement, recognition, more responsibility, authority and greater reward factor. You can make valuable contact. Tell your story in direct, original, creative fashion. Another Leo — and an Aquarian — figure prominently.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You receive news concerning long-range project. You have an option — to continue along current path — or to change directions. Key is to be on familiar ground, to make revisions without tossing aside basic security.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You get facts concerning costs, opportunities for expansion. Full Moon position coincides now with stress on money of partner or mate. Checks, stocks, insurance policies, leases. Gemini, Sagittarius individuals could play key roles.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Accent on legal ties, including partnership and marriage. You could break free from restrictions. Be aware of what is written "between the lines." Attend to details — be thorough. Prepare material. No direct confrontations, but plenty of study and "training" indicated.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You find unique ways of making routine tasks more interesting, productive. Gemini, Virgo persons could figure prominently. What had been a roadblock to progress is removed. One who works with you confides and encourages. You'll be revitalized!

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Full Moon could spell sweet nothings, romance, creativity for you. Emotions tend to dominate logic. Luxury gift or art object stands high on agenda. Young person cares for you, is willing to prove devotion.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Accent on land, definition of terms, real estate transactions, your abode and basic security. Obtain valid appraisals. Be positive of material at hand, time-and-motion, costs, budget, overall money projections. Insist on reality as opposed to "fuzzy" promises.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Relative talks about money, long-term relationship and responsibility. What had been smouldering is brought into open. Be selective. You could be holding trump card without being aware of it. Key is confidence, steady approach — and "poker face."

IF NOVEMBER 14 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are perceptive, persistent and passionate. You should write or engage in other creative endeavors. Gemini, Virgo, Sagittarius persons play key roles in your life. Major domestic adjustment — or change of residence and life style — featured in 1979. You get money and more reponsibility next month.

Pill-Skin Cancer Link May Be Premature, Says Expert

NEW YORK (AP) — A study in suburban San Francisco has shown a possible link between the use of birth control pills and skin cancer, but an expert says the finding might be a false alarm.

The link appeared in an eight-year study of 17,942 women enrolled in the Kaiser Foundation Health Plan in Walnut Creek, Calif.

Women who had used the pill for four years or more were about 70 per cent more likely than non-users to develop malignant melanoma, an often fatal cancer of the pigment cells of the skin which kills 4,300 persons in the U.S. every year.

But the authors of the study said the number of cases — 22 new cases of the disease among the sample group — was too small to draw a definite conclusion.

Melanoma is thought to be caused by the ultraviolet rays of sunlight, and persons who are fair-skinned, blue-eyed or given to frequent sunbathing are regarded as particularly susceptible.

The authors of the study said it was possible the pill increased susceptibility to sunlight.

But they said, in a report in last December's British Journal of Cancer, that other effects might be causing the problem and more study was needed.

"I think it may be a false alarm," said Dr. Donald Austin, head of the California Tumor Registry at Berkeley.

"There's a good possibility that women on the pill may have more sun exposure than women not on the pill. We know that women who choose the pill are different from other women in other ways."

One example of that difference turned up in an earlier study based on the Kaiser plan. Dr. Savitri Ramcharan, head of the Kaiser study and co-author of the melanoma report, said an increase in cervical cancer among pill users could be partially explained by differences in their sexual behavior.

Austin noted that the rate for malignant melanoma was rising in the San Francisco Bay area as fast for men as it was for women. The rate for both sexes has increased from about five new cases per 100,000 persons a year in 1970 to about 10 per 100,000 in 1975, he said.

In the Kaiser study, the rate of malignant melanoma for long-term pill users was set at 29 per 100,000, compared with 17 per 100,000 for women who had never used the pill and 24 per 100,000 for women who had used it less than four years.

Birth control pills are known to stimulate the formation of melanin, the skin-darkening pigment produced by the cells involved in melanoma. A darkening of moles and birthmarks is a common side effect.

There is a well-established link between use of the pill and circulatory diseases, especially for women who smoke. But no firm link has been established between the pill and cancer.

Kidnapped Heiress Rescued

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Police commandos burst into a downtown house early Saturday and rescued the unharmed kidnapped heiress of a Spanish wine-maker.

Authorities reported six suspects were seized and two men escaped as the police, known as Black Commandos because of their black uniforms, charged into the 20-room house.

Miguel Nasser, chief of the federal security division, said the demanded ransom of $5 million has not been paid. He told reporters the rescue operation came after one member of the kidnap gang was arrested earlier and told interrogators where the victim was being held.

"There was no political motive in the case," Nasser said. "It was just a business of kidnapping."

The victim, U.S.-born Brianda Domecq de Rodriquez, 36, said in a a telephone interview with The Associated Press that she thought the nightmare was being repeated when black-clad policemen smashed through the door of the hideout.

"I thought it was a new kidnapping," said Mrs. Domecq de Rodriguez, the mother of two and a daughter of wealthy Spanish wine merchant Pedro Domecq. She said she was abducted Oct. 30 when her auto was cut off by two vehicles in a narrow street and two men jumped into her car, blindfolded her and told her to lie down.

She was held in a house near the centre of Mexico City until the police rescue at about 1 a.m. Saturday. She was not mistreated, she said, but added: "I learned to live blind. It was incredible."

Authorities had been informed immediately of the abduction but kept their involvement secret "so as not to endanger the victim's life," police spokesman Rodolofo Leam said.

Nasser said the alleged leader of the kidnap ring, Alfredo Lara Navarrete, 45, had been seized in a restaurant in the northern part of the city and told police about the hideaout during questioning. The restaurant had been staked out after a ransom note was dropped there, he said.

Nasser, disputing earlier police reports, said no ransom was paid.

A police spokesman, asked to explain the conflicts between Nasser's account and earlier police reports saying the ransom money had been recovered, said the federal police had kept many details of the case from the local police.

Family members said placing of the 77-year-old Pedro Domecq, who resides in Mexico City, in hospital was a federal police ploy designed to win sympathy from the kidnappers. It had been reported that he was suffering from a heart ailment aggravated by the strain of the kidnapping.

Mrs. Domecq de Rodriguez said of her abductors, "They knew what they were doing. They were professionals. But I don't think they had any political ties."

Nasser said Lara Navarrete and the six other suspects have been linked to "at least three kidnappings that netted several million dollars." He said members of the ring were paid about $600 a month.

The kidnappers telephoned Mrs. Domecq de Rodriguez's husband, Dr. Fernando Rodriguez Campillo, three times before they sent him a note she had signed.

Born in New York City, Mrs. Domecq de Rodriguez grew up in Mexico City and attended American High School. Her father, a third-generation member of the wine-and-sherry-producing family from southern Spain, moved a branch of the family business to Mexico 20 years ago.

Mrs. Domecq de Rodriquez has a 15-year-old son and a 10-year-old daughter. "I thought I would never see them again," she said in the interview.

Mystery Beasts Left Their Marks

ALLENTOWN, Pa. (AP) — A university geology professor says 200-million-year-old tracks found in eastern Pennsylvania may be those of animals previously unknown to science.

Professor Donald Ryan of Lehigh University said that about 100 tracks were found at the site near Coopersburg, just outside Allentown.

"Several trails were found of different animals," Ryan said in a telephone interview. "There are a few that are apparently of new species. We can't tell precisely what types."

"A few of the imprints show the texture of the skin," he said, adding that they might have been made by a type of ancient lizard that rested on its stomach along a trail.

The tracks were discovered about seven months ago by Jim Turner of the William Penn Museum.

Ryan said it is difficult to tell much about the animals from their tracks alone. But he said geologists hope to find other fossils in the area to help reveal the evolution of the animals.

He said the tracks were found imbedded in rock from the Triassic age, the period early in the Mezozoic era which was the time of the first dinosaurs.

ASTHMA DRUG PROMISING

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A new drug being tested on humans shows promise of relieving suffering for millions of asthma victims, medical researchers report.

"If these studies continue to be successful, this new drug could be approved for use in the U.S. in a few years," Dr. Young Cho, medical director for Cooper Laboratories of suburban Palo Alto, told the Ninth International Symposium on Clinical Pharmacology which began Friday.

The drug relaxes constricted lung tissues while it inhibits the release of histamine — a body chemical which may cause lung tissues to constrict, making it more difficult to breathe, said Dr. Paul Kirk, vice-president for corporate development of Cooper Laboratories.

The new material, designated CK-0383, is a patented drug developed by the company to combat asthma, a non-contagious intermittent disease in which breathing is hampered when bronchial passages are restricted by tightened muscles, mucus or swelling.

Currently, two drugs are required to achieve comparable asthma relief and side effects are common, Cho said. The new drug, taken orally, acts rapidly and shows a low level of mild side effects — some loss of appetite and some nausea in a few patients.

2 Million Ethiopians Facing Starvation

NAIROBI (UPI) — Two million people in Ethiopia face starvation and an entire tribe is in danger of extinction because of a drought and famine that could become the worst in the nation's history, officials say.

The latest crisis spot, Radio Ethiopia said Sunday, was in north-central Tigre province, where more than 98,000 peasants are in desperate need of help.

The reports, monitored in Nairobi, said the future of the entire nomad Afar tribesmen in the area is threatened because their cattle — their major means of support — were without grazing land.

Officials said the spreading famine was approaching the dimensions of 1972-73, when as many as 250,000 people died.

That famine, considered the worst in Ethiopia's history, also had far-reaching political impact. Angered by official indifference, the army began a "creeping coup" which eventually resulted in the overthrow of the late Emperor Haile Selassie in September 1975.

Since then, the formerly conservative, pro-Western nation has been ruled by a Marxist military government committed to close ties with the Soviet Union and Cuba.

Foreign relief officials said local authorities this time are trying to conrol the crisis. But the famine has outstripped the regime's resources.

Tens of thousands of persons in northern Eritrea province, where government troops continue to battle local secessionists, and in the far southeast Ogaden region, also faced starvation, they said.

71-Year-Old 'Granny-Type' Blasts Youth, 13, With Mace

MIAMI (UPI) — A "grandmother-type" 71-year-old woman who became annoyed at a teenager who blew cigarette smoke in her face on a city bus, whipped out a can of Mace and chased they youth down the aisle, her spray can going full blast.

In the process, she sprayed six other passengers and touched off a wild melee aboard the bus. The youth and five of the other passengers were taken to a hospital but later released after treatment for inhalation of the immobilizing gas.

Police spokesman Charles Kelly identified the woman as Madeline Howard, 71, of suburban Carol City. "She's a little grandmother type, 5-feet-4, 110 pounds," said Kelly.

Kelly said police reported the incident as an assault and aggravated battery but no charges were filed pending a decision by detectives and Dade State Attorney Janet Reno.

Kelly said the incident occurred late in the morning in downtown Miami aboard a Metropolitan Transit Authority bus.

Mrs. Howard, a retired cook, told police that a 13-year-old boy lit a cigarette and blew smoke in her face. When she asked him to put out the cigarette, he refused, so she appealed for help from the bus driver. At the driver's request, the youth put out the cigarette.

But Kelly said the argument between Mrs. Howard and the boy continued because the youth apparently was angry with her for reporting him to the bus driver. She told police the youth struck her. Other passengers said they saw no blow struck.

Mrs. Howard uncapped her can of Mace and the youth fled down the aisle toward the front of the bus, with Mrs. Howard in pursuit, spraying as she ran.

"He looked me right in the face and and blew smoke on my glasses. He slapped me and hit me right in the glasses," Mrs. Howard told police. "I'm not going to have any teen-ager hit me."

This Rabbit runs on diesel fuel. That's why it gets you where you're going for about half the cost of our gasoline Rabbit (and the Rabbit has always been famous for fuel economy). That's why there are no spark plugs, no distributor, no points, and no carburetor. That's why we'll be happy to show you this amazing Volkswagen. The car for the times.

CITY WATCHDOG REPORT 83 Congratulations to whoever was responsible for parking Police Car #3, Licence Number LWN 402 on the sidewalk in front of W. & J. Wilson on Monday, November Sixth between 6 and 7 pm. Your City's Watchdog hopes the policeman was on footpatrol. Why was this same police car observed the next evening about 7:15 with two policemen on the Interurban Road in Saanich. Your City's Watchdog requests all City residents on the voter's list to remember to vote on Saturday, November 18th to ensure that we have some school trustees who will keep the school taxes to a minimum. The 120 bus drivers formerly of Vancouver Island Coach Lines should definitely be given a chance to purchase the company rather than have to watch the company dismantled. Remember they were more or less forced to sell it to the NDP government in 1974. If you wish information regarding City matters please continue to phone 383-6259 Your City's Watchdog C. Joe Richards. Postscript: Remember to wear a poppy on Remembrance Day and if you attend Saturday's hockey game purchase one at the Arena. Jim Ryan and Mike Heppel Victoria's former Publicity Bureau's manager if was good to see you again.

TO: CHRISTOPHER WAYNE Wilson TAKE NOTICE that a hearing will take place at the Provincial Court (Family Division) at Room 222, Court House, 35 Front Street, Nanaimo, British Columbia, on the 21st day of November, 1978, at 1:30 o'clock, to review the temporary wardship of the Superintendent of Child Welfare of your child: James George Wilson, March 7, 1978. At this hearing the Superintendent will be recommending that the child be committed permanetly to the care and custody of the Superintendent of Child Welfare. If permanent wardship is granted the Superintendent will have the authority to place James George Wilson for adoption. For further information please contact Ms. Donna Brister, Ministry of Human Resources at 80 Chapel Street, Nanaimo, telephone 753-0231.

305 DEATHS and FUNERALS

BOSSI—Peacefully called home on November 8, 1978, in Victoria, Mr. Alfred Louis Bossi of 3308 Quadra St., a native son of a pioneer family, Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Andrew Bossi. He leaves his loving sisters, Olga and Anita with whom he resided.

—MASS will be celebrated at St. Andrew's Cathedral, Blanshard at View, on Tuesday, Nov. 14, at 10:00 a.m., with the Rev. D. Johnston Celebrant, followed by cremation. (Flowers gratefully declined.) McCall Bros., Funeral Directors, in charge of arrangements.

DESTRUBE — Paul Maurice died peacefully at home, November 9, 1978. Survived by his loving wife Eleanor Destrube.

Service in St. Stephens Anglican Church to be announced later. Flowers gratefully declined. Arrangements through the Memorial Society of B.C. and First Memorial Services Ltd.

DODDS — In Victoria on November 8, 1978, Miss Nora Dodds of Apartment 303-1043 Richardson St., born in Dalry, Ayrshire, Scotland and resident here from 1944, to 1954 and 1964 until the present time. She is survived by nieces and nephews in Scotland, Canada and California.

Funeral service in McCall Bros. Chapel, Johnson and Vancouver Streets on Tuesday, November 14 at 10:30 a.m. with Mr. David Miller and Percy Wills officiating. Interment at Royal Oak Burial Park.

GRESHAM — Passed peacefully into the presence of his Lord on November 9, 1978, John William Gresham in his 80th year of Suite 309-1655 Chambers Street. Beloved husband of Irene Gresham, he also leaves two sons, John Herbert (Ray) of Victoria and William Gilbert of Coquitlam; four grandchildren; one sister Louise in Edmonton. He served with Canada Customs for 35 years. He was a long time member of Central Baptist Church, a member of the Arion Club Choir and was a veteran of World War One.

Funeral service in McCall Bros. Chapel, Johnson and Vancouver Streets on Tuesday November 14 at 3:00 p.m. with the Rev. R. D. Holmes officiating. Interment at Royal Oak Burial Park.

HAGGEN - Peacefully on November 2, 1978, after a short illness in Victoria General Hospital, Mrs. Dorothy E. (Ayton) Haggen, dearly beloved sister of Ernest R. Ayton, by whom she is survived at the residence. She taught for many years in the schools of Greater Victoria. Special thanks to the Memorial Society of B.C. who looked after all arrangements and to whom donations may be made, as flowers have been gratefully declined.

That I have loved long since and lost the while"

HANNAH — In loving memory of Eva Lillian (Babe). My dearest treasure for 38 short years, who peacefully left her loved ones on November 11, 1976.

Holiday Magic Flower Display

GARDENING
hilda beastall

The Victoria Flower Arrangers' Guild has carried to lustrous dimensions the early efforts of local gardeners who arranged their lovely garden flowers for horticultural shows in the first half of this century.

During those years visitors from American cities freely admired our flowers but deplored our lack of artistic sense in their use after being cut from the garden plants.

On Friday and Saturday of this week — November 17 and 18 — the progress made will be seen when members of the Arrangers' Guild set up their "Holiday Magic" Christmas Show. Living flowers may be in the minority, but evergreen foliage, berries, and sprays of fall colored leaves preserved by a special technique will be seen, as well as dried flowers, leaves and berries artificially colored together with dried seedpods, with their seeds or nuts.

You will also see the flotsam and jetsam from coastal tidal pools and beaches retrieved and put to good use once more. This is recycling for an artistic cause for often it is impossible to guess the origin of the accessory being studied in one of these arrangements.

Only by asking a Guild member at the show do you learn that originally it was a do-hicky from a whatsits name, found while the arranger was on a West Coast Trail hike.

The more immediate use of this Holiday Magic Show is to give decorating ideas to the rest of us who lack the gift of generating our own.

Apartment dwellers who lack a source of living plant material will see how to make the most of a single flower or piece of greenery by combining with suitable accessoreis.

Christmas tea and dinner table decorations will suggest a theme for an apartment party table, taking up little space but still creating a lively and lovely picture.

This year, Decorated Doors is a new class of arrangement. Whatever the members of the Guild come up with, there is sure to be ideas aplenty from which we can make a start on planning our own door decoration whether it is an inside apartment door or an elegant colonial door with pillars, or a cottage door in the woods.

Another nice feature for the condominium and apartment dwellers is the stall displaying dried plant material. This is the opportunity to get pieces for working into your own designs, at the same time talking with members who can give you hints along with your purchase.

Holiday Magic, presented by Victoria Flower Arrangers' Guild, will be seen in First United Church Hall, 932 Balmoral Road, off Quadra Street, just north of Pandora Street, this week on November 17 and 18.

On Friday the doors are open from 1 until 9 p.m.; on Saturday from 11 a.m. until 5 p.m. Admission is one dollar at the door, and afternoon tea is served if desired at 50 cents.

Whether you are interested in miniature arrangements or door decorations you will see colors and designs to delight you and give you a feeling of Christmas to come. Children too love the glitter and the color of these decorations, often spotting items of non plant origin long before their elders.

Ex-Cop Shoots Attackers

NEW YORK (AP) — A former policeman accosted by nearly a dozen persons early Sunday as he and a woman friend left a Staten Island bar retaliated by shooting two of his attackers, police said. Five persons were arrested.

The two young men who were shot were reported in stable condition in hospital.

Police said Ciro Barone, 29, who recently retired on disability, had an argument over the woman with him with several other customers at a cocktail lounge.

Barone and the woman left but were chased by persons from the bar, including a woman who tried to run the couple over with her car, police said.

They said Barone said his companion hid in bushes but were found by the group, which had picked up sticks and baseball bats. Barone pulled out his licensed pistol, police said, and shot Nevio Restrepo, 23, in the left side and Robert Altieri, 19, in the stomach.

The wounded and three others, Donna Visciano, 21; Joseph Crisalli, 18, and James Mazella, 18, all of Staten island, were charged with assault, possession of dangerous weapons and criminal mischief.

Con Escaped As Visitor

COWANSVILLE, Que. (CP) — Police are searching for Daniel Gingras, 27, who escaped during visiting hours from the medium-security federal penitentiary here by using a visitor's identification card to pass security personnel at the prison's gates. Director Jean-Paul Lupien said an investigation is underway to determine how Gingras, serving a 12-year sentence for a variety of offences including armed robbery, was able to obtain the identity card. Cowansville is 100 kilometres east of Montreal.

Needy GIs Get Bonn Aid

FRANKFURT (AP) — West Germans have responded to an appeal by the country's largest circulation newspaper with cash and offers of help for U.S. soldiers strapped by the dollar's troubles.

The appeal was made Oct. 27 in the Frankfurt issue of the newspaper Bild at the end of a report on the hardships U.S. servicemen and their families were suffering as a result of the currency's slide.

In the article, the newspaper advised readers who wanted to help to contact the local office of the U.S. Army Community Service.

"The response is overwhelming," ACS Director Roger Lehman told the U.S. military newspaper Stars and Stripes. "People called and offered to come in and write 1,000-mark ($520) and 500-mark ($275) cheques.

"A couple of times when I got back to the office I found an envelope with 50 marks or so included 'for the Americans.'"

He said other Germans offered to accompany the wife of an American GI to the supermarket, where she could buy what she wanted at their expense.

An U.S. Army official in Frankfurt, who asked not to be identifed, said local garrison commanders must approve such offers of charity for hard-pressed Americans.

Clocks Of Past Back In Time

LONDON (CP) — In recent years there has been a revival of interest in clocks of the past. But because antique clocks are rare and expensive, most persons have satisfied this nostalgia by buying modern versions of the styles they admire.

Britain's craftsmen clockmakers have been working full time to meet the home and overseas demand for replicas and reproductions.

Longcase clocks, first produced in the last quarter of the 17th century, were once to be found in every substantial home in Britain. And although such large clocks might seem out of place in the confined surroundings of a modern house or flat, firms which today are making grandfather, grandmother and the smaller granddaughter clocks are hard pressed to keep up with demand.

Even more popular than the longcases are reproductions of carriage clocks. These little brass-cased clocks, with glass-panelled sides and a platform escapement ticking away under a bevelled glass panel let into the top, were first made in France. Throughout the last century, however, they were also turned out by many British clockmakers.

Other styles from the past enjoying increasing popularity in some of Britain's export market—mainly the United States, Australia and mainland Europe—are pendulum wall clocks, reproductions of bracket clocks made by Thomas Tompion and his contemporaries in the late 17th century and reproductions of the even earlier brass lantern clocks.

It is a strange anomaly that when inexpensive quartz movements needing virtually no attention and accurate to a couple of minutes a year are available, more and more people should be showing a preference for traditional mechanical clocks. It has been suggested that this is because mechanical clocks have a life of their own.

The Scary World Of Living Spooks

LOS ANGELES (AP) — It is the stuff of James Bond novels—secret agents bugging each other's boudoirs, plotting with foreign governments, scheming better ways to kill.

But the new crop of undercover spies who leap from pages of this new book sound familiar—Robert Mahew, E. Howard Hunt, James McCord, Johnny Roselli, Sam Giancana, Robert Vesco.

Author Jim Hougan says these men and many more are private spics—or spooks—whose undercover escapades sometimes change the course of history.

Hougan's non-fiction expose, Spooks: The Haunting of America—The Private Use of Secret Agents, talks of a netherworld of real-life intrigue more frightening than fiction.

The message is that James Bond lives among us. But he is no hero. He works for the bad guys more often than the good. His tools are bugs, scramblers, wiretaps, codes, silent guns, exploding cigarette packs and television sets that watch you.

The private spooks are former U.S. government spies—agents of the FBI, CIA or National Security Agency—who use their clandestine tricks to make a fortune in private practice, he says.

Hougan lists dozens of schemes involving secret agents including the use of spooks by McDonald's hamburger chain to guard against the takeover of franchises by organized crime.

Hougan, a Washington-based editor for Harpers magazine, says he stumbled on the proliferation of secret agents during an assignment to write about a company called Intertel.

$50,000 AWARDED FOR FETUS LOSS

NEW YORK (AP) — A $50,000 award to a Florida woman who had intended to become the first U.S. woman to have a test-tube baby has been affirmed by a district court judge.

Judge Charles Stewart upheld a jury award to 34-year-old Doris Del Zio of Fort Lauderdale to compensate her for mental anguish suffered because a developing test-tube fetus was destroyed in 1973 before it could be implanted inside her.

At Columbia Presbyterian Medical Centre, where a culture of the woman's egg had been mixed with her husband's sperm, the test-tube material was seized on orders of Dr. Raymond Vande Wiele, the centre's chief of obstetrics and gynecology.

30 Pints A Day Made His Aim Better

CAERNARVON, Wales (CP) — After 30 pints of beer, most individuals would have trouble seeing, and the only thing they would be able to shoot off would be their mouth.

Dr. Clive Arkle says that was his regular intake when he scooped top prizes at the famous Bisley shoot in the 1960s. The beer helped him hit parts of the target other marksmen could not reach—by tightening his eyeballs to make him see better, he said.

Dr. Arkle, 56, made this eye-opening disclosure in Caernarvon Crown Court when police opposed his application for a firearms licence on grounds that he often was intoxicated.

The doctor, who has a private practice at Benarth Hall, Conwy, Wales, told the court he won the Bisley 100 trophy in 1960 and the Wimbledon rifle trophy in 1966.

"When I achieved these results, I was drinking 30 pints of bitter beer per day," Dr. Arkle said. He added that he hopes to resume competition shooting when his children's education is completed. He has four children aged 17 to 24.

Judge Lloyd Jones dismissed Dr. Arkle's application for a licence, but said the doctor's rifle, being of sentimental value, could be made "harmless" and kept.

A spokesman for Arkle's favorite brewery said:

"Our beer is by no means weak—and anyone who drank 30 pints of it in a day would have great difficulty seeing anything—let alone a target!"

Is It Monster or Horselaugh?

ESHELMAN
...suspects rays or porpoises

By RICHARD LYON
New York Times

STING RAY POINT, Va.— Willis Hudgins said he's seen it.

"It was 15 to 20 feet long, dark looking and moving against the tide," the 69-year-old waterman said.

Donald Kyker said he's seen it.

"It look like a big snake about 100 feet off shore, 25 to 30 feet long and with a head the size of a canteloupe," the retired Central Intelligence Agency official said.

Myrtle Smoot said she's seen it.

"I can't imagine anything like it in the world—it looked like a great big oversized snake," the Falls Church housewife said.

The "it" is the newest phenomenon of the Chesapeake Bay, a thing, or monster or horselaugh depending on your point of view. Mention the thing in the so-called Northern Neck of Virginia and the reactions will range from smirks to seriousness.

"I know it sounds crazy, but I tell you I did see it," said Mr. Kyker who added quickly that his second reaction was that it was some kind of hoax.

Aware of the comic overtones that accompanies a suggestion that a strange creature inhabits the bay, the former intelligence officer acknowledged that "if I had been the only one to have seen it I don't think that I would have stood all the ribbing."

Since June when the first sighting reports started coming in about 30 people have claimed to have seen a long, ugly creature which some have dubbed "Chessie" as a takeoff on the Loch Ness Nessie. Most of the reports have come fron persons at the mouths of the Potomac, Rappahannock and Pautuxent Rivers where they empty into the Chesapeake Bay.

At the mouth of the Pautuxent the University of Maryland maintains on Solomon's Island a marine biology laboratory whose director, Dr. Joseph Cooney, said the existence of such a creature is "highly unlikely."

"Oh, I don't doubt that the people reporting these sightings actually saw something," he said, "but what they saw was a porpoise or some otters and it may have been some judgmental illusion," he added.

Dr.Cooney noted that for 50 years the marine laboratory has maintained a flotilla of boats that are used to conduct a variety of scientific research in the bay. "But during all this time nobody on the research vessls has reported seeing anything such as has been described recently," he said.

At the nearby Calvert Marine Museum the Director, Dr. Ralph Eshelman, said the sightings undoubtedly were over something, but that they were either porpoises or large rays.

"I've seen 50 rays with their tails raised stirring up a boil in the water and it looks very strange," Dr. Eshelman said, adding that this could be what some persons saw.

A few weeks ago people along the Yeocomico River near the town of Kinsale, Virginia, spotted a 60 foot long monster with a head like a hobbyhorse. In fact, the head was that of a plastic tubing by the local rescue squad which used it to liven up their annual fishfry.

They thought they had found a way to kill the monster once and for all. They shot it with a toy cannon but a week later Myrtle Smoot's 11-year-old son spotted the creature for the second time and the monster story started all over again.

Furnace Focuses in on Sun's Heat

ODEILLO, France (Reuter) — More than 20,000 images of the sun focused on a single point make for one of the world's most powerful and natural furnaces.

Capable of melting practically all known substances, the solar furnace at Odeillo, in the French Pyrenees, has become a mecca for research scientists and has fostered numerous solar-energy schemes.

Situated high in the mountains, its huge, dish-shaped reflective surface and additional battery of remote-guided mirrors are an impressive sight.

As the world's biggest solar furnace, it provides unique conditions for high-temperature experiments such as the effects of thermal shock on rocket casings on re-entry into the earth's atmosphere.

The furnace is used for chemical research and military uses. It has also become a focal point for solar-energy ideas.

An electricity-generating "solar centre," to be completed by 1980, is being built close to here at Targasonne, and the region has many solar-heated homes of modern design.

The furnace itself, which started operating in 1970, is capable of temperatures close to 3,800 Celsius, whereas most experiments with metals take place between 1,500 and 2,500 C.

The sun's rays are reflected first from a terraced field of more than 60 mirrors — called heliostats — each one guided by an optical and electronic control which follows the sun. The temperature of the furnace can be regulated by cutting out some of the heliostats.

The main 43-metre-high parabolic mirror faces north and focuses the sun's images from the heliostat field into the furnace in a tower about 20 metres in front of it.

The 1,000 kilowatts collected from the sun are concentrated into a circle approximately one metre in diameter, the temperature decreasing as an object is moved away from the centre.

On a clear day — and even a slight haze or cloud can make it impossible to use the furnace — about 2,000 kilowatts reach the earth's surface. But half of this is lost in the process of reflection.

Jean-Francois Robert, an engineer at the solar energy laboratory, says the furnace also is used for testing the thermal effects of nuclear explosions. It provides the purest conditions for chemical reactions at high temperatures.

Another side of research at the laboratory is to find practical means of using solar power as a renewable energy source.

Gutsy Teener Sets Sights High

WINNIPEG (CP) — Few of the 75 Thalidomide babies born in Canada had more severe disabilities than Paul Murphy, but to describe him as one of the drug's least fortunate victims would be unfair.

Since his early childhood, he has displayed a streak of stubbornness that has helped him overcome many physical limitations. His family also has helped by resisting the temptation to be over-protective.

Paul was born March 26, 1962, without legs and with partially formed hands growing directly out of his shoulders.

His parents tried to get him to start using artificial arms at the age of three, but as soon as their backs were turned, he abandoned the devices in favor of his own limbs.

He did agree to use artificial legs for a number of years, but gave them up last spring when the weight became too much to carry around.

"The limbs were purely cosmetic, strictly for the benefit of other people," he says matter-of-factly. "They made me 5-foot-3 instead of 3-foot-2."

When he got it into his head to start building model cars and trucks, no one told him he might find it difficult. Today he builds and paints models accurate down to the electrical wiring under the hood.

No one discouraged him from working in a darkroom when photography grabbed his interest, so he went ahead taking pictures and developing them in the school darkroom.

He learned to drive a motorboat on Lake of the Woods and then prevailed on his family for permission to take it out on the lake by himself.

The Murphy family has a van with a special lift for his electric wheelchair. Paul has been preparing the van for a new paint job and hopes to remodel the interior. But his big hope is to have a chance to drive it.

"He made up his mind that on his 16th birthday, he would have his driver's licence," says Mrs. Murphy. Paul missed that deadline, but certainly hasn't given up.

"Probably by the spring, Dad and I will start to develop controls and extensions that will allow me to drive the van." He says he talked with Manitoba highways department officials about the idea and is optimistic that it will be allowed.

Meanwhile, Paul is continuing his studies at St. Paul's High School, where he started attending classes after several unproductive years at a school for the handicapped.

When he started going to a regular school, he decided to meet the curiosity of his new classmates head-on.

"The kids were a little nervous and afraid to ask about me, so I talked to them. I told them, 'Look, I'm one of you.'

Paul's willingness to talk about himself and not to shy away from contact with others was instilled in him early in life by his family. His mother says she wanted him to feel free to go around in public without fear of insult.

"I used to make a point of taking him places," she recalls.

Paul now is studying drafting and plans to become an architect. He hopes to take a university degree in architecture, most likely in the United States, and perhaps some business training as well.

Whatever his future, he exudes a kind of self-assurance that those born with all their normal physical endowments could well emulate.

This-a-Way, That-a-Way Tangle Slashes Douglas St. Motel Trade

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

When the hotels are this-a-way and the tourists are going that-a-way, something has gone wrong.

That's the crisis on Douglas Street, one of the major accommodation areas of the city, but now bypassed by tourist traffic which flows downtown along Blanshard.

"This is really hurting us. Our traffic is down 40 per cent," says Red Lion Inn hotel manager Barry Funnell.

"Something has to be done fast or a lot of accommodation people are going to be hurt."

Travelodge Tally-Ho manager Gary Kelly agrees.

"We didn't say anything about this before because we were told there would be large signs on Blanshard, directing people to us. But this promise has not been kept."

Kelly said the hotel is already losing money because of the traffic change and the losses will increase by spring.

The solution, hotel people say, is to erect a large sign near the Town and Country shopping centre pointing out that Blanshard is for through traffic while Douglas is the tourist route.

This unfortunately would create another problem. Vehicles would have to turn right at Saanich Road, which has already become a bottleneck because of the new traffic patterns.

There are four traffic lights in about six blocks on Saanich Road between Vernon and Douglas and traffic travels at half-speed.

Adding to the problem are motorists who cut across the road between McDonald's and the shopping centre. Town and Country merchants have asked Saanich traffic engineers to see how they can untangle that mess.

It would be possible to avoid Saanich Road by having tourist traffic go farther in and have it turn right at Cloverdale but this is not endorsed by Red Lion officials because they would be bypassed.

"When tourists begin arriving in numbers from Swartz Bay, there is going to be a big traffic jam downtown. There isn't enough accommodation for everyone there," says Funnell.

"The tourists will drive around and around, adding to the downtown congestion, until they find out that there are hotels and motels back out on Douglas.

"The whole thing is not well planned at all."

The Red Lion has tried to battle back by moving its official greeter, Earl Levy, over to Blanshard to re-direct some of the flow. At other times he is sent to the shopping centres.

"We are trying everything we can," Funnell said.

The hotel has several proposals.

It is prepared to make some of its land available to widen the intersection near Douglas and Saanich Road to help reduce the bottleneck.

And it will make Levy available as a driver for a shuttle bus service from the shopping centres and the hotel to the downtown core.

But first on the agenda is the question of better signs on Blanshard.

'Straight Into the Jaws of Idi Amin'

DAR ES SALAAM (UPI) — Ugandan President Idi Amin's government is bragging that his forces have repulsed a counterattack by Tanzanian troops and pushed them into the Kagera River where many were devoured by crocodiles.

"The Tanzanian attack was suicide," Amin aide Bob Astles said. "The Tanzanians were thrown back, their boats destroyed and many of them were eaten by crocodiles in the Kagera River.

"I'm told the screams were horrendous as the Tanzanians died. They went straight into the jaws of Idi Amin, no matter about the crocs, when they attacked."

Tanzania announced Saturday that its troops had launched a major counter-offensive in an attempt to recapture a 710-square-mile chunk of northwestern Tanzania seized by Amin's forces two weeks ago.

Amin's troops were dug in on the north bank of the Kagera River, a tropical river swollen to a width of 150 feet, and the Tanzanian troops attempted to storm across the river in boats.

A high-level official in Kampala told UPI as many as 3,000 of the estimated 6,000 Tanzanian troops in the battle zone took part in the attack against 3,000 Ugandans.

Tanzanian officials said the battle was still raging Sunday — 24 hours after the counter-offensive started — but Uganda radio said its soldiers had blunted the offensive and hurled the Tanzanians back with heavy losses.

Radio Uganda said the Tanzanians launched the offensive late Saturday with a heavy artillery and rocket barrage that could be heard 50 miles away and then tried to cross the Kagera by boats, including an old ferry from nearby Lake Victoria.

"None of the Tanzanian troops managed to swim the river and were watched by Ugandan troops as they were swept away by the water, and were eaten," the radio said.

Mideast Talks Frozen Despite Carter

Times News Services

WASHINGTON (AP) — Middle East peace talks remained deadlocked over the Palestinian issue today despite a concerted U.S. effort to keep a partially completed treaty between Egypt and Israel from unravelling.

President Carter's personal intervention with President Anwar Sadat and Prime Minister Menachem Begin and a compromise U.S. proposal on the Palestinians Sunday failed to bring a quick end to the impasse.

Egyptian President Anwar Sadat conferred with his top advisers today, and Prime Minister Mustapha Khalil said Cairo's delegation will continue to negotiate despite the dispute over the Palestinian issue.

Prime Minister Menachem Begin arrived back in Israel from the United States, meanwhile, and said his government will consider compromise proposals put forward by the U.S. and Egypt on the question that has blocked final agreement.

The issue basically is whether and how to link an Egyptian-Israeli treaty with a commitment to step-by-step resolution of the future of the Palestinian-populated West Bank of the Jordan River and Gaza Strip.

Begin gave no details of the proposals outlined in what he called a long and serious meeting Sunday with U.S. State Secretary Cyrus Vance.

Earlier, Begin said Israel could not accept Egyptian demands for a timetable to settle the Palestinian problem on the West Bank and in the Gaza Strip.

In a day of fast-paced diplomatic developments, including a telephone call between Sadat and President Carter, the initial Egyptian inclination was to call the negotiators home, sources close to Sadat said.

Sadat met with Khalil and Vice-President Hosny Mubarak to study a message from Carter and after three hours delivered his reply to U.S. Ambassador Hermann Eilts. Cairo newspapers reported the message dealt with the stalled negotiations in Washington, but neither the contents of the message nor details of Sadat's reply were divulged.

Khalil was asked afterward whether the Egyptian delegation was being called home from Cairo.

"No such instructions have been issued to the Egyptian delegation. It never occured to us," he replied.

Sadat had told reporters Friday he would not be surprised if the talks were broken off for a while, but that was before the Vance-Begin meeting Sunday.

Calgary Stampeders, who breezed by Winnipeg Blue Bombers 38-4 in Sunday's Western Football Conference semi-final, are expecting things to be much tougher when they invade Edmonton Saturday for the West final. It will be first time there has been an all-Alberta final. In the East, Montreal Alouettes had a similarly easy time in disposing of Hamilton Tiger-Cats 35-20 in their semi-final. However, the Alouettes may have suffered some costly injuries. They meet Ottawa Rough Riders in the Eastern final next Sunday. Page 16.

Easy Victory For Drapeau

MONTREAL (CP) — Jean Drapeau won a landslide victory in Sunday's municipal election which was all the sweeter because it was one of his toughest campaigns ever.

Recent charges of conflict-of-interest against his right-hand man at city hall and disclosures of lax control over 1976 Olympic Games spending did not appear to hurt Drapeau in the least, as he rode to an unprecedented seventh term as mayor with a 35 per cent majority.

The rotund 62-year-old Drapeau, mayor of Montreal for 21 of the last 24 years, walloped his personal opponents while his party captured 52 of 54 council seats.

In 1970, Drapeau's Civic Party won every seat on council, but in 1974 Montrealers elected a mixed 55-seat council with 36 Civic Party members, 18 Montreal Citizens' Movement members and one independent councillor.

With most of the city's 3,214 polls reporting, Drapeau had 204,462 votes, or 60.9 per cent of the mayoralty vote, and his Civic Party had taken 55.5 per cent of the popular vote.

Liberal MP Serge Joyal, mayoral candidate of the newly-formed Municipal Action Group had 85,457 votes, or 25.5 per cent of the vote for mayor, while his party won 25.9 per cent of the popular vote.

Guy Duquette of the Montreal Citizens' Movement had 41,941 votes, or 12.5 per cent of the mayoralty vote, while his party garnered 18.1 per cent of the popular vote. Both opposition parties won just one council seat.

At last count, 335,775 voters, or 50 per cent of the city's 665,276 eligible voters, had cast ballots. It was one of the highest-ever turnouts at a Montreal election, 10 per cent higher than in the last election in 1974.

In his victory speech before an overflow crowd at city hall, Drapeau promised not to "abuse the strength, the power we have received today."

Iran Oil Industry Still Crippled; General Strike Call Headed Off

TEHRAN (AP) — Most of Iran's 37,000 oil workers defied the military government's order to end their strike, but workers in Tehran did not heed a call for a one-day general strike to demonstrate opposition to Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi.

Seventeen persons were reported killed in weekend demonstrations against the shah.

Despite threats of dismissal and arrest, only a handful of workers complied with an order from the National Iranian Oil Co., the government monopoly, to return to work by Sunday morning and end a strike that began two weeks ago.

Iranian oil officials believe the strikers will go back to work in a day or two. But some foreign personnel were doubtful.

The oil workers went on strike Oct. 31 for higher pay and in support of opposition to the shah's regime by conservative Moslem religious leaders demanding reversal of the ruler's reform program and leftists demanding democratic reforms to replace his authoritarian rule.

The shah authorized a 22.5-percent pay increase last week, but the workers demanded release of all political prisoners, an end to martial law and the expulsion of foreigners from the oil industry.

About 2,000 foreign employees and 400 army and navy technicians are at work in the industry, preventing a total shutdown. Officials said production is 1.98 million barrels a day, about 40 per cent of the normal output. But most of this was being used domestically, and the government was losing more than $60 million a day in export revenue.

Iran is the world's second largest exporters of crude oil and a major supplier of Western Europe, South Africa and Israel. Its customers have turned to reserves stockpiled in expectation of a price increase at the end of the year.

The new military government of Gen. Gholam-Reza Azhari, named by the shah last week after bloody rioting against his rule, was strengthened by the failure of exiled Moslem leader Ayatollah Khomaini's call for a one-day general strike in Tehran to support his campaign for the overthrow of the shah.

Most shops and businesses were open, and government agenices and public utilities operated normally.

Pars, the Iranian news agency, reported nine persons killed Saturday in clashes between troops and anti-shah demonstrators in Khorramshahr, about 650 kilometres southwest of Tehran, and the opposition National Front claimed eight others were killed.

I QUIT! Week 6:

Time IS Longer If It's Not Going Up in Smoke

By DAVID COTTER

You're well into your second month now. It's time to talk about time.

One morning George announced with his usual total confidence that he had just smoked his final cigarette. He's never tried to quit before. He'd never need to try again. This was It. He KNEW.

For the next two hours I watched him crumble: the sloping of the shoulders, the drumming of the fingers, the snapping at the telephone. At 11 a.m. he asked me for a Bantron, knowing I kept a spare box in case of a surprise attack by my lungs. His jaw was half-way to his knees. At 11:30, he moaned, "How long do these things take?" At noon he was smoking again.

If only he could have given it a little more time and had a list to add these to:

- Studies indicate that nicotine releases large amounts of cholesterol into the bloodstream.
- Your skin temperature can drop as much as 4 degrees from just one cigarette.
- Carbon monoxide in a cigarette is concentrated at 400 times the safe level of industrial exposure.
- Cigarette smokers are 6 to 15 times more likely to die from chronic bronchitis.

Time has its own bag of tricks. The days are never long enough.

Suddenly, when you first quit, they never seem to end. Life, the poets tell us, is short. Suddenly, it consists of an agonizing stretch of miniature eternities.

Smokers frequently feel compelled to sleep withdrawal away when they quit. Occasionally, they drink more too. For a week or two this may do.

One endures. But, eventually one must face the facts or start growing bedsores.

Fact: time does seem longer, just as it seems longer when your pants fall down on stage.

Fact: there is more time. Less time is spent on the petty distractions of fumbling for your pack, fiddling for a cigarette, hunting for a match, lighting up, disposing of the match, inhaling, exhaling, tapping the ash, etc. all day long.

You also have more energy, so you don't need as much sleep.

And finally, you're aware of time in a different way.

Subconsciously time will no longer be measured by a length of cigarette. (The next bus will no longer be due in two cigarettes.)

Still, you'd think that having more time would be a blessing. And it would be, except for our unhappy habit of wanting our pills to work right away. Accomplishment is too often something we expect to happen to us, rather than something we earn.

If you find it hard to imagine not ever smoking again, readjust your focus. If it's too broad or too far in the future it isn't useful to you now.

Gone With The Wind would have been an overwhelming project had Margaret Mitchell's sights been locked on the clock or the number of blank pages. Instead, she dealt with each detail and each day as it came.
